Confusion Or Panic?

Contrasting Reports Prevail Over Liner's Disaster

LONDON (AP) — England bundled up against a cold snap as the 20,314-ton Greek liner Lakonia slipped out of Southampton, headed for Madeira, the Canary Islands—and sunshine—on a Christmas cruise.

An atmosphere of calm gentility and folksy cheer pervaded the ship as the 658 passengers—most of them British—and 369 crew, set out Dec. 18. Half the passengers had signed for the full 5-week voyage, paying up to $1,055. The rest were going to the islands.

It was to be a lazy, sunny Christmas. Breakfast in bed, tea in a tapestry-hung lounge. In the evening, they dressed for dinner.

On Friday, Dec. 20, the first day out, there was a boat drill. No one seems to remember exactly how it was conducted. The crew had been through a boat drill before sailing. Capt. Daniel Jones of the British Sea Transport Department was told by his inspectors that it was "very satisfactory." They did not conduct a formal inspection of the ship. It carried a Greek certificate of seaworthiness.

Sunday, in one lounge the ship's social director had organized a party for young people — they came dressed as hobos. There was carol singing in another lounge, a movie in the third. Most older passengers had retired; Monday was to be a big day of sightseeing in Madeira.

Just before 11 p.m. a steward spotted smoke seeping under the doors of the ship's barber shop. He flung open the doors and fell back before flames.

The fire raced through passageways toward the staterooms.

Capt. Mathios Zarbis, a veteran of 15 years with the Greek Line, was sitting in the main saloon. He raced toward the door.

Ivor S. Buchanan, an American, and his wife Dorothy had retired early. He pulled a suit over his pajamas. She put his coat over her slip. "What a hell of a time to have a fire drill," he thought.

In the radio room, operator Alexis Kalogridis switched to the automatic emergency transmitter and began tapping out: "Fire spreading up. Prepare evacuation on ship." It was 11:30 p.m.

At 22 minutes after midnight Kalogridis sent out the final, anguished call: "SOS from Lakonia last time. I cannot stay any more in the wireless station. We are leaving the ship. Please immediate assistance. Please help."

Then he dashed to the lifeboat deck, already crowded with passengers and crew milling about in pajamas and anything they had thrown on. Some women still wore their jewels and evening gowns.

Whether the confusion merited the name of panic—as some passengers claimed — was a matter of dispute. There were contrasting reports of heroism and hectic scrambling.

The swimming pool attendant tied a rope to his feet, had himself lowered head downward and pulled several children from smoke-filled cabins.

Buchanan and his wife got into a boat; another was almost lowered on top of it. Pressed against the windward side of the ship by swells, those aboard pushed the boat aft and rowed for the open sea.

Communication between passengers and the Greek and Ger-

301 Killed In Holiday Car Wrecks

Over Two-Thirds Of Deaths Counted On Christmas Day

By The Associated Press

The nation's heavy Christmas holiday traffic killed more than 300 persons.

The toll was 301 for the 48-hour period from midnight Monday to midnight Christmas Day (local time).

Fatalities were heaviest during the actual holiday, Wednesday. Tuesday's toll at midnight, EST, had reached 83, and by midnight on the West Coast it was 100. More than two-thirds of the deaths were counted on Christmas Day.

The number of fatalities Christmas Day was far above the average of traffic deaths during the first 10 months this year and during last year's record toll of 40,900. The 10-month total was 35,170, an average of about 115 deaths daily compared to last year's daily average of 112.

The holiday deaths compared with a total of 170 highway fatalities counted by The Associated Press during a 48-hour non-holiday period from 12:01 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 10, to 12:01 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 12.

CRISIS IN CYPRUS. President Archbishop Makarios, a Greek, reads statement asking Greek and Turkish Cypriots to stop fighting as Vice President Fazil Kuchuk, a Turk, listens. At right is BBC interviewer Peter Flinn. New attacks by Turkish Cypriots broke a cease-fire agreed to late Christmas day, government sources reported.

Greece Asks NATO Council In Paris To Discuss Crisis

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Britain ordered more troops to Cyprus today as a conflict between the Greek Cypriot and Turkish minority threatened to embroil NATO allies Greece and Turkey in open conflict.

Greece asked for an extraordinary session in Paris of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's permanent council to discuss the crisis. Informed sources in Paris said the council met secretly Wednesday. The Cyprus government already has sent a complaint to the United Nations.

The Turkish government ordered two jet fighters to make warning flights over Cyprus Christmas Day after accusing Greek Cypriots of massacring Turkish Cypriots in communal fighting that has been raging since last Saturday.

Then as the fighting died down to sporadic firing, the office of President Makarios, leader of the Greek Cypriot community, asserted six Turkish navy vessels had taken up positions off Cyprus.

President Cemal Gursel of Turkey also expressed grave concern, accused the Greek Cypriots of a massacre, and appealed to President Johnson and other world leaders to intervene.

The situation was being watched closely in both London and Washington. Greece and Turkey, long at odds over Cyprus, guard the Far Eastern flank of the Atlantic Alliance.

Johnson was watching developments from his Texas ranch. Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home of Britain interrupted a Christmas vacation to return to London.

What prompted Makarios to send a complaint to the U. N. Security Council was the flight of the Turkish jets and the movement of some of Turkey's 650-man garrison on Cyprus into the Turkish Cypriot quarter of this capital.

Christmas Marred

Red Guards Kill East Berlin Boy

BERLIN (AP)—About 50,000 West Berliners crossed into East Berlin by noon today despite the Christmas Day killing of a young East German who tried to escape over the Berlin wall.

"The Christmas murder on the Berlin wall overshadows our joy at the Christmas meeting in the city," said West Germany's minister for all-German affairs, Erich Mende.

But with the day after Christmas also a holiday, the flow of visitors to relatives in the Communist sector continued at flood tide. When the gates opened at 6 a.m., the line was two blocks long at one crossing point.

There was no change in the friendly attitude of East German guards, reported under orders to "keep smiling" when the 16-day visiting period began last week by agreement between the West Berlin city government and East Germany's Red regime.

"But now you see their real face," a young Red Cross worker on duty at a crossing point said. "Here they smile and there they shoot."

Less than a mile from the Oberbaum Bridge control point an East German guard shot Paul Schulz, 18, in the back Wednesday as he sat entangled in barbed wire atop the concrete wall.

As loudspeakers blared Christmas music from the East German radio, the wounded youth toppled from the 9-foot wall into the arms of a West Berlin policeman. A companion, also 18, made it safely to the West, but Schulz died six hours later in a West Berlin hospital.

In allowing visits by West Berliners to their relatives in the East, the Communists made no relaxation in their ban on East Berliners going the other way.

Chiristmas Day traffic through the wall Wednesday was a record. Officials estimated more than 65,000 West Berliners crossed over.

President's Keeping Tab On Problems

The President's guest today was former Gov. Buford Ellington of Tennessee. Johnson said he wanted to "get his counsel on a number of national problems." These were not specified, and there was speculation that the Democratic politician may be in line for a federal post.

Johnson also was keeping in touch with the explosive situation in Cyprus, where fighting has erupted between Turks and Greeks. Developments on the island prompted two or three telephone conferences Wednesday with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The pressure of official business during the holiday stay at the LBJ ranch was evidenced, too, by a new directive in which Johnson ordered a cutback in federal jobs within the next 18 months.

In discussing Cyprus with newsmen, Johnson said:

"We have a situation developing there and we are watching it very carefully."

Aides reported that Johnson strongly supported efforts by the British, Greek and Turkish governments to stabilize the situation.

In ordering a cut in the federal pay roll, Johnson told agency heads:

"Even though nothing like this has happened in the last decade, I am still unconvinced that we are getting the maximum possible output per employe. I believe we can do better."

He said every department and agency would get personnel ceilings which "are not to be exceeded without my explicit approval."

Pay rolls are to be cut, if only slightly, in two stages—by next

Rockefeller Drops Attacks On Goldwater

Resumes Campaign With Jan. 3 Talk In Portsmouth, N.H.

The sweeping political changes brought about by the probability that President Johnson will head the 1964 Democratic ticket are expected to be reflected in altered campaign tactics by Rockefeller.

In the period preceding Kennedy's death, Rockefeller gave about equal time to attacking Goldwater for his conservative views and to lambasting Kennedy for what the governor said was the President's failure to live up to his 1960 promises on civil rights, action to end unemployment and to get the country moving faster economically.

Rockefeller was said by associates to be planning in the Portsmouth speech to lay down in broad terms the reasons he is running for the nomination and what he would hope to do if he were elected president.

The decision to abandon attacks on Goldwater apparently stems from the belief in the Rockefeller camp that the Arizona senator has become a less attractive candidate against Johnson than he would have been against Kennedy.

The Rockefeller people are making no claims that the governor has passed Goldwater in popular support among Republicans. But they think the field is now wide open and there would not be much profit in continuing to single out one man as a target among many who may be contenders for the nomination.

This could change, of course, if the March 10 New Hampshire primary narrows to a Rockefeller-Goldwater contest.

Rockefeller's associates don't believe there is much political mileage in attacking Johnson at this point. That can come later, after the new President has begun to make his own record.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — It's summer Down Under and Sydney recorded its hottest Christmas Day since 1957—up to 98 in the city and 100 in the suburbs.

Erhard Due For Meeting With Johnson

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Ludwig Erhard heads for his meeting with President Johnson bolstered by a stronger voice in world affairs, thanks to a solution of the Common Market crisis. This was his first big test as West Germany's new leader.

Erhard is flying from Bonn Friday for a weekend at the Johnson ranch in Texas and the first full-scale talks since the chancellor and the President took office.

Long famous as the author of West German's post-war economic boom, Erhard, 66, succeeded former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer Oct. 16 under a cloud of doubt. Adenauer called his former economic minister naive politically.

But Erhard made a strong start in foreign affairs by standing up to the formidable French president, Charles de Gaulle, on the eve of the West German leader's trip to the United States.

De Gaulle's stand imperiled the Common Market experiment for West Germany and the four other member nations—Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Erhard stubbornly refused to

Today's 'Exchange Day'

City Has Good Christmas As Holiday Passes Quietly

Described generally as a "good Christmas," East Liverpool's holiday passed quietly with ideal weather, well - attended church services and few mishaps.

Temperatures remained crisp throughout the day with the snow from Monday's storm providing the White Yule that made for cheerful family gatherings. And the needy were not forgotten.

Downtown stores meanwhile girded for "Exchange Day," when gift recipients traditionally trade presents for more suitable sizes, colors or tastes.

The city had several minor traffic mishaps but in the Tri-State area death did not take a holiday as a Toronto child and a Salem pedestrian were killed by cars.

Christmas Eve candlelight services and Midnight Masses were held in churches of the area and many attended Christmas morning services also.

About 225 persons were reported at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, over 400 at the First Baptist Church and 100 at the Boyce Methodist Church.

About 50 attended the final performance of the outdoor Christmas pageant Christmas Eve at the Riverside United Presbyterian Church at Wellsville.

Refreshments were served afterwards. The play, featuring live actors and animals, was presented two other nights.

Maj. William Hathorn of the Salvation Army reported that about 155 Christmas baskets were distributed and about 1,000 new toys and 1,000 used toys were given to young people of needy families.

Toys, candy and apples were distributed to the youngsters by lodge members and wives. Names of children are obtained from the school nurse and teachers who were then issued tickets. The project cost the lodge $1,300. G. W. Laughlin

City Has Lone Birth Occurring On Holiday

Dr. Stork elbowed his way past Santa Claus Wednesday and deposited a baby daughter under a LaCroft couple's Christmas tree in the only holiday birth in local hospitals.

The infant, born to Mr. and Mrs. Willis Lapham will in later years probably face the usual gifts mixup that occurs for persons with birthday anniversaries on Dec. 25.

Melting Period Due, Then Colder, Flurries

Sunny skies and mounting temperatures were expected to start melting the snow accumulation today but the Ohio weatherman said it will be cold again tonight and Friday.

The mercury was due to climb into the low 40's for the mildest weather in two weeks with occasional light snow tonight, possibly mixed with rain, then a dip into the sub - freezing range of 20 to 25 degrees.

The downtown had a chilly 28 at 6 a. m. and the temperature climbed 2 degrees in an hour and may touch 43 this afternoon. Ice from the recent zero - cold still was flowing in the Ohio River, but it was pretty well broken up by towboat traffic.

Word On Captured Soldier

Viet Cong Radio Reports Chester Man 'Alive, Well'

U.S. government officials have announced a Communist radio broadcast heard in Viet Nam reports Sgt. George Smith of Chester, captured in a Viet Cong attack near Saigon Nov. 24, is alive and being treated well.

A telegram from Washington was received Tuesday night by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Potts, 255 Carolina Ave., Chester, providing a special Christmas Eve gift to the couple.

Sgt. Smith is one of four Americans first listed as missing after the assault on the camp at Hiep Hoa 18 miles west of Saigon in which over 30 Viet Nam soldiers were killed.

Subsequent reports verified the sergeant was seen leaving the camp under guard, with a "slight" leg wound and with his hands tied.

The telegram received Tuesday from Maj. Gen. J. C. Lambert, Adjutant General's Office, said a Communist broadcast heard last Friday reported the four captured Americans were prisoners.

Gen. Lambert said information was received from the U.S. Ambassador in Viet Nam concerning the broadcast which quoted a short letter allegedly written by the prisoners.

Gen. Lambert's telegram reported — "In it (the purported letter) they stated they were being treated well, fed well, receiving attention and hoping to be released soon." The broadcaster listed the name, rank and correct serial number of Sgt. Smith, the telegram reported.

Gen. Lambert wrote, "We point out this information came to the attention of the ambassador from the Communists, and cannot be verified, although the report is factual in name, serial number and date of capture."

Potts said the telegram truly brightened the family holiday—they had not even put up a Christmas tree because of the great concern for the life of their son.

The sergeant, a medical aid man with a Special Forces team, was wounded in July shortly after he arrived at the Saigon airport, which was attacked by Viet Cong units.

Fire Kills 12 Children In One Family

By The Associated Press

Fire killed 12 children in the Walter Johnson family in Charleston, S.C.—the worst of the nation's Christmas fires.

A family of six died in a house fire in Spring Lake, Mich.

An exploding oil heater was blamed for the deaths of the 12 in Charleston, eight boys and four girls, aged 8 months to 20 years.

The victims were all in one bedroom at the top of the stairs. Johnson, 51, was critically burned trying to save them. Mrs. Johnson, 47, and a son, Nathaniel, 16, escaped.

Authorities said Johnson and a friend were brightening the frame house for the holiday with a new linoleum floor and apparently spilled oil from the heater by accidentally tipping it. The explosion followed.

Ohio Traffic Fatal To 12 Over Holiday

By The Associated Press

Christmas night traffic accidents pushed Ohio's holiday highway death toll over the number of dead predicted by state highway officials.

At least 11 deaths due to traffic accidents during the 48-hour Christmas holiday period were reported to The Associated Press. Seven of the victims were pedestrians.

Highway officials had predicted that 10 would die on the state's roads and highways during the holiday period which began at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday and ended at 12:01 a.m. today.

Fairly poor driving conditons were general during the two-day holiday. The Highway Patrol said most of the state's highways were partly snow-covered and slippery in spots.

During a comparable but non-holiday period two weeks ago, six persons died in traffic accidents in Ohio.

The fatalities:

Tuesday

James R. Nicholson, 29, Austintown Township near Youngstown, struck by two cars as he walked, facing traffic, four feet from the curb a block from his home.

Wednesday

John Chester Scarborough, 41, Vandalia, when his car went out of control on U. S. 25 and struck the Miami River bridge at Dayton's northern city limits.

Barbara Sparrow, 22, Cleveland, when the car she was in collided with another on Cleveland's East Side.

Johnnie Fanning, 24, Cleveland, when he drove his auto over a curb in Cleveland and struck a utility pole.

Walter Birley, 22, near Franklin, struck by a car while walking along or across old U. S. 25 in Warren County near his trailer home.

Mrs. Ruth Vacearielli'o, 42, Cincinnati, struck by a car as she and her husband crossed a street in Cincinnati.

Clarence Taylor, 50, Salem, of injuries suffered Tuesday night when he was struck by a hit-skip motorist just inside the Salem city limits.

Dennis Vingoe, 16, Cuyahoga Falls, when the car he was in struck a utility pole in Cuyahoga Falls.

Robert H. Grey, 27, North Madison, struck by a car as he walked along U. S. 20 between Painesville and North Madison en route to his home after Christmas dinner in Painesville.

Rhodes Will Pursue Industry In Florida

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes went to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., by commercial airline Wednesday night to spend several days "pursuing an industry," his office assistants said today.

Accompanying him was Dr. John C. Ullery, of Ohio State University. It was understood that the industry involved manufactures chemicals.

The governor also planned to go to Miami and possibly Clearwater, Fla., it was reported, and may not return to his office until Monday.

CADIZ — The 1,016 employes of the Scio Pottery Co. have received Christmas bonuses totaling $200,000 from Scott Reese, president of the Harrison County ware plant.

The bonuses ranged from $20 for new employes to $1,000 to those with 30 years service and more.

The bonus was $40,000 greater than last year's and was the biggest since Scott Reese succeeded his brother, the late Lewis P. Reese, in 1952 as president.

Cruiser Eyed At Salineville

SALINEVILLE — Re-advertising for bids for leasing or purchase of a police cruiser was authorized by Council in a year-end session Monday night.

Previous bids were rejected because the offers were not specific enough, and Council subsequently ordered more detailed specifications prepared.

The meeting marked the end of the terms for Councilmen Orval Tolson and Mrs. Mary Sweeney. Howard Ahlborn and Gene Jarvis, Councilmen-elect, will begin duties at the organization meeting Jan. 6.

The mayor meanwhile urged all residents to clear ice and snow from sidewalks, because many walks are hazardous. He pointed out a village ordinance provides for such cleaning.

He also asked that motorists not park cars along Main St. after midnight after any snowfall for the rest of the winter, in order to facilitate snow removal.

Salineville Woman's Auto Hit By Another

SALINEVILLE — Moderate damage resulted from a collision between cars operated by Miss Myrtle Strabley of E. Main St. and David Lee Gardner, 22, of Lakewood on Jefferson St. this morning at 8:25 a. m., Police Chief Roy Lewis reported.

Miss Strabley had driven out from the St. Patrick's Catholic Church parking lot when her auto was rammed in the side by Gardner's eastbound auto.

Chief Lewis said the windshield of Garner's auto was partially covered with ice. Neither driver was injured, he added, although Miss Strabley, village treasurer and longtime correspondent for The Review, was shaken.

Fills Two Positions

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Mayor - elect Anthony B. Flask has named John Terlesky, 49, to be police chief and State Rep. Thomas J. Barrett, 52, to become city finance director, effective Jan. 1.

Soviets Claim Device 'Finds' Kidney Stones

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet scientists claim to have developed a foolproof method of locating kidney stones by using a "mine detector" type of apparatus.

The instrument, called an ultrasonic flaw detector, has until now been used to find flaws in metal.

But medical scientists have found that it works just as effectively on the human body.

The machine radiates an ultrasonic beam into the exposed kidney and locates a kidney stone with absolute precision.

Soviet surgeons claim to have carried out several dozen operations using the apparatus — each time successfully.

The instrument is brought into use after surgeons have exposed the kidney. It is then brought into use like a wartime mine detector — moved inch by inch over the kidney until a signal appears pinpointing the offending kidney stone.

The surgeon then goes to work.

Only 4 States Use Term Commonwealth

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Only four states, Kentucky, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, use the term "commonwealth" on official documents and the like.

The expression dates back to Oliver Cromwell who created the Commonwealth of States or Colonies of Great Britain.

Virginia, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts were commonwealths of Great Britain before the Revolutionary War and incorporated the word into their names when they separated from the mother country.

Kentucky, once a part of Virginia, retained the term "commonwealth" when it became the 15th state in 1792.

Little Change Noted At Integrated Motels

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — None of 20 integrated motels and hotels in Kentucky reports any significant number of Negro customers, according to the state Commission on Human Rights.

Managers in seven cities and towns were contacted. "When questioned concerning their policy of serving without regard to race, all of the managers seemed to be satisfied with the way the policy had worked out in general," the commission said.

County Has 4 Auto Mishaps

Slippery roads and snow drifts were the bane of holiday drivers, according to the Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon, which reported four area mishaps Tuesday night and Wednesday.

Gary Ray Steele, 16, of 918 Columbia Ave. escaped injury Wednesday night when his car went off Campground Rd. and struck a utility pole a half mile north of Route 7.

Officers said he was driving south when the mishap occurred at 11:30 p. m. Damage to the auto was moderate. He was cited to traffic court at Lisbon.

John Robert Sowards, 22, of Lisbon R. D. 3 was cited after his truck struck a car stuck in snow and another car helping the disabled auto on Route 164 Tuesday night about 8:10.

A car operated by James Edward Orr, 31, of 109 E. Main St., Salineville, became stuck in snow along Route 164 about 1.7 miles north of Route 39, and Allen Gilbert Everhart, 49, of Salineville R. D. 1 stopped to aid him.

Sowards' pickup truck went off the roadway and hit both vehicles, officers said. He was charged with speed in excess of safe road conditions. He was to be treated by his family physician for lacerations and abrasions of the knees.

A truck operated by William H. Nixon, 32, of Wellsville R.D. 1 became stuck in snow in a wheat field of Walter McCaskey of Lisbon R. D. 3 when Nixon attempted to turn around after he was unable to ascend a hill on Township Rd. 907 about two miles south of Elkton Tuesday.

James Campbell, 30, of Salem R. D. 3, reported an oncoming auto sideswiped his car on Route 558 a mile south of Salem Wednesday at 12:55 a.m., but failed to halt.

Ohio Jobless Claims Take Another Jump

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Both new and continuing claims for unemployment compensation showed increases in the week ended Dec. 14 to 23,325, and continuing claims of those unemployed one week or more increased from 82,849 to 89,540.

In December of last year, there was an average of 22,548 new claims on file each week, and an average of 107,095 continuing claims.

man crew broke down because of language difficulties. To M. R. Lovat of London the babbling was disgraceful — "the crew screamed their head off for five solid hours."

Smoke prevented the lowering of four boats. Others swamped in the swells. When the last boat was away, about 80 passengers and 40 crew members were still aboard. They huddled on the after deck all night, but as flames spread aft, they were ordered over the side. Gerd Punkrope, a purser, was in this group. He said most of those who perished probably were in it, too.

Last to leave was the captain. One passenger said she saw him wandering around with tears streaming down his face. The master of a Belgian freighter saw the captain pacing alone on the tilting deck and sent a boat to pick him up.

The flames that killed the Lakonia saved her passengers. Said Capt. Jose Barrere of the Argentine freighter Salta: "We got the wrong position and could have missed the Lakonia. But the fire guided us in like a lighthouse."

The Salta was the heroine of the sea drama. First on the scene, she picked up 475 survivors.

As dawn broke Monday, the Atlantic waters were crowded with rescue ships. The Lakonia was a drifting, burning ghost ship, a magnet for salvage tugs.

The British aircraft carrier Centaur put an engineer board by helicopter. He found the quarterdeck and two decks below burned away, and the superstructure caved in amidships. But the hull seemed sound and the ship ready for a refit.

The Lakonia's owners announced today that 896 persons were known to have been saved from the disaster. 89 were known dead and 42 still were not accounted for. This added to 1,027, in contrast to previous reports that said 1,036 were aboard the ship.

A spokesman for the line said some crew members had not turned up for the sailing from Southampton Dec. 19.

He's been in the business 50 years and during that time has placed more than $14 million of life insurance.

"There's no age ceiling for the agent who keeps active mentally and physically," he says.

Confusion Or Panic?

Contrasting Reports Prevail Over Liner's Disaster

LONDON (AP) — England bundled up against a cold snap as the 20,314-ton Greek liner Lakonia slipped out of Southampton, headed for Madeira, the Canary Islands—and sunshine—on a Christmas cruise.

An atmosphere of calm gentility and folksy cheer pervaded the ship as the 658 passengers—most of them British—and 369 crew, set out Dec. 18. Half the passengers had signed for the full 5-week voyage, paying up to $1,055. The rest were going to the islands.

It was to be a lazy, sunny Christmas. Breakfast in bed, tea in a tapestry-hung lounge. In the evening, they dressed for dinner.

On Friday, Dec. 20, the first day out, there was a boat drill. No one seems to remember exactly how it was conducted. The crew had been through a boat drill before sailing. Capt. Daniel Jones of the British Sea Transport Department was told by his inspectors that it was "very satisfactory." They did not conduct a formal inspection of the ship. It carried a Greek certificate of seaworthiness.

Sunday, in one lounge the ship's social director had organized a party for young people — they came dressed as hobos. There was carol singing in another lounge, a movie in the third. Most older passengers had retired; Monday was to be a big day of sightseeing in Madeira.

Just before 11 p.m. a steward spotted smoke seeping under the doors of the ship's barber shop. He flung open the doors and fell back before flames.

The fire raced through passageways toward the staterooms.

Capt. Mathios Zarbis, a veteran of 15 years with the Greek Line, was sitting in the main saloon. He raced toward the door.

Ivor S. Buchanan, an American, and his wife Dorothy had retired early. He pulled a suit over his pajamas. She put his coat over her slip. "What a hell of a time to have a fire drill," he thought.

In the radio room, operator Alexis Kalogridis switched to the automatic emergency transmitter and began tapping out: "Fire spreading up. Prepare evacuation on ship." It was 11:30 p.m.

At 22 minutes after midnight Kalogridis sent out the final, anguished call: "SOS from Lakonia last time. I cannot stay any more in the wireless station. We are leaving the ship. Please immediate assistance. Please help."

Then he dashed to the lifeboat deck, already crowded with passengers and crew milling about in pajamas and anything they had thrown on. Some women still wore their jewels and evening gowns.

Whether the confusion merited the name of panic—as some passengers claimed — was a matter of dispute. There were contrasting reports of heroism and hectic scrambling.

The swimming pool attendant tied a rope to his feet, had himself lowered head downward and pulled several children from smoke-filled cabins.

Buchanan and his wife got into a boat; another was almost lowered on top of it. Pressed against the windward side of the ship by swells, those aboard pushed the boat aft and rowed for the open sea.

NATO Meets Secretly Over Cyprus Conflict

301 Killed In Holiday Car Wrecks

Over Two-Thirds Of Deaths Counted On Christmas Day

By The Associated Press

The nation's heavy Christmas holiday traffic killed more than 300 persons.

The toll was 301 for the 48-hour period from midnight Monday to midnight Christmas Day (local time).

Fatalities were heaviest during the actual holiday, Wednesday. Tuesday's toll at midnight, EST, had reached 83, and by midnight on the West Coast it was 100. More than two-thirds of the deaths were counted on Christmas Day.

The number of fatalities Christmas Day was far above the average of traffic deaths during the first 10 months this year and during last year's record toll of 40,900. The 10-month total was 35,170, an average of about 115 deaths daily compared to last year's daily average of 112.

The holiday deaths compared with a total of 170 highway fatalities counted by The Associated Press during a 48-hour non-holiday period from 12:01 a.m. Tuesday, Dec. 10, to 12:01 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 12.

Greece Asks NATO Council In Paris To Discuss Crisis

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Britain ordered more troops to Cyprus today as a conflict between the Greek Cypriot and Turkish minority threatened to embroil NATO allies Greece and Turkey in open conflict.

Greece asked for an extraordinary session in Paris of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's permanent council to discuss the crisis. Informed sources in Paris said the council met secretly Wednesday. The Cyprus government already has sent a complaint to the United Nations.

The Turkish government ordered two jet fighters to make warning flights over Cyprus Christmas Day after accusing Greek Cypriots of massacring Turkish Cypriots in communal fighting that has been raging since last Saturday.

Then as the fighting died down to sporadic firing, the office of President Makarios, leader of the Greek Cypriot community, asserted six Turkish navy vessels had taken up positions off Cyprus.

President Cemal Gursel of Turkey also expressed grave concern, accused the Greek Cypriots of a massacre, and appealed to President Johnson and other world leaders to intervene.

The situation was being watched closely in both London and Washington. Greece and Turkey, long at odds over Cyprus, guard the Far Eastern flank of the Atlantic Alliance.

Johnson was watching developments from his Texas ranch. Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home of Britain interrupted a Christmas vacation to return to London.

What prompted Makarios to send a complaint to the U. N. Security Council was the flight of the Turkish jets and the movement of some of Turkey's 650-man garrison on Cyprus into the Turkish Cypriot quarter of this capital.

Rockefeller Drops Attacks On Goldwater

Resumes Campaign With Jan. 3 Talk In Portsmouth, N.H.

The sweeping political changes brought about by the probability that President Johnson will head the 1964 Democratic ticket are expected to be reflected in altered campaign tactics by Rockefeller.

In the period preceding Kennedy's death, Rockefeller gave about equal time to attacking Goldwater for his conservative views and to lambasting Kennedy for what the governor said was the President's failure to live up to his 1960 promises on civil rights, action to end unemployment and to get the country moving faster economically.

Rockefeller was said by associates to be planning in the Portsmouth speech to lay down in broad terms the reasons he is running for the nomination and what he would hope to do if he were elected president.

The decision to abandon attacks on Goldwater apparently stems from the belief in the Rockefeller camp that the Arizona senator has become a less attractive candidate against Johnson than he would have been against Kennedy.

The Rockefeller people are making no claims that the governor has passed Goldwater in popular support among Republicans. But they think the field is now wide open and there would not be much profit in continuing to single out one man as a target among many who may be contenders for the nomination.

This could change, of course, if the March 10 New Hampshire primary narrows to a Rockefeller-Goldwater contest.

Rockefeller's associates don't believe there is much political mileage in attacking Johnson at this point. That can come later, after the new President has begun to make his own record.

Erhard Due For Meeting With Johnson

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Ludwig Erhard heads for his meeting with President Johnson bolstered by a stronger voice in world affairs, thanks to a solution of the Common Market crisis. This was his first big test as West Germany's new leader.

Erhard is flying from Bonn Friday for a weekend at the Johnson ranch in Texas and the first full-scale talks since the chancellor and the President took office.

Long famous as the author of West German's post-war economic boom, Erhard, 66, succeeded former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer Oct. 16 under a cloud of doubt. Adenauer called his former economic minister naive politically.

But Erhard made a strong start in foreign affairs by standing up to the formidable French president, Charles de Gaulle, on the eve of the West German leader's trip to the United States.

De Gaulle's stand imperiled the Common Market experiment for West Germany and the four other member nations—Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Erhard stubbornly refused to

Red Guards Kill East Berlin Boy

BERLIN (AP)—About 50,000 West Berliners crossed into East Berlin by noon today despite the Christmas Day killing of a young East German who tried to escape over the Berlin wall.

"The Christmas murder on the Berlin wall overshadows our joy at the Christmas meeting in the city," said West Germany's minister for all-German affairs, Erich Mende.

But with the day after Christmas also a holiday, the flow of visitors to relatives in the Communist sector continued at flood tide. When the gates opened at 6 a.m., the line was two blocks long at one crossing point.

There was no change in the friendly attitude of East German guards, reported under orders to "keep smiling" when the 16-day visiting period began last week by agreement between the West Berlin city government and East Germany's Red regime.

"But now you see their real face," a young Red Cross worker on duty at a crossing point said. "Here they smile and there they shoot."

Less than a mile from the Oberbaum Bridge control point an East German guard shot Paul Schulz, 18, in the back Wednesday as he sat entangled in barbed wire atop the concrete wall.

As loudspeakers blared Christmas music from the East German radio, the wounded youth toppled from the 9-foot wall into the arms of a West Berlin policeman. A companion, also 18, made it safely to the West, but Schulz died six hours later in a West Berlin hospital.

In allowing visits by West Berliners to their relatives in the East, the Communists made no relaxation in their ban on East Berliners going the other way.

Chiristmas Day traffic through the wall Wednesday was a record. Officials estimated more than 65,000 West Berliners crossed over.

The President's guest today was former Gov. Buford Ellington of Tennessee. Johnson said he wanted to "get his counsel on a number of national problems." These were not specified, and there was speculation that the Democratic politician may be in line for a federal post.

Johnson also was keeping in touch with the explosive situation in Cyprus, where fighting has erupted between Turks and Greeks. Developments on the island prompted two or three telephone conferences Wednesday with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The pressure of official business during the holiday stay at the LBJ ranch was evidenced, too, by a new directive in which Johnson ordered a cutback in federal jobs within the next 18 months.

In discussing Cyprus with newsmen, Johnson said:

"We have a situation developing there and we are watching it very carefully."

Aides reported that Johnson strongly supported efforts by the British, Greek and Turkish governments to stabilize the situation.

In ordering a cut in the federal pay roll, Johnson told agency heads:

"Even though nothing like this has happened in the last decade, I am still unconvinced that we are getting the maximum possible output per employe. I believe we can do better."

He said every department and agency would get personnel ceilings which "are not to be exceeded without my explicit approval."

Pay rolls are to be cut, if only slightly, in two stages—by next

U.S. government officials have announced a Communist radio broadcast heard in Viet Nam reports Sgt. George Smith of Chester, captured in a Viet Cong attack near Saigon Nov. 24, is alive and being treated well.

A telegram from Washington was received Tuesday night by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Potts, 255 Carolina Ave., Chester, providing a special Christmas Eve gift to the couple.

Sgt. Smith is one of four Americans first listed as missing after the assault on the camp at Hiep Hoa 18 miles west of Saigon in which over 30 Viet Nam soldiers were killed.

Subsequent reports verified the sergeant was seen leaving the camp under guard, with a "slight" leg wound and with his hands tied.

The telegram received Tuesday from Maj. Gen. J. C. Lambert, Adjutant General's Office, said a Communist broadcast heard last Friday reported the four captured Americans were prisoners.

Gen. Lambert said information was received from the U.S. Ambassador in Viet Nam concerning the broadcast which quoted a short letter allegedly written by the prisoners.

Gen. Lambert's telegram reported — "In it (the purported letter) they stated they were being treated well, fed well, receiving attention and hoping to be released soon." The broadcaster listed the name, rank and correct serial number of Sgt. Smith, the telegram reported.

Gen. Lambert wrote, "We point out this information came to the attention of the ambassador from the Communists, and cannot be verified, although the report is factual in name, serial number and date of capture."

Potts said the telegram truly brightened the family holiday—they had not even put up a Christmas tree because of the great concern for the life of their son.

The sergeant, a medical aid man with a Special Forces team, was wounded in July shortly after he arrived at the Saigon airport, which was attacked by Viet Cong units.

Today's 'Exchange Day'

City Has Good Christmas As Holiday Passes Quietly

Described generally as a "good Christmas," East Liverpool's holiday passed quietly with ideal weather, well - attended church services and few mishaps.

Temperatures remained crisp throughout the day with the snow from Monday's storm providing the White Yule that made for cheerful family gatherings. And the needy were not forgotten.

Downtown stores meanwhile girded for "Exchange Day," when gift recipients traditionally trade presents for more suitable sizes, colors or tastes.

The city had several minor traffic mishaps but in the Tri-State area death did not take a holiday as a Toronto child and a Salem pedestrian were killed by cars.

Christmas Eve candlelight services and Midnight Masses were held in churches of the area and many attended Christmas morning services also.

About 225 persons were reported at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, over 400 at the First Baptist Church and 100 at the Boyce Methodist Church.

About 50 attended the final performance of the outdoor Christmas pageant Christmas Eve at the Riverside United Presbyterian Church at Wellsville.

Refreshments were served afterwards. The play, featuring live actors and animals, was presented two other nights.

Maj. William Hathorn of the Salvation Army reported that about 155 Christmas baskets were distributed and about 1,000 new toys and 1,000 used toys were given to young people of needy families.

Toys, candy and apples were distributed to the youngsters by lodge members and wives. Names of children are obtained from the school nurse and teachers who were then issued tickets. The project cost the lodge $1,300. G. W. Laughlin

City Has Lone Birth Occurring On Holiday

Dr. Stork elbowed his way past Santa Claus Wednesday and deposited a baby daughter under a LaCroft couple's Christmas tree in the only holiday birth in local hospitals.

The infant, born to Mr. and Mrs. Willis Lapham will in later years probably face the usual gifts mixup that occurs for persons with birthday anniversaries on Dec. 25.

Melting Period Due, Then Colder, Flurries

Sunny skies and mounting temperatures were expected to start melting the snow accumulation today but the Ohio weatherman said it will be cold again tonight and Friday.

The mercury was due to climb into the low 40's for the mildest weather in two weeks with occasional light snow tonight, possibly mixed with rain, then a dip into the sub - freezing range of 20 to 25 degrees.

The downtown had a chilly 28 at 6 a. m. and the temperature climbed 2 degrees in an hour and may touch 43 this afternoon. Ice from the recent zero - cold still was flowing in the Ohio River, but it was pretty well broken up by towboat traffic.

Fire Kills 12 Children In One Family

By The Associated Press

Fire killed 12 children in the Walter Johnson family in Charleston, S.C.—the worst of the nation's Christmas fires.

A family of six died in a house fire in Spring Lake, Mich.

An exploding oil heater was blamed for the deaths of the 12 in Charleston, eight boys and four girls, aged 8 months to 20 years.

The victims were all in one bedroom at the top of the stairs. Johnson, 51, was critically burned trying to save them. Mrs. Johnson, 47, and a son, Nathaniel, 16, escaped.

Authorities said Johnson and a friend were brightening the frame house for the holiday with a new linoleum floor and apparently spilled oil from the heater by accidentally tipping it. The explosion followed.

Foreign Policy At Johnson City

The new Chancellor of West Germany had been given full marks for his part in creating the economic miracle of post-World War Germany, but it was believed that he found politics distasteful and had little talent for it. This estimate may still prove true, but not for want of firmness.

His first foreign visit was to Paris. There he said that in any choice between the United States and France he would side with the United States. He is not about to play the pudgy stooge of French President Charles de Gaulle.

Chancellor Erhard was the first chief of government to announce he would attend the funeral of John F. Kennedy. All his acts since his accession on Oct. 16 indicate his intention to make Germany the most cooperative of U.S. allies.

AS HE AND President Johnson get together in "the friendly atmosphere" of the Johnson ranch near Johnson City, Texas, it is worth recalling Erhard's press conference of Dec. 3, his first general meeting with newspapermen after becoming Chancellor.

He said then that he had told Gen. de Gaulle that Germany has "the greatest respect for the French force de frappe, but that we believe we would be more secure if alongside the French nuclear force we also continue to be defended by American nuclear power."

He said his government's foremost goal was to help end the differences between France and the United States. A spokesman later explained that when the chancellor said chances for this had "improved" since the death of President Kennedy he meant the assassination had demonstrated the need for solidarity within the Western alliance.

Erhard is now engaged in a contest of wills with De Gaulle over European Common Market agricultural policy.

THE PRESIDENT military agreement with West Germany, reaffirmed by a meeting earlier this month of Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara with Defense Minister Kai-Uwe von Hassel, calls for an outlay by the Federal Republic on American weapons and training of $1.3 billion over 1963-64.

Germany purchases in the 1963 calendar year will total nearly $600 million. Last year, the outlay was $710 million.

These sums help to offset the cost of keeping U.S. troops in Germany and help to alleviate the U.S. balance of payments problem.

However firm the U.S.-German alliance, one question must be faced with unblinking candor. How long will West Germany remain content with a nuclear status that looks to be inferior to that of Britain—or France?

The Odds On Judgment

A militant group of Ohioans trying for years to give 18-year-olds the right to vote will be cheered by one recommendation in a report by the President's Commission on Registration and Voting. We're not enthused.

In its three-part report, the commission urges all states to consider dropping the minimum voting age to 18 and called for eliminating poll taxes and literacy tests as voting qualifications.

Well, Ohio doesn't have poll taxes or literacy tests to worry about, and, as far as we're concerned, it doesn't need a lower minimum voting age, either.

WE THOUGHT we'd heard all the arguments for lowering the voting age, but the presidential commission has tossed us a new one.

The major argument, it says, is that by the time young people are 21, they are "so far removed from the stimulation of the educational process that their interest in public affairs has waned."

Oh? Does that mean that our educational process is so faulty its effect on students is lost after a few short years?

If that's the case, why not let every high school freshman with a civics course under his belt walk up to the ballot box while everything is fresh in his mind?

If mature, independent thinking is part of intelligent voting, and we think it is, there is even reason to wonder whether the voting age shouldn't be raised a couple of years.

WE'RE CERTAIN many 18-year-olds and a lot of 21-year-olds, too, are still in the grips of a cycle that runs from blind obedience to parental control, through rebellion and "free" thinking, ending, ideally, at mature judgment.

True, many never make it, but the odds get better with age. Judgment is the only bonus there is for growing older. Not that everybody gets the bonus, understand, but only that everybody has a chance to get it.

While The Money Rolls In

No one ever has come to close enough grips with reality to promote a post-season football "Money Bowl," though there is a Sugar Bowl.

Perhaps calling one contest a "Money Bowl" would be offensive exploitation of the obvious. Bowl games are big business, an established fixture of big-time collegiate football, as well as big-time professional football. They are as commercial as cash registers.

What the bowls amount to is the payoff for the top teams—the football equivalent of the World Series in baseball. A college team successful enough to draw a bowl bid can cover its deficits for a so-so season in one post-season game. A team blessed with a 100,000-seat stadium of its own and a devoted following can turn a handsome profit with a bowl bid.

THE WONDERFUL part about it is the way everybody ends up happy, better off and eager for another football season and another potential bowl bid.

The football players have had an all-expenses-paid vacation.

Their colleges have had the kind of saturation publicity money can't buy.

Their alumni have had a chance to strut with pride.

Athletic departments have had a windfall of wealth.

Promoters have turned an honest buck, television sponsors have whooped it up for their product and uncounted millions of TV spectators have had "free seats."

Most important of all, of course, on-the-site spectators have had a chance to proclaim status by obtaining tickets to the big game, at prices ranging steeply upward from $5 a ticket.

IT ALL BEGAN away back in 1902 when Michigan beat Stanford 49-0 in the first Rose Bowl game.

Where it will end nobody knows—but while the money rolls in nobody will care.

Sounds Like Fun

By Truman Twill

I wonder if I could manage an old-time belly-slammer.

My last slammer was 18 years ago. In my honest opinion, I handled it with grace and verve.

In my honest opinion, I still could. What's 18 more years?

But I wonder. . .

Would I have the nerve to make the long run, throw down the sled and slam down on it, keeping the feet in position to drag right or left as necessity might dictate?

Could I stand the snow flying up in my face and sifting into my eyes? Was it as much fun as I think it was? Or was it fun only because it was done in childhood?

I THINK it would be as much fun as ever. Grown men ride bobsleds and toboggans. Why shouldn't a grown man ride a handsled down a hill?

In our town there was no place to skate. The big lakes weren't safe unless they froze deep, and when they froze deep the ice-cutters took over and spoiled them for skating.

There were no bobsled runs, either. It was a handsled town. I was one of the lucky kids. I had a genuine Flexible Flyer, trade name registered. My belly-slamming was spectacular. I was king of Yeen's Hill.

Most sleds at that time were the wooden relics of preceding generations—high, cumbersome things that tipped over easily and weren't designed for belly-slamming. They were too short.

With a Flexible Flyer, moreover, there was steering action. That was the "flexibility"; the sled had a handlebar that wiggled—not much but some.

I WONDER how it would be. . . .

There are two Flexible Flyers hanging in the barn. Their runners would have to be smoothed down after years of rust and dirt. But they never were used hard by their owners, because there were all those years when it scarcely snowed enough to justify ownership of a snow shovel.

I wonder. . .

It would be an interesting experiment—the long run, the climactic spurt, the throwing down of the sled—and bam!

Come to think of it, maybe the lady of the house could be talked into coming out for the Big One where the girl slams down first—biffo!—then boy runs alongside, adding momentum, and finally doing a double-decker for the death-defying ride.

How about that, girlie? Sounds like fun, mmh?

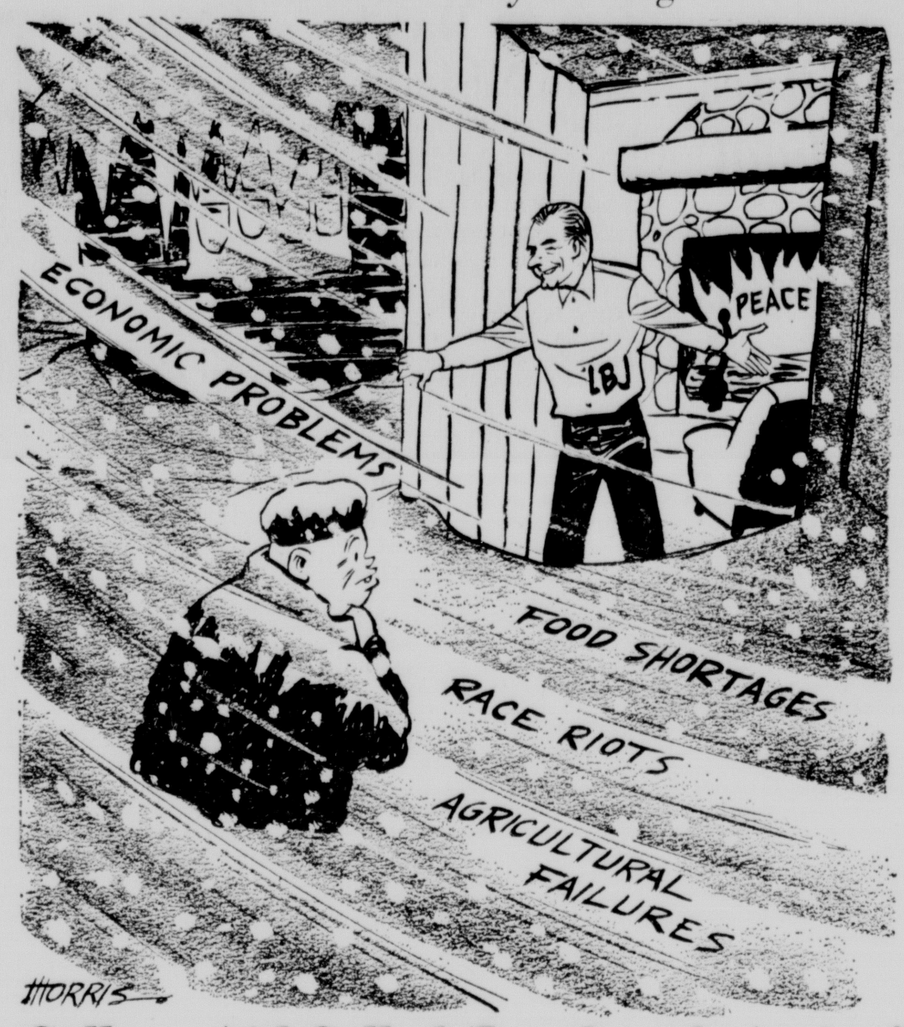
Only about one-tenth of the earth's surface is suitable for agriculture — and yet the arable areas produce food for three billion people.

Kingman Reef, about 1,000 miles south of Hawaii, is the smallest land of U. S. sovereignty. It is 150 feet long by 120 feet wide.

The first U. S. president to be inaugurated on Jan. 20 was Franklin D. Roosevelt. Prior to that, inauguration day was March 4.

About 2.3 per cent of adult American women today are divorced — a percentage six times higher than about 60 years ago.

Must Look Pretty Inviting



College Aid Called 'Landmark Action'

By Joseph Michalak

Everybody in the college community is talking about the $1.2 billion college-construction bill passed by the Senate Dec. 12. But almost no one knows yet what to do about it. In fact, not too many college officials know exactly what's in the measure, which was acted on rather suddenly with last minute compromises between House and Senate versions.

However, no one interviewed subsequently tended to disagree with this assertion by Dr. Logan Wilson, president of the American Council on Education: "It's a landmark legislation, almost on a par with the Morrill Act of 100 years ago," which led to the creation of most of the country's leading state universities through land grants.

The American Council, with more than 1,000 member colleges, is the most influential organization for higher education in the country.

IT LOBBIED mightily through three separate sessions of the Congress to get the bill approved.

"I don't believe there is any opposition in the college community to the bill," Dr. Wilson said in his Washington office.

"Most of the leaders welcome it.

"It was the first time," he continued, "that the Congress moved to provide federal aid to all institutions of higher education." This includes about 700 church-related institutions.

Dr. Wilson conceded that all of the nation's 2,100 colleges and universities come under the provisions will mean that the money involved will have to be spread a little thin. Also, that some college presidents might tend to get "a little predatory" about making bids for the money.

The three-year measure authorizes $230 million in grants yearly ($100 million for four-year colleges and private junior colleges and $50 million for two-year public junior and technical institutes plus $120 million in low-interest, 50-year loans for undergraduate construction projects.

In addition, there will be $25 million available for graduate schools the first year and $60 million for each of the second and third years.

A complicated formula is then applied to determine how much money each state gets. High school, as well as college enrollment figures, count heavily. Institutions will then make application for funds for specific projects and some state agency will sort them out into a priority list.

All of the programs will be on a matching basis — meaning that the federal government will put up no more than a third of the money for four-year colleges and graduate centers, through as much as 40 per cent for the two-year colleges.

THE GRANTS will be distributed by the states, on the approval of the U.S. Office of Education, and earmarked for libraries and other "specific projects" such as laboratories and classroom buildings devoted to the natural and physical sciences, engineering, mathematic and foreign languages. (This is in addition to a previously passed measure to aid medical schools.)

Dr. Wilson pointed out that under the grants portions of the new bill there were a dozen states that would be entitled to less than a million dollars yearly.

The biggest beneficiary will be California, which will be able to distribute more than $20.6 million among its growing number of colleges.

New York State is next in line with almost $19 million for its 200 colleges. If divided equally, that would be only $91,000 yearly for each of them. Not too many bricks and mortar can be put together for that kind of money.

DR. WILSON predicted that most of the available money would go to publicly supported institutions, primarily because the bill specifically supports efforts at expension to meet the rising number of college enrollees rather than efforts at educational improvement.

"Most of the expanding in recent years," he noted, "has been done by public colleges, which have found it easier to raise money than private institutions."

Dr. Wilson also said there was "no doubt" that the junior-college movement would be greatly accelerated" because of the special appropriations.

Oddly enough, Dr. Wilson stressed that the expected preference for public construction would tend to "preserve the independence" of the private colleges.

"The fact," he said, "that so much money will be rolling into the public institutions for expansion will mean that private colleges will be under less pressure to expand." This he said would enable them to put available funds to maintaining quality of program. "The public institutions," he said, "need such competition."

Streaking Comets

The awesome sight of a comet streaking across the heavens has terrified and intrigued men for centuries.

The sudden appearance of comets has caused kings to abdicate, armies to halt in battle and whole populations to fear the end of the earth. A 12th-century historian pictured one comet as "a twisting serpent, writhing and coiling back on itself. . .lusting for human blood".

Even in the enlightened 20th century, an enterprising salesman did a brisk business with a line of "comet pills", guaranteed to protect against the poisons supposedly emitted by Halley's comet during its return in 1910.

The facts about comets are even stranger than the fancies. To begin with, comets are essentially dirty snowballs. They probably are composed of the ices of water, methane and ammonia, with a sprinkling of space dust.

As many as 100 billion of these dark, frosty bodies whirl about in an enormous, beltlike cloud some 50,000 to 100,000 astronomical units from the sun (one unit is the average distance between earth and sun).

Fred L. Whipple, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., recently theorized that a closer belt of less visible comets exists some four billion miles from the sun. But the spectacular comets seen on the earth arrive from the distant layer.

Party Responsibility

By David Lawrence

Confusion Will Remain Unless There's Change

Who is fundamentally to blame for the mess in Congress? The Republicans? The Democrats? The administration in power? Or the people themselves?

David Lawrence

The disarray is primarily due to the absence of party responsibility in the national legislative body. There is no way at present for the people to express their will on a major issue at the time it arises.

The foreign aid program is the ostensible cause of the confusion which last week stalled the adjournment of Congress but something deeper is involved. It's the failure of the American system to permit the people a voice at the moment when their opinion and guidance should be formally recorded.

All the recent talk about merely amending the rules of procedure in the committees of Congress is meaningless because it doesn't go to the root of the problem.

Once upon a time in American history—as recently as 50 years ago—there was party responsibility. A party caucus vote binding on its participants was customary.

Today each member of a political party in Congress is a law unto himself. He's subject to no party discipline. Even if he were, however, there is no immediate opportunity for the people to decide who is right or wrong. The people seemingly are outsiders—bewildered bystanders. They are told that in America the people rule—but this sometimes seems more a theory than a fact.

The American people would probably agree to the basic principle involved in foreign aid. But they wouldn't agree that the country aided could thereby ignore its own responsibilities.

THE AMERICAN people, if a referendum were held today, doubtless would vote overwhelmingly against allowing government credit facilities to be used to finance sales of wheat to the Soviet government. Just a little more than a year ago that same government in Moscow was financing the construction of missile bases in Cuba with the avowed purpose of using such bases to attack the lives and property of the American people. Has the leopard changed his spots so quickly?

Today there is a split in each of the two major parties in Congress. Why, it may be asked, are there, in effect, four blocs? Why, to be sure, is the Democratic party in particular split so badly in both houses of Congress? One reason is related to differences on economic issues. The other involves a surrender to political expediency by the Northern Democrats in an effort to attract the Negro vote.

Persistent attempts to try to change human nature by a process of legislative coercion is, moreover, beginning to split the Democratic Party among the voters in the North, too.

An argument can be made, of course, on both sides of the controversy over civil rights, but what matters is that the American people have never been given a chance to vote on this issue in a special election for members of Congress. Nor is there today a system that establishes party responsibility even when a regular election has been held every two years.

THE DIVISION in the Democratic party between conservatives and liberals on economic and fiscal issues has its parallel in the Republican party in Congress, but the Democratic party just now has almost a two-thirds majority in both houses and the man in the White House is one of its own members. Theoretically, therefore, the majority party should have unity in its ranks.

Were it not for the vexatious civil rights issue, there probably wouldn't be such a bitter fight over foreign aid. This is not because these two subjects have any remote relationship to each other but because a Southern member of Congress can have a field day on foreign aid and please his constituents merely by opposing an administration that is getting ready to ram down the throats of the people of his district or state a public accommodations bill whereby the federal government would dictate to a businessman with what customers he must deal.

Even such a tough issue as civil rights would be resolved by the people if they had a chance to vote on a national basis for members of Congress when a stalemate on such a major question develops in legislative procedures. The mere threat of a general election often would be enough to produce a majority in Congress that would act expeditiously.

TODAY, if the people had their way, they would cut the foreign aid bill even more than it was reduced recently by congressional committee recommendation. They would, of course, refuse to authorize the lending of government money directly or indirectly to help the Soviet imperialists to wage war in Cuba or anywhere else against the free world.

It's easy enough to blame one faction or another in Congress or to argue that what is needed is modernization of the committee rules but as long as America has a system of irresponsible government instead of a system of responsible government and party responsibility—such as prevails in some other parts of the free world—more and more of the same kind of mess and confusion that arose in the last few days in Congress will be witnessed in our own country.

Fine Christmas Present

By J. W. Davis

WASHINGTON

One of the finest Christmas presents America ever received was the gift of a ragged and cold little band of fighting men.

It was George Washington's crossing of the Delaware River on Christmas night of 1776. The surprise maneuver, winning over frightful handicaps, led to the rout of Hessian troops at the Battle of Trenton and was a major turning point in the War for Independence.

A few days before the crossing, Washington had written that "I fear the game is nearly up." Many of his men had gone home discouraged. Those who remained, about 2,500, were poorly clothed. Some had no shoes.

The passage of the river was a bitter, tough job through floating ice, on ore barges and small boats. Ashore, the Americans had to march through snow and sleet but all that, Washington wrote later, "did not in the least abate their ardor."

"When they came to the charge each seemed to vie with the other in pressing forward."

The charge was along two roads. It scattered Hessian outposts and burst upon the main enemy body before it could form effectively.

The Hessian general was mortally wounded, his men had no way open to retreat and they quickly surrendered.

From the standpoint of numbers involved, the fight was hardly more than a skirmish. Washington's little force captured about 950 prisoners. The Hessian dead were estimated at between 20 and 30. American casualties were four wounded.

But the results were magnificent, out of all proportion to size. A bright hope and a new determination for independence were born in that Christmas victory.

The Hessians probably didn't have their heart in the battle. They were only payroll soldiers, hired by the English king, not free men fighting for a cause.

And here's a footnote to history—

They brought us the Christmas tree.

ain, Greece and Turkey met with Makarios and decided to put British, Greek and Turkish forces in Cyprus under a unified command headed by a Briton, a communique announced.

There are about 10,000 British servicemen on Cyprus, stationed here as in the case of the Greek and Turkish garrisons under the treaty of 1960 making Cyprus an independent member of the British Commonwealth.

Johnson told newsmen at his Texas ranch he had conferred by telephone with Secretary of State Dean Rusk two or three times on the situation.

"We have a situation developing there and we are watching it very carefully," Johnson said. "We have 1,700 citizens on that Island."

State Department sources said in Washington no evacuation orders have been issued to U.S. citizens, but Americans in outlying areas have been advised to move to more centrally located points in case evacuation is deemed advisable.

The fighting arose from Turkish opposition to Makarios' proposals to amend the Cyprus constitution. The Turks claim the amendments would weaken their rights.

accept a unified agricultural policy De Gaulle wants until the French president made concessions. Erhard pressured De Gaulle into supporting a U.S.-favored liberal approach on the coming international tariff negotiations in Geneva.

It was Monday, after a prolonged foreign ministers' conference in Brussels. De Gaulle agreed to the joint tariff stand. Erhard made concessions in farm policy.

Full Set Of Utensils Slated For Prisoners

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Prisoners at Kentucky's two state reformatories will be able to eat their meals with a full set of utensils soon.

In the past, prison officials have refused to permit prisoners to use knives and forks at the table because of the security risk.

Corrections Commissioner Joseph G. Cannon, who took over the job recently, says there is little risk and has ordered knives and forks on the tables. It helps prisoners maintain human dignity, he says.

Ohio Traffic Fatal To 12 Over Holiday

By The Associated Press

Christmas night traffic accidents pushed Ohio's holiday highway death toll over the number of dead predicted by state highway officials.

At least 11 deaths due to traffic accidents during the 48-hour Christmas holiday period were reported to The Associated Press. Seven of the victims were pedestrians.

Highway officials had predicted that 10 would die on the state's roads and highways during the holiday period which began at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday and ended at 12:01 a.m. today.

Fairly poor driving conditons were general during the two-day holiday. The Highway Patrol said most of the state's highways were partly snow-covered and slippery in spots.

During a comparable but non-holiday period two weeks ago, six persons died in traffic accidents in Ohio.

The fatalities:

Tuesday

James R. Nicholson, 29, Austintown Township near Youngstown, struck by two cars as he walked, facing traffic, four feet from the curb a block from his home.

Wednesday

John Chester Scarborough, 41, Vandalia, when his car went out of control on U. S. 25 and struck the Miami River bridge at Dayton's northern city limits.

Barbara Sparrow, 22, Cleveland, when the car she was in collided with another on Cleveland's East Side.

Johnnie Fanning, 24, Cleveland, when he drove his auto over a curb in Cleveland and struck a utility pole.

Walter Birley, 22, near Franklin, struck by a car while walking along or across old U. S. 25 in Warren County near his trailer home.

Mrs. Ruth Vacearielio, 42, Cincinnati, struck by a car as she and her husband crossed a street in Cincinnati.

Clarence Taylor, 50, Salem, of injuries suffered Tuesday night when he was struck by a hit-skip motorist just inside the Salem city limits.

Dennis Vingoe, 16, Cuyahoga Falls, when the car he was in struck a utility pole in Cuyahoga Falls.

Robert H. Grey, 27, North Madison, struck by a car as he walked along U. S. 20 between Painesville and North Madison en route to his home after Christmas dinner in Painesville.

Cruiser Eyed At Salineville

SALINEVILLE — Re-advertising for bids for leasing or purchase of a police cruiser was authorized by Council in a year-end session Monday night.

Previous bids were rejected because the offers were not specific enough, and Council subsequently ordered more detailed specifications prepared.

The meeting marked the end of the terms for Councilmen Orval Tolson and Mrs. Mary Sweeney. Howard Ahlborn and Gene Jarvis, Councilmen-elect, will begin duties at the organization meeting Jan. 6.

The mayor meanwhile urged all residents to clear ice and snow from sidewalks, because many walks are hazardous. He pointed out a village ordinance provides for such cleaning.

He also asked that motorists not park cars along Main St. after midnight after any snowfall for the rest of the winter, in order to facilitate snow removal.

Salineville Woman's Auto Hit By Another

SALINEVILLE — Moderate damage resulted from a collision between cars operated by Miss Myrtle Strabley of E. Main St. and David Lee Gardner, 22, of Lakewood on Jefferson St. this morning at 8:25 a. m., Police Chief Roy Lewis reported.

Miss Strabley had driven out from the St. Patrick's Catholic Church parking lot when her auto was rammed in the side by Gardner's eastbound auto.

Chief Lewis said the windshield of Garner's auto was partially covered with ice. Neither driver was injured, he added, although Miss Strabley, village treasurer and longtime correspondent for The Review, was shaken.

Soviets Claim Device 'Finds' Kidney Stones

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet scientists claim to have developed a foolproof method of locating kidney stones by using a "mine detector" type of apparatus.

The instrument, called an ultrasonic flaw detector, has until now been used to find flaws in metal.

But medical scientists have found that it works just as effectively on the human body.

The machine radiates an ultrasonic beam into the exposed kidney and locates a kidney stone with absolute precision.

Soviet surgeons claim to have carried out several dozen operations using the apparatus — each time successfully.

The instrument is brought into use after surgeons have exposed the kidney. It is then brought into use like a wartime mine detector — moved inch by inch over the kidney until a signal appears pinpointing the offending kidney stone.

The surgeon then goes to work.

Only 4 States Use Term Commonwealth

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Only four states, Kentucky, Virginia, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, use the term "commonwealth" on official documents and the like.

The expression dates back to Oliver Cromwell who created the Commonwealth of States or Colonies of Great Britain.

Virginia, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts were commonwealths of Great Britain before the Revolutionary War and incorporated the word into their names when they separated from the mother country.

Kentucky, once a part of Virginia, retained the term "commonwealth" when it became the 15th state in 1792.

Little Change Noted At Integrated Motels

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — None of 20 integrated motels and hotels in Kentucky reports any significant number of Negro customers, according to the state Commission on Human Rights.

Managers in seven cities and towns were contacted. "When questioned concerning their policy of serving without regard to race, all of the managers seemed to be satisfied with the way the policy had worked out in general," the commission said.

County Has 4 Auto Mishaps

Slippery roads and snow drifts were the bane of holiday drivers, according to the Ohio Highway Patrol at Lisbon, which reported four area mishaps Tuesday night and Wednesday.

Gary Ray Steele, 16, of 918 Columbia Ave. escaped injury Wednesday night when his car went off Campground Rd. and struck a utility pole a half mile north of Route 7.

Officers said he was driving south when the mishap occurred at 11:30 p. m. Damage to the auto was moderate. He was cited to traffic court at Lisbon.

John Robert Sowards, 22, of Lisbon R. D. 3 was cited after his truck struck a car stuck in snow and another car helping the disabled auto on Route 164 Tuesday night about 8:10.

A car operated by James Edward Orr, 31, of 109 E. Main St., Salineville, became stuck in snow along Route 164 about 1.7 miles north of Route 39, and Allen Gilbert Everhart, 49, of Salineville R. D. 1 stopped to aid him.

Sowards' pickup truck went off the roadway and hit both vehicles, officers said. He was charged with speed in excess of safe road conditions. He was to be treated by his family physician for lacerations and abrasions of the knees.

A truck operated by William H. Nixon, 32, of Wellsville R.D. 1 became stuck in snow in a wheat field of Walter McCaskey of Lisbon R. D. 3 when Nixon attempted to turn around after he was unable to ascend a hill on Township Rd. 907 about two miles south of Elkton Tuesday.

James Campbell, 30, of Salem R. D. 3, reported an oncoming auto sideswiped his car on Route 558 a mile south of Salem Wednesday at 12:55 a.m., but failed to halt.

Mass To Be Saturday For Cleveland Pastor

CLEVELAND (AP)—A solem pontifical high Mass will be celebrated in St. Ignatius Catholic Church Saturday for the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Albert J. Murphy, pastor of the church since 1950. He died in St. John Hospital Wednesday.

Ohio Jobless Claims Take Another Jump

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Both new and continuing claims for unemployment compensation showed increases in the week ended Dec. 14 to 23,325, and continuing claims of those unemployed one week or more increased from 82,849 to 89,540.

In December of last year, there was an average of 22,548 new claims on file each week, and an average of 107,095 continuing claims.

Ship

man crew broke down because of language difficulties. To M. R. Lovat of London the babbling was disgraceful — "the crew screamed their head off for five solid hours."

Smoke prevented the lowering of four boats. Others swamped in the swells. When the last boat was away, about 80 passengers and 40 crew members were still aboard. They huddled on the after deck all night, but as flames spread aft, they were ordered over the side. Gerd Punkrope, a purser, was in this group. He said most of those who perished probably were in it, too.

Last to leave was the captain. One passenger said she saw him wandering around with tears streaming down his face. The master of a Belgian freighter saw the captain pacing alone on the tilting deck and sent a boat to pick him up.

The flames that killed the Lakonia saved her passengers. Said Capt. Jose Barrere of the Argentine freighter Salta: "We got the wrong position and could have missed the Lakonia. But the fire guided us in like a lighthouse."

The Salta was the heroine of the sea drama. First on the scene, she picked up 475 survivors.

As dawn broke Monday, the Atlantic waters were crowded with rescue ships. The Lakonia was a drifting, burning ghost ship, a magnet for salvage tugs.

The British aircraft carrier Centaur put an engineer board by helicopter. He found the quarterdeck and two decks below burned away, and the superstructure caved in amidships. But the hull seemed sound and the ship ready for a refit.

The Lakonia's owners announced today that 896 persons were known to have been saved from the disaster. 89 were known dead and 42 still were not accounted for. This added to 1,027, in contrast to previous reports that said 1,036 were aboard the ship.

A spokesman for the line said some crew members had not turned up for the sailing from Southampton Dec. 19.

Insurance Man, 82, Scoffs At Retirement

He's been in the business 50 years and during that time has placed more than $14 million of life insurance.

"There's no age ceiling for the agent who keeps actively mentally and physically," he says.

Pretty Hot Debate

SOUTH MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Dade County Commissioner Arthur Patten didn't realize how warmly he was debating proposed amendments at a Chamber of Commerce meeting until the microphone began smoking. The debate was interrupted while the trouble was repaired.

Black Bottom Pie Pleases Entire Family

Pie, the favorite American dessert, originated in ancient Greece according to legend.

As the popularity of pie grew in America each section of the country perfected its own specialty — some using fruits while others used creams, nuts and rich fillings.

Renowned on the West Coast and well - loved all over the country as well is Black Bottom Pie, which combines creamy chocolate with rum-flavored layers of filling to give you a deliciously - smooth richly - crusted pie. Garnished with chocolate curls, it is a perfect pie for evenings whether it is served after dinner or later in the evening.

BLACK BOTTOM PIE

1 stick instant mixing pie crust mix
1 pkg. (8 oz.)) cream cheese
1 can (15 oz.) sweetened condensed milk
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
2 egg whites
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
¼ cup sugar
1 sq. unsweetened chocolate (1 oz.)
1 tsp. rum flavoring

Prepare 9" baked pie shell as directed on pie crust mix package. Whip the softened cream cheese until light and fluffy; gradually beat in sweetened condensed milk and egg yolks until well blended.

Cook over low heat until mixture begins to thicken. Cool slightly. Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until frothy. Gradually beat in sugar; continue beating until stiff and glossy. Fold into cooled milk mixture.

Melt chocolate; fold into 1½ cups of milk mixture; spread on bottom of cooled pie shell. Fold rum flavoring into remaining milk mixture; spread over chocolate layer. Garnish pie with shaved chocolate. Chill.

Does Sensible Thing Again

Johnson Asks No Animals Be Sent Him As Gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, a dog lover but still a man of prudence, has done the sensible thing again.

He has asked that Americans not flood the White House with gifts of dogs and other animals.

Specifically, the President accepted the gift of a white collie from a 9-year-old Illinois girl, but asked at the same time that others who want to send animal gifts to give them instead to children or institutions in their own communities.

The first family already had two Beagles and two Beagles just by themselves are a lot of dogs.

Every first family has been deluged with gifts, some of them probably to the point of embarrassment. No one likes to return a gift, or to refuse one that is well-meant, even if it is not particularly wanted and has to be fed.

The John F. Kennedys, having two small children, were particularly showered with pets, but they always seemed to have room for one more.

In addition to three ponies, the Kennedys were honored with dogs galore, the most famous being Pushinka, the offspring of a Soviet space dog. She was a gift from Premier Khrushchev.

Other Kennedy dogs included Charlie, a Welsh terrier; an Irish wolfhound, various cockers, a German shepherd and some pups born to Pushinka and Charlie.

Dogs have always been the most popular presidential pets, beginning with George Washington. An exception to the dog-loving line was President Harry S. Truman, but his friends were always quick to point out that he had nothing against dogs.

A White House dog that figured in politics was Fala, a lively Scottie belonging to President Franklin D. Roosevelt. In the 1944 presidential campaign, some critics of FDR charged that a destroyer was sent to the Aleutian Islands at heavy expense to the taxpayers after Fala allegedly had been left behind in one of the President's trips.

Roosevelt turned the tables in a radio broadcast, still remembered as a campaign masterpiece, which poked ridicule at politicians who stooped to attack "my little dog, Fala."

During the first world war the White House grounds were pasture for a flock of sheep. President Woodrow Wilson had a double purpose: to help keep the grass trimmed and to provide wool that could be sold for the benefit of the Red Cross.

President William McKinley had a parrot which, so it has been chronicled, could whistle "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

And President William Howard Taft owned a Jersey cow named Pauline.

When a candy mixture has reached the soft ball stage, a little of it dropped into very cold water will form a soft ball that flattens on removal from the water.

Less Fruit Eating

WASHINGTON (AP) — An average American eats 50 pounds less fresh fruit annually than his grandfather did half a century ago. A Department of Agriculture survey indicates that only the citrus fruits have gained in popularity during that time. On the other hand, there has been a boom in concentrated juice consumption.

Foreign Policy At Johnson City

The new Chancellor of West Germany had been given full marks for his part in creating the economic miracle of post-World War Germany, but it was believed that he found politics distasteful and had little talent for it. This estimate may still prove true, but not for want of firmness.

His first foreign visit was to Paris. There he said that in any choice between the United States and France he would side with the United States. He is not about to play the pudgy stooge of French President Charles de Gaulle.

Chancellor Erhard was the first chief of government to announce he would attend the funeral of John F. Kennedy. All his acts since his accession on Oct. 16 indicate his intention to make Germany the most cooperative of U.S. allies.

AS HE AND President Johnson get together in "the friendly atmosphere" of the Johnson ranch near Johnson City, Texas, it is worth recalling Erhard's press conference of Dec. 3, his first general meeting with newspapermen after becoming Chancellor.

He said then that he had told Gen. de Gaulle that Germany has "the greatest respect for the French force de frappe, but that we believe we would be more secure if alongside the French nuclear force we also continue to be defended by American nuclear power."

He said his government's foremost goal was to help end the differences between France and the United States. A spokesman later explained that when the chancellor said chances for this had "improved" since the death of President Kennedy he meant the assassination had demonstrated the need for solidarity within the Western alliance.

Erhard is now engaged in a contest of wills with De Gaulle over European Common Market agricultural policy.

THE PRESIDENT military agreement with West Germany, reaffirmed by a meeting earlier this month of Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara with Defense Minister Kai-Uwe von Hassel, calls for an outlay by the Federal Republic on American weapons and training of $1.3 billion over 1963-64.

Germany purchases in the 1963 calendar year will total nearly $600 million. Last year, the outlay was $710 million.

These sums help to offset the cost of keeping U.S. troops in Germany and help to alleviate the U.S. balance of payments problem.

However firm the U.S.-German alliance, one question must be faced with unblinking candor. How long will West Germany remain content with a nuclear status that looks to be inferior to that of Britain—or France?

The Odds On Judgment

A militant group of Ohioans trying for years to give 18-year-olds the right to vote will be cheered by one recommendation in a report by the President's Commission on Registration and Voting. We're not enthused.

In its three-part report, the commission urges all states to consider dropping the minimum voting age to 18 and called for eliminating poll taxes and literacy tests as voting qualifications.

Well, Ohio doesn't have poll taxes or literacy tests to worry about, and, as far as we're concerned, it doesn't need a lower minimum voting age, either.

WE THOUGHT we'd heard all the arguments for lowering the voting age, but the presidential commission has tossed us a new one.

The major argument, it says, is that by the time young people are 21, they are "so far removed from the stimulation of the educational process that their interest in public affairs has waned."

Oh? Does that mean that our educational process is so faulty its effect on students is lost after a few short years?

If that's the case, why not let every high school freshman with a civics course under his belt walk up to the ballot box while everything is fresh in his mind?

If mature, independent thinking is part of intelligent voting, and we think it is, there is even reason to wonder whether the voting age shouldn't be raised a couple of years.

WE'RE CERTAIN many 18-year-olds and a lot of 21-year-olds, too, are still in the grips of a cycle that runs from blind obedience to parental control, through rebellion and "free" thinking, ending, ideally, at mature judgment.

True, many never make it, but the odds get better with age. Judgment is the only bonus there is for growing older. Not that everybody gets the bonus, understand, but only that everybody has a chance to get it.

While The Money Rolls In

No one ever has come to close enough grips with reality to promote a post-season football "Money Bowl," though there is a Sugar Bowl.

Perhaps calling one contest a "Money Bowl" would be offensive exploitation of the obvious. Bowl games are big business, an established fixture of big-time collegiate football, as well as big-time professional football. They are as commercial as cash registers.

What the bowls amount to is the payoff for the top teams—the football equivalent of the World Series in baseball. A college team successful enough to draw a bowl bid can cover its deficits for a so-so season in one post-season game. A team blessed with a 100,000-seat stadium of its own and a devoted following can turn a handsome profit with a bowl bid.

THE WONDERFUL part about it is the way everybody ends up happy, better off and eager for another football season and another potential bowl bid.

The football players have had an all-expenses-paid vacation.

Their colleges have had the kind of saturation publicity money can't buy.

Their alumni have had a chance to strut with pride.

Athletic departments have had a windfall of wealth.

Promoters have turned an honest buck, television sponsors have whooped it up for their product and uncounted millions of TV spectators have had "free seats."

Most important of all, of course, on-the-site spectators have had a chance to proclaim status by obtaining tickets to the big game, at prices ranging steeply upward from $5 a ticket.

IT ALL BEGAN away back in 1902 when Michigan beat Stanford 49-0 in the first Rose Bowl game.

Where it will end nobody knows—but while the money rolls in nobody will care.

Sounds Like Fun

I wonder if I could manage an old-time belly-slammer.

My last slammer was 18 years ago. In my honest opinion, I handled it with grace and verve.

In my honest opinion, I still could. What's 18 more years?

But I wonder. . .

Would I have the nerve to make the long run, throw down the sled and slam down on it, keeping the feet in position to drag right or left as necessity might dictate?

Could I stand the snow flying up in my face and sifting into my eyes? Was it as much fun as I think it was? Or was it fun only because it was done in childhood?

I THINK it would be as much fun as ever. Grown men ride bobsleds and toboggans. Why shouldn't a grown man ride a handsled down a hill?

In our town there was no place to skate. The big lakes weren't safe unless they froze deep, and when they froze deep the ice-cutters took over and spoiled them for skating.

There were no bobsled runs, either. It was a handsled town. I was one of the lucky kids. I had a genuine Flexible Flyer, trade name registered. My belly-slamming was spectacular. I was king of Yeen's Hill.

Most sleds at that time were the wooden relics of preceding generations—high, cumbersome things that tipped over easily and weren't designed for belly-slamming. They were too short.

With a Flexible Flyer, moreover, there was steering action. That was the "flexibility"; the sled had a handlebar that wiggled—not much but some.

I WONDER how it would be. . . .

There are two Flexible Flyers hanging in the barn. Their runners would have to be smoothed down after years of rust and dirt. But they never were used hard by their owners, because there were all those years when it scarcely snowed enough to justify ownership of a snow shovel.

I wonder. . .

There's a tricky hill north of the house. Maybe the gentler hill back of the barn would be better for belly-slamming.

It would be an interesting experiment—the long run, the climactic spurt, the throwing down of the sled—and bam!

Come to think of it, maybe the lady of the house could be talked into coming out for the Big One where the girl slams down first—biffo!—then boy runs alongside, adding momentum, and finally doing a double-decker for the death-defying ride.

How about that, girlie? Sounds like fun, mmh?

By Joseph Michalak

Everybody in the college community is talking about the $1.2 billion college-construction bill passed by the Senate Dec. 12. But almost no one knows yet what to do about it. In fact, not too many college officials know exactly what's in the measure, which was acted on rather suddenly with last minute compromises between House and Senate versions.

However, no one interviewed subsequently tended to disagree with this assertion by Dr. Logan Wilson, president of the American Council on Education: "It's a landmark legislation, almost on a par with the Morrill Act of 100 years ago," which led to the creation of most of the country's leading state universities through land grants.

The American Council, with more than 1,000 member colleges, is the most influential organization for higher education in the country.

IT LOBBIED mightily through three separate sessions of the Congress to get the bill approved.

"I don't believe there is any opposition in the college community to the bill," Dr. Wilson said in his Washington office.

"Most of the leaders welcome it.

"It was the first time," he continued, "that the Congress moved to provide federal aid to all institutions of higher education." This includes about 700 church-related institutions.

Dr. Wilson conceded that all of the nation's 2,100 colleges and universities come under the provisions will mean that the money involved will have to be spread a little thin. Also, that some college presidents might tend to get "a little predatory" about making bids for the money.

The three-year measure authorizes $230 million in grants yearly ($100 million for four-year colleges and private junior colleges and $50 million for two-year public junior and technical institutes plus $120 million in low-interest, 50-year loans for undergraduate construction projects.

In addition, there will be $25 million available for graduate schools the first year and $60 million for each of the second and third years.

A complicated formula is then applied to determine how much money each state gets. High school, as well as college enrollment figures, count heavily. Institutions will then make application for funds for specific projects and some state agency will sort them out into a priority list.

All of the programs will be on a matching basis — meaning that the federal government will put up no more than a third of the money for four-year colleges and graduate centers, through as much as 40 per cent for the two-year colleges.

THE GRANTS will be distributed by the states, on the approval of the U.S. Office of Education, and earmarked for libraries and other "specific projects" such as laboratories and classroom buildings devoted to the natural and physical sciences, engineering, mathematic and foreign languages. (This is in addition to a previously passed measure to aid medical schools.)

Dr. Wilson pointed out that under the grants portions of the new bill there were a dozen states that would be entitled to less than a million dollars yearly.

The biggest beneficiary will be California, which will be able to distribute more than $20.6 million among its growing number of colleges.

New York State is next in line with almost $19 million for its 200 colleges. If divided equally, that would be only $91,000 yearly for each of them. Not too many bricks and mortar can be put together for that kind of money.

DR. WILSON predicted that most of the available money would go to publicly supported institutions, primarily because the bill specifically supports efforts at expension to meet the rising number of college enrollees rather than efforts at educational improvement.

"Most of the expanding in recent years," he noted, "has been done by public colleges, which have found it easier to raise money than private institutions."

Dr. Wilson also said there was "no doubt" that the junior-college movement would be greatly accelerated" because of the special appropriations.

Oddly enough, Dr. Wilson stressed that the expected preference for public construction would tend to "preserve the independence" of the private colleges.

"The fact," he said, "that so much money will be rolling into the public institutions for expansion will mean that private colleges will be under less pressure to expand." This he said would enable them to put available funds to maintaining quality of program. "The public institutions," he said, "need such competition."

Streaking Comets

The awesome sight of a comet streaking across the heavens has terrified and intrigued men for centuries.

The sudden appearance of comets has caused kings to abdicate, armies to halt in battle and whole populations to fear the end of the earth. A 12th-century historian pictured one comet as "a twisting serpent, writhing and coiling back on itself. . .lusting for human blood".

Even in the enlightened 20th century, an enterprising salesman did a brisk business with a line of "comet pills", guaranteed to protect against the poisons supposedly emitted by Halley's comet during its return in 1910.

The facts about comets are even stranger than the fancies. To begin with, comets are essentially dirty snowballs. They probably are composed of the ices of water, methane and ammonia, with a sprinkling of space dust.

As many as 100 billion of these dark, frosty bodies whirl about in an enormous, beltlike cloud some 50,000 to 100,000 astronomical units from the sun (one unit is the average distance between earth and sun).

Fred L. Whipple, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., recently theorized that a closer belt of less visible comets exists some four billion miles from the sun. But the spectacular comets seen on the earth arrive from the distant layer.

Party Responsibility

By David Lawrence

Confusion Will Remain Unless There's Change

Who is fundamentally to blame for the mess in Congress? The Republicans? The Democrats? The administration in power? Or the people themselves?

David Lawrence

The disarray is primarily due to the absence of party responsibility in the national legislative body. There is no way at present for the people to express their will on a major issue at the time it arises.

The foreign aid program is the ostensible cause of the confusion which last week stalled the adjournment of Congress but something deeper is involved. It's the failure of the American system to permit the people a voice at the moment when their opinion and guidance should be formally recorded.

All the recent talk about merely amending the rules of procedure in the committees of Congress is meaningless because it doesn't go to the root of the problem.

Once upon a time in American history—as recently as 50 years ago—there was party responsibility. A party caucus vote binding on its participants was customary.

Today each member of a political party in Congress is a law unto himself. He's subject to no party discipline. Even if he were, however, there is no immediate opportunity for the people to decide who is right or wrong. The people seemingly are outsiders—bewildered bystanders. They are told that in America the people rule—but this sometimes seems more a theory than a fact.

The American people would probably agree to the basic principle involved in foreign aid. But they wouldn't agree that the country aided could thereby ignore its own responsibilities.

THE AMERICAN people, if a referendum were held today, doubtless would vote overwhelmingly against allowing government credit facilities to be used to finance sales of wheat to the Soviet government. Just a little more than a year ago that same government in Moscow was financing the construction of missile bases in Cuba with the avowed purpose of using such bases to attack the lives and property of the American people. Has the leopard changed his spots so quickly?

Today there is a split in each of the two major parties in Congress. Why, it may be asked, are there, in effect, four blocs? Why, to be sure, is the Democratic party in particular split so badly in both houses of Congress? One reason is related to differences on economic issues. The other involves a surrender to political expediency by the Northern Democrats in an effort to attract the Negro vote.

Persistent attempts to try to change human nature by a process of legislative coercion is, moreover, beginning to split the Democratic Party among the voters in the North, too.

An argument can be made, of course, on both sides of the controversy over civil rights, but what matters is that the American people have never been given a chance to vote on this issue in a special election for members of Congress. Nor is there today a system that establishes party responsibility even when a regular election has been held every two years.

THE DIVISION in the Democratic party between conservatives and liberals on economic and fiscal issues has its parallel in the Republican party in Congress, but the Democratic party just now has almost a two-thirds majority in both houses and the man in the White House is one of its own members. Theoretically, therefore, the majority party should have unity in its ranks.

Were it not for the vexatious civil rights issue, there probably wouldn't be such a bitter fight over foreign aid. This is not because these two subjects have any remote relationship to each other but because a Southern member of Congress can have a field day on foreign aid and please his constituents merely by opposing an administration that is getting ready to ram down the throats of the people of his district or state a public accommodations bill whereby the federal government would dictate to a businessman with what customers he must deal.

Even such a tough issue as civil rights would be resolved by the people if they had a chance to vote on a national basis for members of Congress when a stalemate on such a major question develops in legislative procedures. The mere threat of a general election often would be enough to produce a majority in Congress that would act expeditiously.

TODAY, if the people had their way, they would cut the foreign aid bill even more than it was reduced recently by congressional committee recommendation. They would, of course, refuse to authorize the lending of government money directly or indirectly to help the Soviet imperialists to wage war in Cuba or anywhere else against the free world.

It's easy enough to blame one faction or another in Congress or to argue that what is needed is modernization of the committee rules but as long as America has a system of irresponsible government instead of a system of responsible government and party responsibility—such as prevails in some other parts of the free world—more and more of the same kind of mess and confusion that arose in the last few days in Congress will be witnessed in our own country.

Fine Christmas Present

By J. W. Davis

WASHINGTON

One of the finest Christmas presents America ever received was the gift of a ragged and cold little band of fighting men.

It was George Washington's crossing of the Delaware River on Christmas night of 1776. The surprise maneuver, winning over frightful handicaps, led to the rout of Hessian troops at the Battle of Trenton and was a major turning point in the War for Independence.

A few days before the crossing, Washington had written that "I fear the game is nearly up." Many of his men had gone home discouraged. Those who remained, about 2,500, were poorly clothed. Some had no shoes.

The passage of the river was a bitter, tough job through floating ice, on ore barges and small boats. Ashore, the Americans had to march through snow and sleet but all that, Washington wrote later, "did not in the least abate their ardor."

"When they came to the charge each seemed to vie with the other in pressing forward."

The charge was along two roads. It scattered Hessian outposts and burst upon the main enemy body before it could form effectively.

The Hessian general was mortally wounded, his men had no way open to retreat and they quickly surrendered.

From the standpoint of numbers involved, the fight was hardly more than a skirmish. Washington's little force captured about 950 prisoners. The Hessian dead were estimated at between 20 and 30. American casualties were four wounded.

But the results were magnificent, out of all proportion to size. A bright hope and a new determination for independence were born in that Christmas victory.

The Hessians probably didn't have their heart in the battle. They were only payroll soldiers, hired by the English king, not free men fighting for a cause.

And here's a footnote to history—

When the Hessians came to America, these custom-loving Rhinelanders brought more than guns.

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I, for one, am mighty bored with the women who are sure their husbands are playing around with their secretaries.

I've been a Girl Friday for 23 years and have known hundreds of secretaries. I can guarantee that there's a great deal less hanky-panky going on in offices than the busybodies would have you believe.

If the wives of some of these great big round wheels only knew what their secretaries thought of their husbands they wouldn't worry so much.—THE OL' LEVELER.

Dear Leveler: You sound like the Voice of Authority. I'll take your word for it. I think.

Misguided Miss-ive

Dear Ann: I'm not a snoopy mother. In fact I've gone out of my way to avoid prying because I know how teen-agers hate it.

Something happened yesterday, however, that just made me sick. I need your advice on what to do.

I was straightening up my daughter's room and came upon some scattered pieces of note paper. I didn't want to throw out anything of value, so I began to read. Before I realized it I discovered I was reading an exchange of notes between my daughter and a boy friend.

In my whole life I never read anything so vulgar. The words that appeared in the notes were downright filthy.

Is this something new — passing dirty notes back and forth right in school? Perhaps I lived a sheltered life but I don't remember anything like this when I went to high school. I don't want her to think I snooped but I can't get it out of my mind.

Please advise me — DISTRESSED.

Dear Distressed: There's nothing new about this — not even the words.

Confront your daughter with the notes and tell her, not in a critical or scolding tone, but rather as a friend that girls who use vulgar language or permit boys to talk to them in gutter terms merit cheap and common reputations. Let her know that if this is the image she is striving for she is on the right track.

Self-Centered Mate

Dear Ann: I usually agree with you but I think you were off base in your reply to the wife whose husband wanted to go hunting with the boys on their wedding anniversary. You said, "His choice shows him to be a self-centered little boy — but let him go anyway."

It seems to me that if his wife had insisted he stay home with her merely because it was their anniversary, then she would be a "self-centered little girl."

If the hunting season were several weeks long, then I would agree with you. But it only lasts a couple of weeks and the hunters have to hunt when the law says they can.

Don't you think you were a little brash, Ann? It would be mighty noble of you to accept 10 raps on the noggin with the butt of a deer rifle. — DEER FRIEND.

Dear Deer: If it's all the same to you, Buster, I'd rather take five taps with a duck feather.

A girl who goes with a hunter would be wise to look to the future and select a wedding date which will not coincide with the hunting season. I recommend the Fourth of July. Then he can go fishing.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. — I seldom get the use of more than about half my tubes of household cement, because it hardens. How can I remedy this situation?

A. You can keep your tubes of household cement usable to the last drop if, after using them each time, you replace the cap carefully, then put the tube into a small screw-top jar, and close this tightly.

Q. How can I make the freshly-laundered slip covers fit more smoothly when replacing them on my furniture?

A. Replace the covers while still slightly damp. They'll smooth out and fit better than if ironed. Only the ruffles and pleats need a bit of touching up. Put a towel between the cover and furniture when you're pressing the edges of a freshly-laundered slip cover.

Q. — How can I keep that hard-to-remove substance from gathering on the sides of my pans when boiling sweet potatoes?

A. A half - teaspoon of bacon drippings or other grease, added to the water in which sweet potatoes or other root vegetables are boiled, will do the trick.

Q. — How can I make a brush for velvet?

A. By making a padded cushion of velvet about five inches long and three inches wide, inserting a piece of cardboard to stiffen it, then stuffing with cotton. A strip of tape sewed on will serve as a handle.

Q.—Should one use hot or cold water when making a mustard plaster?

A. Neither. The water should be tepid.

It's Martini Steel With Dash Of Alloy

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a new, unofficial term for the growing number of high-strength, low-alloy steels developed through research — martini steel.

Just as the dry martini contains only a dash of vermouth added to gin, so do martini steels contain only a dash of alloying element to give them certain desired characteristics.

For example, as little as .01 of 1 per cent of columbium or vanadium added to ordinary carbon steel produces a high-strength steel that is also easily weldable and formable. The addition of .0005 of 1 per cent of boron gives increased hardenability. As little as .035 of 1 per cent of tellurium increases the machineability of steel.

Crash Of Toy Leads To Chain Of Incidents

HOBBS, N.M. (AP) — When a toy airplane fluttered in flight and fell on the roof of a home here it started a chain of circumstances that saw the fire department called out and a woman taken to the hospital.

When Randy Brown's airplane fell on his home, his stepmother, Mrs. Bobbie Brown, went up on the roof for the toy. She stepped on a nail on the roof and her injury prevented her from climibing down unassisted.

The fire department was called and the crew brought her down on a ladder. Then she was taken to a hospital.

New Advances Seen For 1964

Steel Industry Showed Notable Gains In 1963

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The steel industry slugged out some notable gains in 1963. New advances are forecast for 1964.

3—Notched the first 100 million ton-plus production year since 1957.

4—Stepped up an already heavy flow of investment dollars for new plants and equipment.

5—Maintained a somewhat rosy relationship with the United Steelworkers Union.

But not all was well. Foreign producers continued to carve new inroads into American markets and hit a new high in exports to this country.

Price boosts, particularly the first one in the spring, got the biggest steel headlines of 1963 and were probably the most cherished accomplishment in the minds of steelmen.

Wheeling Steel Corp., 11th biggest producer, started it rolling April 10 with increases of $6 a ton on plate and a few other selected items in strong and growing demand.

All eyes in the industry turned to Washington.

The question was: Would the late President John F. Kennedy oppose the increase as he did the across-the-board hikes the year before?

Nearly 48 tense hours later, Kennedy announced he would fight an across - the - board increase but would keep hands off selective price hikes.

The gates were open.

Another small producer made selective increases April 14; two more companies, including third-ranked Republic, followed suit April 15; and the following day, four major producers, including No. 1 U.S. Steel Corp., joined the parade.

It was estimated the increases covered 35 per cent of all steel shipments.

In late September and early October, another wave of price boosts swept the industry. Again it was a selective affair, covering mainly small diameter pipe and steel bar in wide use.

The two increases covered an estimated 70 per cent of all steel shipments.

The profit picture brightened considerably in 1963 with several companies reporting earnings gains of from 25 per cent to over 100 per cent in the first nine months.

A survey of companies producing 93 per cent of the nation's steel showed an earnings increase of $121 million in the first nine months, jumping from $418 million to $539 million. U. S. Steel earned $149.6 million in the period, compared to $122.8 million in the similar period of 1962.

As for production, 1963 was the best steel year since 1957 when 112 million tons were poured. With late-year figures still to be tabulated, it appeared the year's total would approach 108 million tons, compared to 98.8 million tons in 1962.

The good showing was attributed to healthy demands from makers,2autos, appliances and railroad equipment and strong activity in the construction industry which was aided by six extra weeks of good weather in early and middle fall.

Fear of labor contract trouble in the spring drove production steadily upward to the year's peak of 2.62 million tons in the week ended May 25. That was 85.5 per cent of rated capacity.

Contract agreement was reached in the industry without went on a sharp decline, reaching the year's low of 58 per cent of capacity in early August. The year finished on a general upswing.

Most steel people feel production in the year ahead will at least equal the 1963 total and perhaps inch a bit higher. One source said it may go as high as 112 million tons.

On the labor scene, steel workers won an extended vacation program in a 21-month contract. It cost the companies an estimated 8 cents per hour per year of the contract.

Their Interest Likely To Be Political Field

PIKEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It hardly would be a surprise if twins Ned T. and Harry Lee Bentley grow up with an interest in politics.

Born a week before the 1963 election, they were named for Kentucky's governor - elect Edward T. (Ned) Breathitt Jr. and his lieutenant governor, Harry Lee Waterfield.

The twins were delivered by Dr. Roy Sanders who was elected a state representative.

'Stairway To Paradise'

World's Tallest Tower

BLANCHARD, N. D. (AP) — Rising into a haze often concealing its distant tip, a huge television tower two miles west of here gives every appearance of that fabled "Stairway to Paradise."

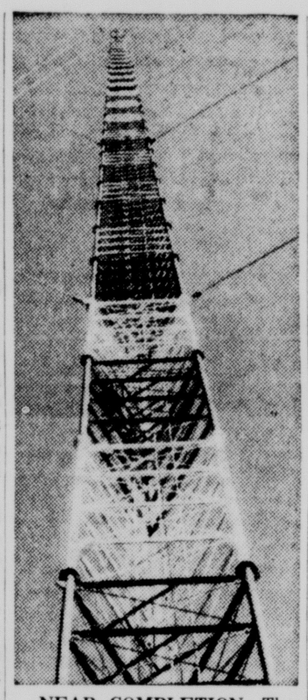
But the illusion is shattered on a clear day when the tip of the tower is visible some 2,063 feet above pancake flat prairie land in eastern North Dakota.

The massive structure, geared to beam a strong television signal more than 100 miles in all directions, is owned by Pembina Broadcasting Co. of North Dakota, a subsidiary of Polaris Corp., Milwaukee, Wis. It was built in 30 days by an 11-man crew of Kline Iron and Steel Co., Columbia, S. C.

Work on the tower, estimated to cost almost a half million dollars, was started early in October and completed Nov. 1.

The structure exceeds by slightly more than 300 feet the previous world record for a man-made structure, a 1,751 foot TV tower near Knoxville, Tenn. It dwarfs the Empire State Building by almost 600 feet and is nearly double the height of the famed Eiffel Tower.

Its other statistics are equally impressive. The triangular-shape structure was built atop a foundation that has 87 wooden pilings, 75 feet long, hammered into the earth. Over that was poured 145 yards of concrete, 8½ feet thick at the center.



NEAR COMPLETION. The TV tower near Blanchard, N. D., is shown at a level of 1,745 feet, with more than 300 feet still to be added.

Nine permanent guy wires stretching out almost a quarter of a mile hold the tower in place. Each of the guy wires is held in the ground by T - shape anchors weighing 4,000 pounds each.

For maintenance work on the giant structure, an elevator is being installed in the center. It will rise to the 1,948-foot level, with the remaining 115 feet to be scaled by ladder.

Sitting atop the structure is the television antenna, topped off by a huge beacon light containing fourteen 650-watt bulbs, to warn any flyers who may feel secure cruising along at 2,000 feet.

Five engineers collaborated designing the structure. The man directing the construction was Clint Capps, a 40-year-old, weather-hardened six - footer who calls Nashville, Tenn., his home, but travels the country 10 months of the year putting up huge TV towers.

Capps helped build the first tower for satellite tracking at Cocoa Beach, Fla., and acknowledges that "it's quite a thrill" to have built the world record-breaker here.

The crew foreman said he traveled to the top of the structure once, "but was too busy to take a look around."

Capps noted that the wind created some problems for his lofty workers when the tower was near completion,but added that it was "nothing dangerous." The tower is built to sway 13.9 feet in a 120 m.p.h. wind.

Water Partly Blamed For Fire In Auto

Curiosity Just Gets The Best Of People

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — A group of Texarkana citizens got a chance — one by one — recently to prove the old saw that one should not stick his nose where it does not belong.

The chances came when a group of University of Houston students parked an innocent looking, tarpaulin covered trailer in front of a restaurant.

Those who couldn't resist peeking beneath the tarpaulin found themselves face to face with a live cougar in a cage.

Cyprus

ain, Greece and Turkey met with Makarios and decided to put British, Greek and Turkish forces in Cyprus under a unified command headed by a Briton, a communique announced.

There are about 10,000 British servicemen on Cyprus, stationed here as in the case of the Greek and Turkish garrisons under the treaty of 1960 making Cyprus an independent member of the British Commonwealth.

Johnson told newsmen at his Texas ranch he had conferred by telephone with Secretary of State Dean Rusk two or three times on the situation.

"We have a situation developing there and we are watching it very carefully," Johnson said. "We have 1,700 citizens on that island."

State Department sources said in Washington no evacuation orders have been issued to U.S. citizens, but Americans in outlying areas have been advised to move to more centrally located points in case evacuation is deemed advisable.

The fighting arose from Turkish opposition to Makarios' proposals to amend the Cyprus constitution. The Turks claim the amendments would weaken their rights.

accept a unified agricultural policy De Gaulle wants until the French president made concessions. Erhard pressured De Gaulle into supporting a U.S.-favored liberal approach on the coming international tariff negotiations in Geneva.

It was Monday, after a prolonged foreign ministers' conference in Brussels. De Gaulle agreed to the joint tariff stand. Erhard made concessions in farm policy.

Full Set Of Utensils Slated For Prisoners

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Prisoners at Kentucky's two state reformatories will be able to eat their meals with a full set of utensils soon.

In the past, prison officials have refused to permit prisoners to use knives and forks at the table because of the security risk.

Corrections Commissioner Joseph G. Cannon, who took over the job recently, says there is little risk and has ordered knives and forks on the tables. It helps prisoners maintain human dignity, he says.

Little Indians Root For Cowboys In Movie

The chief, a Brooklyn resident whose name for social security purposes is Jules Haywood, explains:

Christians Mark Christmas With Prayers And Rejoicing

By The Associated Press

Christians observed their 19th Christmas since World War II with prayers and rejoicing despite fresh signs that universal peace remains an elusive goal.

Communist border guards shot and killed an East German youth trying to escape over the Berlin wall while Red loudspeakers played Christmas music for more than 65,000 West Berliners pouring through the barrier into East Berlin.

Less than 200 miles from the land of Christ's birth, Greeks and Turks threatened to renew their civil war on the Mediterranean island of Cyprus. Two Turkish jet fighters buzzed the island providing additional fuel for what appeared to be an international crisis in the making.

In Cairo, the Egyptian press and radio reported the Arab world had warmly received President Gamal Abdel Nasser's plans for an Arab summit meeting to consider ways of preventing Israel from diverting waters of the Jordan River.

Yet Christians still dreamed of peace as they marked the birth of the Prince of Peace.

In an act symbolic of Christ's concern for the humble, Pope Paul VI of the Roman Catholic Church celebrated Mass in a poor workers' section of Rome, heavily populated by Communists, and prayed at the bedside of a paralyzed woman. Thousands cheered when he accepted the gift of a lamb, itself an offering of peace.

More than 10,000 pilgrims flocked to Bethlehem to worship in the Judean hillside town where Christ was born.

Along the icy truce line dividing North and South Korea, U.S. soldiers hoisted a huge electric sign toward the Communists saying "Merry Christmas." The Reds replied with Christmas carols and propaganda over their loudspeakers.

With much of the United States covered with snow, Americans at home enjoyed a white Christmas. But near Johnson City, Tex., where President Johnson spent Christmas with his family at the LBJ Ranch, the temperatures was in the 70s.

The President inspected his cattle, took flowers to neighbors, entertained relatives, led 50 newsmen and photographers on a tour of his 12-room house, rode in a speedboat and ate a big turkey dinner.

In another Texas city, thousands of spectators passed in silence at the Dallas intersection where an assassin's bullets struck President Kennedy, hardly more than a month ago. Some 15,000 persons filed past the President's grave in Washington's Arlington National Cemetery.

In Palm Beach, Fla., Mrs. Kennedy attended a private Mass at the home of her father-in-law, Joseph P. Kennedy. Her children, Caroline, 6, and John Jr., 3, remained at home, but later exchanged gifts at their grandfather's home.

People In News

NORTH POLE (AP) — The noted North Pole airman, Santa Claus, completed his annual world tour, once again making the trip in one day despite his obsolete aircraft.

Santa had special permission from American officials to violate numerous regulations (flying at roof-top level, etc.). He also got clearance from the North American Air Defense Command. Otherwise, a missile might have made a mess of things.

Santa wouldn't talk about the flight, but he did say he'd try it again next year.

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev has wished Mao Tze-tung "good health and many years of life and success," saying he's confident the Soviet Union and Communist China will settle their ideological quarrel.

Mrs. Elman said he would be in the hospital for quite a while.

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) —From a ranch in Texas, telephone calls went out Christmas Day to three ex-presidents of the United States — Herbert Hoover, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

President Johnson said he just wanted to wish "Merry Christmas" to his predecessors.

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (AP) — Francis Cardinal Spellman said Christmas Mass at the South Pole and two other American bases in the Antarctic.

Black Bottom Pie Pleases Entire Family

Pie, the favorite American dessert, originated in ancient Greece according to legend.

As the popularity of pie grew in America each section of the country perfected its own specialty — some using fruits while others used creams, nuts and rich fillings.

Renowned on the West Coast and well - loved all over the country as well is Black Bottom Pie, which combines creamy chocolate with rum-flavored layers of filling to give you a deliciously - smooth richly - crusted pie. Garnished with chocolate curls, it is a perfect pie for evenings whether it is served after dinner or later in the evening.

BLACK BOTTOM PIE

1 stick instant mixing pie crust mix
1 pkg. (8 oz.)) cream cheese
1 can (15 oz.) sweetened condensed milk
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
2 egg whites
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
¼ cup sugar
1 sq. unsweetened chocolate (1 oz.)
1 tsp. rum flavoring

Prepare 9" baked pie shell as directed on pie crust mix package. Whip the softened cream cheese until light and fluffy; gradually beat in sweetened condensed milk and egg yolks until well blended.

Melt chocolate; fold into 1½ cups of milk mixture; spread on bottom of cooled pie shell. Fold rum flavoring into remaining milk mixture; spread over chocolate layer. Garnish pie with shaved chocolate. Chill.

Does Sensible Thing Again

Johnson Asks No Animals Be Sent Him As Gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, a dog lover but still a man of prudence, has done the sensible thing again.

He has asked that Americans not flood the White House with gifts of dogs and other animals.

Specifically, the President accepted the gift of a white collie from a 9-year-old Illinois girl, but asked at the same time that others who want to send animal gifts to give them instead to children or institutions in their own communities.

The first family already had two Beagles and two Beagles just by themselves are a lot of dogs.

Every first family has been deluged with gifts, some of them probably to the point of embarrassment. No one likes to return a gift, or to refuse one that is well-meant, even if it is not particularly wanted and has to be fed.

The John F. Kennedys, having two small children, were particularly showered with pets, but they always seemed to have room for one more.

In addition to three ponies, the Kennedys were honored with dogs galore, the most famous being Pushinka, the offspring of a Soviet space dog. She was a gift from Premier Khrushchev.

Other Kennedy dogs included Charlie, a Welsh terrier; an Irish wolfhound, various cockers, a German shepherd and some pups born to Pushinka and Charlie.

Dogs have always been the most popular presidential pets, beginning with George Washington. An exception to the dog-loving line was President Harry S. Truman, but his friends were always quick to point out that he had nothing against dogs.

A White House dog that figured in politics was Fala, a lively Scottie belonging to President Franklin D. Roosevelt. In the 1944 presidential campaign, some critics of FDR charged that a destroyer was sent to the Aleutian Islands at heavy expense to the taxpayers after Fala allegedly had been left behind in one of the President's trips.

Roosevelt turned the tables in a radio broadcast, still remembered as a campaign masterpiece, which poked ridicule at politicians who stooped to attack "my little dog, Fala."

During the first world war the White House grounds were pasture for a flock of sheep. President Woodrow Wilson had a double purpose: to help keep the grass trimmed and to provide wool that could be sold for the benefit of the Red Cross.

President William McKinley had a parrot which, so it has been chronicled, could whistle "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

And President William Howard Taft owned a Jersey cow named Pauline.

When a candy mixture has reached the soft ball stage, a little of it dropped into very cold water will form a soft ball that flattens on removal from the water.

Less Fruit Eating

WASHINGTON (AP) — An average American eats 50 pounds less fresh fruit annually than his grandfather did half a century ago. A Department of Agriculture survey indicates that only the citrus fruits have gained in popularity during that time. On the other hand, there has been a boom in concentrated juice consumption.

Step Eyed To Reopen Probe In Alleged Buying Of Votes

CLEVELAND (AP) — Common Pleas Court Judge William J. McDermott planned today to meet with Mrs. Hamilton W. Wright to discuss the possibility of reopening a grand jury probe into allegations of vote buying efforts in City Council.

Monday night the grand jury cleared Councilman James V. Stanton of charges he tried to buy another councilman's vote in a sruggle for power in a caucus of Democratic council members. But the grand jury report said jurors were outraged by what it termed lies told by witnesses.

The jury heard 22 witnesses, including Stanton, Michael Fatica, who had accused Stanton of trying to buy his vote for council president, and Jack P. Russell, long-time council leader who was upset by Stanton in a Nov. 26 caucus. A number of other councilmen and newsmen also testified.

The jury found that the rumors of vote buying emanated from Russell's supporters and indicated the rumors were merely an attempt to discredit Stanton.

Mrs. Wright, the jury foreman, has said five councilmen who told a story of political pressure to influence votes gave one account, while a sixth told it "directly opposite." She said the sixth councilman might be the object of perjury proceedings. No names were given.

Meanwhile, a Plain Dealer poll indicated Stanton has gained support in council in the wake of the scandal. The newspaper said a poll of 23 members of the 33-member council found 16 Democrats supporting Stanton for president and Mrs. Mercedes Cotner for city clerk.

If the unit rule is followed, meaning that all 29 Democrats vote with the majority, Stanton appears assured of election when the council organizes early next month.

Over $500,000 Loss Estimated In W.Va. Blaze

WELCH, W. Va. (AP) — An early-morning fire gutted the Trailways Bus Terminal and two other buildings, and heavily damaged a furniture store, in downtown Welch today. No one was injured, however.

Firemen said the blaze apparently resulted from an explosion in a garage at the rear of the Trailways structure. It quickly engulfed that two-story building, destroying six buses.

Flames then spread to other two-story buildings housing a Maytag appliance store; the Welch Loan Co.; offices of two doctors; a State Welfare Department office, and several apartments.

Firemen reported that a building housing the H. and C. Furniture Co. was heavily damaged by smoke and water.

No immediate damage estimate was available, but it appeared the loss would run in excess of $500,000.

Pleas Court Rejects Travel Expense Claim

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The 10th District Court of Appeals has rejected the claim of Robert Koch of Van Wert to $2,628 for travel expenses while he was a member of the State Board of Liquor Control.

The appeals court upheld a Franklin County Common Pleas Court ruling against Koch in his action against Gov. James A. Rhodes and former Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy. The courts said there is no authority to pay such expenses as Koch claimed for travel between Van Wert and Columbus.

Premier Inonu Back In Power In Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Premier Ismet Inonu is back in power in Turkey, heading a minority Cabinet composed of 19 members of his Republican People's party and four independents.

Inonu's announcement Wednesday night that he had succeeded in forming a minority government ended a 23-day political crisis during which the opposition Justice party failed in an attempt to come up with a Cabinet.

Inonu resigned earlier this month.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: I, for one, am mighty bored with the women who are sure their husbands are playing around with their secretaries.

I've been a Girl Friday for 23 years and have known hundreds of secretaries. I can guarantee that there's a great deal less hanky-panky going on in offices than the busybodies would have you believe.

If the wives of some of these great big round wheels only knew what their secretaries thought of their husbands they wouldn't worry so much.—THE OL' LEVELER.

Dear Leveler: You sound like the Voice of Authority. I'll take your word for it. I think.

Misguided Miss-ive

Dear Ann: I'm not a snoopy mother. In fact I've gone out of my way to avoid prying because I know how teen-agers hate it.

Something happened yesterday, however, that just made me sick. I need your advice on what to do.

I was straightening up my daughter's room and came upon some scattered pieces of note paper. I didn't want to throw out anything of value, so I began to read. Before I realized it I discovered I was reading an exchange of notes between my daughter and a boy friend.

In my whole life I never read anything so vulgar. The words that appeared in the notes were downright filthy.

Is this something new — passing dirty notes back and forth right in school? Perhaps I lived a sheltered life but I don't remember anything like this when I went to high school. I don't want her to think I snooped but I can't get it out of my mind.

Please advise me — DISTRESSED.

Dear Distressed: There's nothing new about this — not even the words.

Confront your daughter with the notes and tell her, not in a critical or scolding tone, but rather as a friend that girls who use vulgar language or permit boys to talk to them in gutter terms merit cheap and common reputations. Let her know that if this is the image she is striving for she is on the right track.

Self-Centered Mate

Dear Ann: I usually agree with you but I think you were off base in your reply to the wife whose husband wanted to go hunting with the boys on their wedding anniversary. You said, "His choice shows him to be a self-centered little boy — but let him go anyway."

It seems to me that if his wife had insisted he stay home with her merely because it was their anniversary, then she would be a "self-centered little girl."

If the hunting season were several weeks long, then I would agree with you. But it only lasts a couple of weeks and the hunters have to hunt when the law says they can.

Don't you think you were a little brash, Ann? It would be mighty noble of you to accept 10 raps on the noggin with the butt of a deer rifle. — DEER FRIEND.

Dear Deer: If it's all the same to you, Buster, I'd rather take five taps with a duck feather.

A girl who goes with a hunter would be wise to look to the future and select a wedding date which will not coincide with the hunting season. I recommend the Fourth of July. Then he can go fishing.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. — I seldom get the use of more than about half my tubes of household cement, because it hardens. How can I remedy this situation?

A. You can keep your tubes of household cement usable to the last drop if, after using them each time, you replace the cap carefully, then put the tube into a small screw-top jar, and close this tightly.

Q. How can I make the freshly-laundered slip covers fit more smoothly when replacing them on my furniture?

A. Replace the covers while still slightly damp. They'll smooth out and fit better than if ironed. Only the ruffles and pleats need a bit of touching up. Put a towel between the cover and furniture when you're pressing the edges of a freshly-laundered slip cover.

Q. — How can I keep that hard-to-remove substance from gathering on the sides of my pans when boiling sweet potatoes?

A. A half - teaspoon of bacon drippings or other grease, added to the water in which sweet potatoes or other root vegetables are boiled, will do the trick.

Q. — How can I make a brush for velvet?

A. By making a padded cushion of velvet about five inches long and three inches wide, inserting a piece of cardboard to stiffen it, then stuffing with cotton. A strip of tape sewed on will serve as a handle.

Q.—Should one use hot or cold water when making a mustard plaster?

A. Neither. The water should be tepid.

It's Martini Steel With Dash Of Alloy

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a new, unofficial term for the growing number of high - strength, low-alloy steels developed through research — martini steel.

Just as the dry martini contains only a dash of vermouth added to gin, so do martini steels contain only a dash of alloying element to give them certain desired characteristics.

For example, as little as .01 of 1 per cent of columbium or vanadium added to ordinary carbon steel produces a high-strength steel that is also easily weldable and formable. The addition of .0005 of 1 per cent of boron gives increased hardenability. As little as .035 of 1 per cent of tellurium increases the machineability of steel.

Crash Of Toy Leads To Chain Of Incidents

HOBBS, N.M. (AP) — When a toy airplane fluttered in flight and fell on the roof of a home here it started a chain of circumstances that saw the fire department called out and a woman taken to the hospital.

When Randy Brown's airplane fell on his home, his stepmother, Mrs. Bobbie Brown, went up on the roof for the toy. She stepped on a nail on the roof and her injury prevented her from climibing down unassisted.

The fire department was called and the crew brought her down on a ladder. Then she was taken to a hospital.

New Advances Seen For 1964

Steel Industry Showed Notable Gains In 1963

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The steel industry slugged out some notable gains in 1963. New advances are forecast for 1964.

2—Rebounded from dismal profits in 1962.

3—Notched the first 100 million ton-plus production year since 1957.

4—Stepped up an already heavy flow of investment dollars for new plants and equipment.

5—Maintained a somewhat rosy relationship with the United Steelworkers Union.

But not all was well. Foreign producers continued to carve new inroads into American markets and hit a new high in exports to this country.

Price boosts, particularly the first one in the spring, got the biggest steel headlines of 1963 and were probably the most cherished accomplishment in the minds of steelmen.

Wheeling Steel Corp., 11th biggest producer, started it rolling April 10 with increases of $6 a ton on plate and a few other selected items in strong and growing demand.

All eyes in the industry turned to Washington.

The question was: Would the late President John F. Kennedy oppose the increase as he did the across-the-board hikes the year before?

Nearly 48 tense hours later, Kennedy announced he would fight an across - the - board increase but would keep hands off selective price hikes.

The gates were open.

Another small producer made selective increases April 14; two more companies, including third-ranked Republic, followed suit April 15; and the following day, four major producers, including No. 1 U.S. Steel Corp., joined the parade.

It was estimated the increases covered 35 per cent of all steel shipments.

In late September and early October, another wave of price boosts swept the industry. Again it was a selective affair, covering mainly small diameter pipe and steel bar in wide use.

The two increases covered an estimated 70 per cent of all steel shipments.

The profit picture brightened considerably in 1963 with several companies reporting earnings gains of from 25 per cent to over 100 per cent in the first nine months.

A survey of companies producing 93 per cent of the nation's steel showed an earnings increase of $121 million in the first nine months, jumping from $418 million to $539 million. U. S. Steel earned $149.6 million in the period, compared to $122.8 million in the similar period of 1962.

As for production, 1963 was the best steel year since 1957 when 112 million tons were poured. With late-year figures still to be tabulated, it appeared the year's total would approach 108 million tons, compared to 98.8 million tons in 1962.

The good showing was attributed to healthy demands from makers,2autos, appliances and railroad equipment and strong activity in the construction industry which was aided by six extra weeks of good weather in early and middle fall.

Fear of labor contract trouble in the spring drove production steadily upward to the year's peak of 2.62 million tons in the week ended May 25. That was 85.5 per cent of rated capacity.

Contract agreement was reached in the industry without went on a sharp decline, reaching the year's low of 58 per cent of capacity in early August. The year finished on a general upswing.

Most steel people feel production in the year ahead will at least equal the 1963 total and perhaps inch a bit higher. One source said it may go as high as 112 million tons.

On the labor scene, steel workers won an extended vacation program in a 21-month contract. It cost the companies an estimated 8 cents per hour per year of the contract.

Their Interest Likely To Be Political Field

PIKEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It hardly would be a surprise if twins Ned T. and Harry Lee Bentley grow up with an interest in politics.

Born a week before the 1963 election, they were named for Kentucky's governor - elect Edward T. (Ned) Breathitt Jr. and his lieutenant governor, Harry Lee Waterfield.

The twins were delivered by Dr. Roy Sanders who was elected a state representative.

Figures Prove Cost Of Living Going Up

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP) — Need proof that the cost of living is going up?

The National Park Service spent $30,000 this fall to tear down an old reinforced concrete bridge across the Yellowstone River in Yellowstone National Park.

It had cost only $21,000 to build the bridge in 1903.

World's Tallest Tower

BLANCHARD, N. D. (AP) — Rising into a haze often concealing its distant tip, a huge television tower two miles west of here gives every appearance of that fabled "Stairway to Paradise."

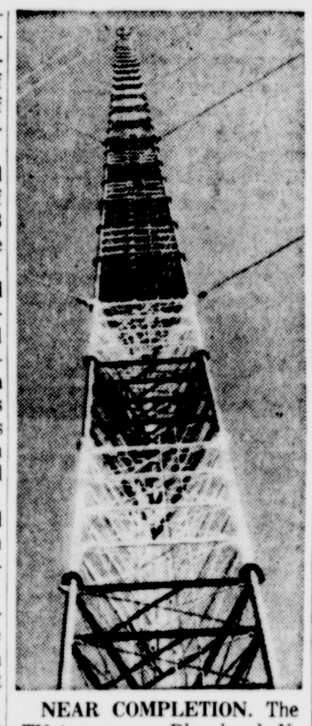
But the illusion is shattered on a clear day when the tip of the tower is visible some 2,063 feet above pancake flat prairie land in eastern North Dakota.

The massive structure, geared to beam a strong television signal more than 100 miles in all directions, is owned by Pembina Broadcasting Co. of North Dakota, a subsidiary of Polaris Corp., Milwaukee, Wis. It was built in 30 days by an 11-man crew of Kline Iron and Steel Co., Columbia, S. C.

Work on the tower, estimated to cost almost a half million dollars, was started early in October and completed Nov. 1.

The structure exceeds by slightly more than 300 feet the previous world record for a man-made structure, a 1,751 foot TV tower near Knoxville, Tenn. It dwarfs the Empire State Building by almost 600 feet and is nearly double the height of the famed Eiffel Tower.

Its other statistics are equally impressive. The triangular-shape structure was built atop a foundation that has 87 wooden pilings, 75 feet long, hammered into the earth. Over that was poured 145 yards of concrete, 8½ feet thick at the center.



NEAR COMPLETION. The TV tower near Blanchard, N. D., is shown at a level of 1,745 feet, with more than 300 feet still to be added.

Nine permanent guy wires stretching out almost a quarter of a mile hold the tower in place. Each of the guy wires is held in the ground by T - shape anchors weighing 4,000 pounds each.

For maintenance work on the giant structure, an elevator is being installed in the center. It will rise to the 1,948-foot level, with the remaining 115 feet to be scaled by ladder.

Sitting atop the structure is the television antenna, topped off by a huge beacon light containing fourteen 650-watt bulbs, to warn any flyers who may feel secure cruising along at 2,000 feet.

Five engineers collaborated designing the structure. The man directing the construction was Clint Capps, a 40-year-old, weather-hardened six - footer who calls Nashville, Tenn., his home, but travels the country 10 months of the year putting up huge TV towers.

Capps helped build the first tower for satellite tracking at Cocoa Beach, Fla., and acknowledges that "it's quite a thrill" to have built the world record-breaker here.

The crew foreman said he traveled to the top of the structure once, "but was too busy to take a look around."

Capps noted that the wind created some problems for his lofty workers when the tower was near completion,but added that it was "nothing dangerous." The tower is built to sway 13.9 feet in a 120 m.p.h. wind.

Water Partly Blamed For Fire In Auto

Curiosity Just Gets The Best Of People

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — A group of Texarkana citizens got a chance — one by one — recently to prove the old saw that one should not stick his nose where it does not belong.

The chances came when a group of University of Houston students parked an innocent looking, tarpaulin covered trailer in front of a restaurant.

Those who couldn't resist peeking beneath the tarpaulin found themselves face to face with a live cougar in a cage.

Christians Mark Christmas With Prayers And Rejoicing

By The Associated Press

Christians observed their 19th Christmas since World War II with prayers and rejoicing despite fresh signs that universal peace remains an elusive goal.

Communist border guards shot and killed an East German youth trying to escape over the Berlin wall while Red loudspeakers played Christmas music for more than 65,000 West Berliners pouring through the barrier into East Berlin.

Less than 200 miles from the land of Christ's birth, Greeks and Turks threatened to renew their civil war on the Mediterranean island of Cyprus. Two Turkish jet fighters buzzed the island providing additional fuel for what appeared to be an international crisis in the making.

In Cairo, the Egyptian press and radio reported the Arab world had warmly received President Gamal Abdel Nasser's plans for an Arab summit meeting to consider ways of preventing Israel from diverting waters of the Jordan River.

Yet Christians still dreamed of peace as they marked the birth of the Prince of Peace.

In an act symbolic of Christ's concern for the humble, Pope Paul VI of the Roman Catholic Church celebrated Mass in a poor workers' section of Rome, heavily populated by Communists, and prayed at the bedside of a paralyzed woman. Thousands cheered when he accepted the gift of a lamb, itself an offering of peace.

More than 10,000 pilgrims flocked to Bethlehem to worship in the Judean hillside town where Christ was born.

Along the icy truce line dividing North and South Korea, U.S. soldiers hoisted a huge electric sign toward the Communists saying "Merry Christmas." The Reds replied with Christmas carols and propaganda over their loudspeakers.

With much of the United States covered with snow, Americans at home enjoyed a white Christmas. But near Johnson City, Tex., where President Johnson spent Christmas with his family at the LBJ Ranch, the temperatures was in the 70s.

The President inspected his cattle, took flowers to neighbors, entertained relatives, led 50 newsmen and photographers on a tour of his 12-room house, rode in a speedboat and ate a big turkey dinner.

In another Texas city, thousands of spectators passed in silence at the Dallas intersection where an assassin's bullets struck President Kennedy, hardly more than a month ago. Some 15,000 persons filed past the President's grave in Washington's Arlington National Cemetery.

In Palm Beach, Fla., Mrs. Kennedy attended a private Mass at the home of her father-in-law, Joseph P. Kennedy. Her children, Caroline, 6, and John Jr., 3, remained at home, but later exchanged gifts at their grandfather's home.

People In News

NORTH POLE (AP) — The noted North Pole airman, Santa Claus, completed his annual world tour, once again making the trip in one day despite his obsolete aircraft.

Santa had special permission from American officials to violate numerous regulations (flying at roof-top level, etc.). He also got clearance from the North American Air Defense Command. Otherwise, a missile might have made a mess of things.

Santa wouldn't talk about the flight, but he did say he'd try it again next year.

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev has wished Mao Tze-tung "good health and many years of life and success," saying he's confident the Soviet Union and Communist China will settle their ideological quarrel.

Mrs. Elman said he would be in the hospital for quite a while.

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) —From a ranch in Texas, telephone calls went out Christmas Day to three ex-presidents of the United States — Herbert Hoover, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

President Johnson said he just wanted to wish "Merry Christmas" to his predecessors.

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (AP) — Francis Cardinal Spellman said Christmas Mass at the South Pole and two other American bases in the Antarctic.

MISS NANCY DARRAH
She'll Wed R. A. Marshall.

Nancy Darrah's Wedding Plans Are Announced

Miss Darrah attended Cleveland Institute of Art, Carnegie Institute of Technology and the Art Institute of Pittsburgh.

Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Marshall of Carolina Ave., East Liverpool, attended Ohio University and is stationed at Yokota Air Base in Japan.

The wedding is planned for the latter part of 1964 upon the return of Airman Marshall to this country.

Christmas

was chairman and Glen Wilson co-chairman.

Toys were distributed to about 75 boys and girls at the Community Rescue Mission Christmas Eve by Carl Mansfield, superintendent. About 15 transient men were served Christmas dinner and given flannel shirts and socks.

Toys were delivered to boys and girls who were ill at their home and eight baskets of food were given to needy families.

Postmaster Samuel W. Brown and Wellsville Postmaster E. J. Evans said today employes are processing and delivering the many bags of tax forms that were received late Tuesday.

Both postmasters remarked that the volume of parcels delivered on Christmas Day was heavier than usual.

Brown said all parcels received were delivered yesterday. One route alone had 86. The men delivered between 250 and 300 parcels and today have started working on the 10 sacks of tax forms received.

Evans said the mail in Wellsville was cleaned up with no problems. Evans said he heard that the Chicago terminal was literally "jammed" with mail and parcels which probably accounts for the late delivery to the Post Offices.

The Wellsville carriers also are delivering tax forms today.

He noted that the number of federal employes had grown by 133,000 since 1961.

Boy Pays Attention At Lecture, Pays Off

PORTOLA VALLEY, Calif. (AP) —Marley Hay, 13, who paid attention to a school lecture on fire prevention, saw smoke curling under a bedroom door at his home.

He carefully opened the hot door slightly to let the family dogs, Jack and Putzi, squeeze through to safety.

Then he called the fire department. Firemen said had the boy opened the door wide a smoldering mattress would have burst into flames, possibly destroying the house.

Heart Attack Leads To New Hobby, Prizes

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A heart attack led to a new hobby and eventually a batch of blue ribbons for 59-year-old Otis Livingston, a Louisville accountant and loan company treasurer.

Since he took up the needle and began making handbags and chair covers, Livingston has won 14 blue ribbons at Kentucky and Texas state fairs plus 11 others for second and third prizes.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. What are some treatments I can give our spetic tank to avoid its giving us any trouble?

A. About once a month, mix a cake or package of compressed yeast with a little molasses or sugar, and flush this down the commode. It provides new, active bacteria and is especially helpful if you use detergents in your laundry or dishwashing —since some detergents, when used in large quantities, kill the bacteria necessary to the successful operation of a septic tank.

Q.—How can I prevent streaking when using bluing water?

A. Draw a cloth through the bluing water first to take up floating particles. Also dissolve the bluing in warm water. Shake the folds out of garments before putting them into the bluing water — and this should prevent any danger of streaks.

Q. — What can I do when my cedar chest or closet seems to be losing some of its fresh cedar aroma?

A. You can usually restore this fast with a light sandpapering over the wood. In this way you open the pores of the wood and encourage it to "breathe" again.

Q. How can I keep leather-bound books in good condition?

A. By rubbing the leather carefully with a little pure lanolin oil or castor oil every few years — just a little oil, mind you! On light-colored leathers, use white petroleum jelly. Some prefer a combination of neat's-foot oil (an excellent leather conditioner) and castor oil—equal amounts of each.

Q.—How can I make a limed-oak furniture finish?

A. Stir one pound of unslaked lime into two quarts of water. Rub this across the grain of the wood, and wipe when partly dry (to prevent accumulation of excess lime). Seal with two coats of thin white shellac, and finish with a thin coat of paraffin wax.

Boiler In Museum Somewhat Of Relic

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The boiler at the Museum of New Mexico complex will remain in the basement for awhile, but museum officials say it would serve better upstairs as a relic.

The State Finance Board turned down a museum request for a $7,500 emergency grant for additional heating facilities for the Palace of the Governors to take some of the pressure off the boiler, located in the art museum basement.

The board suggested the museum should take its request to the special session of the legislature next year.

Man Uses Auto Horn To Help Catch Sharks

SUMMERLAND KEY, Fla. (AP) —Floyd Flexon uses his automobile horn to help him catch sharks. He strings a bait line across a channel near his home and connects it to the horn. When the horn blows, it means a shark is on the hook.

Flexon sells the sharks to a restaurant which features them as an exotic menu item. More and more customers are acquiring a taste for shark and the restaurant owner says he can use all Flexon can catch.

Step Eyed To Reopen Probe In Alleged Buying Of Votes

CLEVELAND (AP) — Common Pleas Court Judge William J. McDermott planned today to meet with Mrs. Hamilton W. Wright to discuss the possibility of reopening a grand jury probe into allegations of vote buying efforts in City Council.

Monday night the grand jury cleared Councilman James V. Stanton of charges he tried to buy another councilman's vote in a sruggle for power in a caucus of Democratic council members. But the grand jury report said jurors were outraged by what it termed lies told by witnesses.

The jury heard 22 witnesses, including Stanton, Michael Fatica, who had accused Stanton of trying to buy his vote for council president, and Jack P. Russell, long-time council leader who was upset by Stanton in a Nov. 26 caucus. A number of other councilmen and newsmen also testified.

The jury found that the rumors of vote buying emanated from Russell's supporters and indicated the rumors were merely an attempt to discredit Stanton.

Mrs. Wright, the jury foreman, has said five councilmen who told a story of political pressure to influence votes gave one account, while a sixth told it "directly opposite." She said the sixth councilman might be the object of perjury proceedings. No names were given.

Meanwhile, a Plain Dealer poll indicated Stanton has gained support in council in the wake of the scandal. The newspaper said a poll of 23 members of the 33-member council found 16 Democrats supporting Stanton for president and Mrs. Mercedes Cotner for city clerk.

If the unit rule is followed, meaning that all 29 Democrats vote with the majority, Stanton appears assured of election when the council organizes early next month.

Over $500,000 Loss Estimated In W.Va. Blaze

WELCH, W. Va. (AP) — An early-morning fire gutted the Trailways Bus Terminal and two other buildings, and heavily damaged a furniture store, in downtown Welch today. No one was injured, however.

Firemen said the blaze apparently resulted from an explosion in a garage at the rear of the Trailways structure. It quickly engulfed that two-story building, destroying six buses.

Flames then spread to other two-story buildings housing a Maytag appliance store; the Welch Loan Co.; offices of two doctors; a State Welfare Department office, and several apartments.

Firemen reported that a building housing the H. and C. Furniture Co. was heavily damaged by smoke and water.

No immediate damage estimate was available, but it appeared the loss would run in excess of $500,000.

Pleas Court Rejects Travel Expense Claim

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The 10th District Court of Appeals has rejected the claim of Robert Koch of Van Wert to $2,628 for travel expenses while he was a member of the State Board of Liquor Control.

The appeals court upheld a Franklin County Common Pleas Court ruling against Koch in his action against Gov. James A. Rhodes and former Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy. The courts said there is no authority to pay such expenses as Koch claimed for travel between Van Wert and Columbus.

A Country School That Rings the Bell

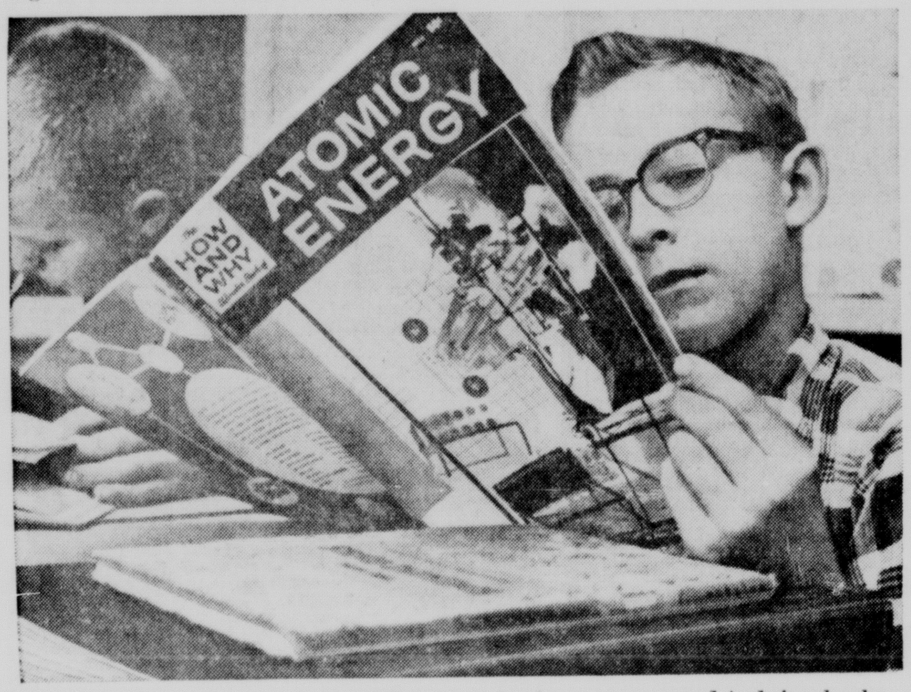
Modern Educational Theory in Full Use

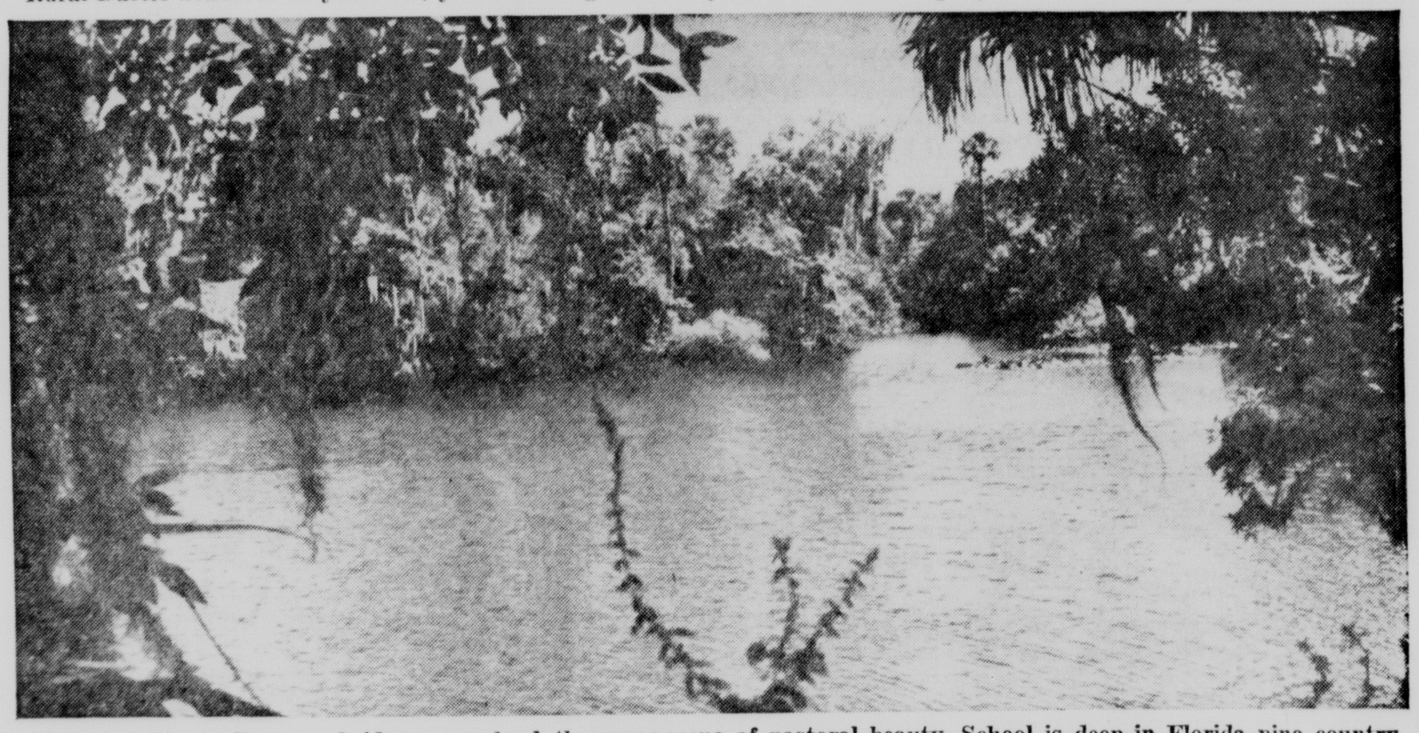
BIG CITY educators who frequently look askance at country schools would be in for something of a surprise were they to drop in for a typical day in Duette School, deep in Florida's Manatee County. Within the walls of the white clapboard structure, 42 pupils in the first to eighth grades study in two classrooms in an atmosphere far more educationally advanced than some overcrowded city schools. Study is carried out on a non-graded approach so that a child may proceed ahead in his best subjects with higher-graded pupils or slip back to catch up on others he finds more difficult. On an average day, second-graders may move over to a third-graders' table and read aloud from third-year books; first-graders, working on coloring books in a free period, may subconsciously absorb a lesson on Roman numerals during a joint exercise held by second, third and fourth-graders. All the classes remain flexible during the school year. Time, it appears, has drawn the shades on the fabled "little red schoolhouse" of yesteryear.

Rural Duette School is 32 years old, yet it is living laboratory of new educational program of maintaining ungraded classes.



Pupils with special interests at Duette School are encouraged to bring books from home to class for study. This boy bones up on a very scientific subject.

A flexible class, comprising youngsters from various grades, studies during reading period. Principal Wilkens stresses reading as THE basic subject.



As youngsters walk across bridge near school, they pass scene of pastoral beauty. School is deep in Florida pine country.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Heloise: My 11-month-old daughter always knocked her food from the spoon at feeding time . . . but not any more since I found the answer.

I eliminated that trouble by giving her something to hold in each hand during process! For instance: spoons, large jar lids, or anything which is harmless. By having each hand filled with something, this holds her attention.

I also give her dry cereal on her high chair tray. She absolutely loves to eat it with her fingers; she will not eat the cereal from a spoon. So? The cereal is at least eaten by hand-process and followed with her milk.

MRS. W. R.

DEAR HELOISE: Here's a hint for a quick hairset which might help some mother who is rushed to keep an appointment and must look her best. Istead of dampening hair with water, dampen it with rubbing alcohol. This evaporates quickly and your hair dries in a short time.

READER.

DEAR FOLKS: I cannot knock this. I have held this letter for three months and have tried it. This is especially good for the back curls on your neck which get greasy and stringy from time to time.

I have also checked with one of the biggest companies of hair spray and it does contain alcohol! Naturally, if you are allergic to alcohol don't use this method. There are many in the world who are allergic to soap and they don't use soap, either. . .

I also found that by squirting alcohol on a washrag and rubbing this unruly curl that you remove some of the oil which has accumulated. Thus, making it more curl-a-ble.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: I bought a blue-striped mattress cover with a zipper and covered my old fashioned coil bed spring. My husband helped me lift the spring, slip the mattress cover on and now it never gets dusty. Also, it looks like a box spring. Much neater than bare springs. Sure saves a hard dusting job.

DEAR HELOISE: Your tip on using damp cigarette ashes on a washcloth to clean and shine pewter was wonderful. I had an old pewter tea pot and never could get it to shine. Now it looks so good I have it on my buffet.

MRS. D. FAHANES.

DEAR HELOISE: I buy everything white that I possibly can. This means ALL the family underwear . . . most of their socks and pajamas are either white or light-colored . . . all towels, both kitchen and bath, all wash cloths, etc.

This means that every day I can easily make up an all-white load for my washing machine.

This way I can use real hot water, strong soap and bleach with no fear of fading and everything stays white.

One thing we housewives hate is a part load of some things too colored for a white load and not dark enough to go in the tub with jeans and black socks.

By buying most things white, most of my washday troubles were solved.

A READER.

DEAR HELOISE: I had a cotton lace tablecloth with old, old coffee and hot chocolate stains all over it.

I soaked it overnight in strong vinegar water and hung it in the sun. Then the next time I did my washing in the machine I put in the tablecloth and lo-and-behold . . . no more stains!

MRS. FRANK WEBSTER.

Fear Mars Berlin Yule

By AL SIMPSON
Brush-Moore Special Writer

BERLIN (By Airmail) — I was walking along a street in East Berlin, window shopping, when I got my first opportunity to talk with a resident of this gray ghetto. A tiny woman, very plainly dressed and carrying a small shopping bag, hesitated a moment and then spoke to me.

Smiles were rare in the East Berlin I saw. But she had one. It was in her bright blue eyes as she attempted to talk with me.

When she assured herself I was from "America," I could see the admiration in her eyes for the country whose uniform I was wearing.

I COULDN'T understand more than a word here and there but it made no difference. She simply had to talk with me.

Fearing her actions might get her in trouble with the East German government, I tried several times to terminate the conversation. But she kept right on talking.

Finally, I called the tour escort, who could interpret, and she said she was telling me of relatives in America and how, at this time each year, she used to exchange presents with them.

Then he was called up the street where a group of my blue-uniformed buddies was the center of a growing crowd of East Germans.

I SAID "Auf Wiedersehen" to the little woman, who, looking back over her shoulder and still smiling, went on up the street, and accompanied the tour escort, fearing some kind of incident.

My Air Force companions had been snapping pictures of a grocery window and were asking questions of a rather nicely dressed East German matron. Suddenly, a uniformed railway official (a member of the Communist party) appeared and began berating her.

But she was more than a match for him. She delivered a subtle thrust with a tongue-in-cheek question that sent him muttering into a nearby shop.

"Why shouldn't they take pictures?" she asked. "After all, they can SEE how much food we have."

FOOD THEY MAY have, but men — not enough.

We learned that Berlin, whose average citizen is 45 years old, has the highest suicide rate in the world, including a high percentage of women. The great imbalance of women to men is considered one of the significant causes of the self-inflicted deaths.

Both men's and women's fashions are modeled in fashion shows here in Berlin. And it's the mature, middle - aged or elderly men who always get the greatest applause as they stroll across the stage.

AFTER WE returned from our first tour of the Wall, we learned 30 shots had been fired on the east side of the Wall. We wondered why.

Today we know why at least one shot was fired. Eyewitnesses reported a young refugee had been captured as he was crossing the snow-covered "forbidden zone" toward the barbed wire along the Tetlow Canal.

He was led away from the Wall about 20 yards and shot down with a single bullet. His body was hauled away in a truck.

As we left our quarters to board our plane at Templehof Central Airport, headquarters of the only U. S. Air Force unit behind the Iron Curtain, I noticed the red-gold-and-black flag of the German Federal Republic was flying at half staff in memory of an American president.

I ALSO OBSERVED a sign beside the huge Christmas tree in the spacious airport grounds. It read, "Peace on Earth."

I share what must be the fervent prayer of millions of Berliners — that some day there will, indeed, be peace on earth — including this island called Berlin.

MISS NANCY DARRAH
She'll Wed R. A. Marshall.

Nancy Darrah's Wedding Plans Are Announced

Miss Darrah attended Cleveland Institute of Art, Carnegie Institute of Technology and the Art Institute of Pittsburgh.

Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Marshall of Carolina Ave., East Liverpool, attended Ohio University and is stationed at Yokota Air Base in Japan.

The wedding is planned for the latter part of 1964 upon the return of Airman Marshall to this country.

was chairman and Glen Wilson co-chairman.

Toys were distributed to about 75 boys and girls at the Community Rescue Mission Christmas Eve by Carl Mansfield, superintendent. About 15 transient men were served Christmas dinner and given flannel shirts and socks.

Toys were delivered to boys and girls who were ill at their home and eight baskets of food were given to needy families.

Postmaster Samuel W. Brown and Wellsville Postmaster E. J. Evans said today employes are processing and delivering the many bags of tax forms that were received late Tuesday.

Both postmasters remarked that the volume of parcels delivered on Christmas Day was heavier than usual.

Brown said all parcels received were delivered yesterday. One route alone had 86. The men delivered between 250 and 300 parcels and today have started working on the 10 sacks of tax forms received.

Evans said the mail in Wellsville was cleaned up with no problems. Evans said he heard that the Chicago terminal was literally "jammed" with mail and parcels which probably accounts for the late delivery to the Post Offices.

The Wellsville carriers also are delivering tax forms today.

Barbara Sneddon Becomes Bride In Double-Ring Rites

Miss Barbara Sneddon carried a Colonial bouquet of white carnations, centered with an orchid, when she became the bride of Jack Deshler Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the First Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sneddon of Myler Park Rd., and her husband's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Karl Deshler of Calcutta.

The Rev. John L. Clark, pastor, officiated for the double-ring ceremony before an altar banked with red poinsettia with a background of green velvet, pine trees and candelabra.

Boy Pays Attention At Lecture, Pays Off

PORTOLA VALLEY, Calif. (AP) —Marley Hay, 13, who paid attention to a school lecture on fire prevention, saw smoke curling under a bedroom door at his home.

He carefully opened the hot door slightly to let the family dogs, Jack and Putzi, squeeze through to safety.

Then he called the fire department. Firemen said had the boy opened the door wide a smoldering mattress would have burst into flames, possibly destroying the house.

Heart Attack Leads To New Hobby, Prizes

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A heart attack led to a new hobby and eventually a batch of blue ribbons for 59-year-old Otis Livingston, a Louisville accountant and loan company treasurer.

While recovering, Livinston watched his wife work on a needlepoint chair cover.

Since he took up the needle and began making handbags and chair covers, Livingston has won 14 blue ribbons at Kentucky and Texas state fairs plus 11 others for second and third prizes.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. What are some treatments I can give our spetic tank to avoid its giving us any trouble?

A. About once a month, mix a cake or package of compressed yeast with a little molasses or sugar, and flush this down the commode. It provides new, active bacteria and is especially helpful if you use detergents in your laundry or dishwashing —since some detergents, when used in large quantities, kill the bacteria necessary to the successful operation of a septic tank.

Q.—How can I prevent streaking when using bluing water?

A. Draw a cloth through the bluing water first to take up floating particles. Also dissolve the bluing in warm water. Shake the folds out of garments before putting them into the bluing water — and this should prevent any danger of streaks.

Q. — What can I do when my cedar chest or closet seems to be losing some of its fresh cedar aroma?

A. You can usually restore this fast with a light sandpapering over the wood. In this way you open the pores of the wood and encourage it to "breathe" again.

Q. How can I keep leather-bound books in good condition?

A. By rubbing the leather carefully with a little pure lanolin oil or castor oil every few years — just a little oil, mind you! On light-colored leathers, use white petroleum jelly. Some prefer a combination of neat's-foot oil (an excellent leather conditioner) and castor oil—equal amounts of each.

Q.—How can I make a limed-oak furniture finish?

A. Stir one pound of unslaked lime into two quarts of water. Rub this across the grain of the wood, and wipe when partly dry (to prevent accumulation of excess lime). Seal with two coats of thin white shellac, and finish with a thin coat of paraffin wax.

Boiler In Museum Somewhat Of Relic

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The boiler at the Museum of New Mexico complex will remain in the basement for awhile, but museum officials say it would serve better upstairs as a relic.

The State Finance Board turned down a museum request for a $7,500 emergency grant for additional heating facilities for the Palace of the Governors to take some of the pressure off the boiler, located in the art museum basement.

The board suggested the museum should take its request to the special session of the legislature next year.

Man Uses Auto Horn To Help Catch Sharks

SUMMERLAND KEY, Fla. (AP) —Floyd Flexon uses his automobile horn to help him catch sharks. He strings a bait line across a channel near his home and connects it to the horn. When the horn blows, it means a shark is on the hook.

Flexon sells the sharks to a restaurant which features them as an exotic menu item. More and more customers are acquiring a taste for shark and the restaurant owner says he can use all Flexon can catch.

Aliquippa Seen Favorite In Midland Cage Tourney

Quips To Meet Ohio Five; McKeesport, Midland In Second Tilt

Aliquippa has been installed as the pre-tourney favorite as the Midland Holiday attraction opens Friday night.

BONNIE SUE BUTTS

PAULA JEAN GREEN

Aliquippa, runnerup for the WPIAL title last year, has a 4-2 record going into the tourney. The Quips dropped contests to Penn Hills and McKeesport in early season games but have been coming on strong lately.

—:—

MCKEESPORT enters the tourney with a 4-1 mark with the only loss, a 72-65 decision to Uniontown.

BILL REILLY another Tiger starter, broke his arm early in the Uniontown contest and is out for six weeks.

An added attraction to the opening night events will be the selection of a tournament queen with eight teenage beauties sharing the spotlight Friday night.

Each participating school will have two representatives. The queen will receive gifts.

Midland's representatives will be Bonnie Sue Butts and Paula Jean Green.

Frozen Field Might Give Bills Edge In AFL Game

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—War Memorial Stadium, which today lies under a protective coating of chemical crystals and 50 tons of straw, will have its back massaged Saturday.

Still, you can't convince Boston's Mike Holovak or Buffalo's Lou Saban that modern science will prevent a frozen field for Saturday's Eastern Division title playoff in the American Football League.

The chemical crystals have been spread on the ground to promote melting. The straw provides heat to melt snow. And a tractor armed with high brushes will give the turf its massage.

Holovak and Saban, however, are making their plans on the assumption that the field will be frozen.

Holovak worked his Patriots out on a snowy practice field in Boston Wednesday and emphasized, "it will give us a preview of coming attractions. It might surprise us and turn out that the weather is less than frozen, but we're going on the assumption that we'll be playing on a frozen field."

Then he threw in some psychological warfare:

"A frozen field could put us behind the eight-ball. No question about it, a frozen field will help the Bills a lot more than it will help us. In fact, it's made to order for them."

Holovak based that fact on the different styles of Buffalo's Cookie Gilchrist and Boston's Larry Garron, the leading ground gainers for each team.

"A hard, frozen field," said Holovak, "would be better for Gilchrist's style than Garron's since Larry is a cutter and is best on a fast field. Gilchrist is a power runner—effective in any weather. And he should be particulary hard to stop on a frozen field."

Holovak said he also thought a frozen field would give the Bills an advantage to stress their passing.

Saban, however, wasn't about to concede the Bills would have all the advantages, but admitted Buffalo might have a surprise.

"I'm concerned about the weather," said Saban after sending his team through a workout in a Buffalo armory. "I think it will be a big factor. The footing concerns us most."

Choice Of Shoes For NFL Battle Is Up To Players

A number of Giants have said they would wear sneakers instead of the conventional cleats if frozen conditions prevail. The team will take along several dozen pairs of sneakers.

"I'm leaving that up to the players," Sherman said on Wednesday about the shoe problem. "Anyone who wants to wear sneakers may do it."

The condition of the field, of course, could help determine the outcome of the Giants' clash with the Bears. One expert sized it up this way:

"If it snows or rains, the odds undoubtedly will switch in favor of the Bears. If it is cold and the field is frozen, it will be in favor of the team with the best passing attack and that gives the Giants and Y. A. Tittle the edge. The passing team has the advantage because the receiver knows where he's going to go and can get that vital step on the defender. Of course, the Bears can pass, too."

Emerson Defeats American

Ralston Wins, McKinley Loses In Opening Round

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Unpredictable Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., won but American tennis ace Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex., lost today as the United States and Australia's defenders tied 1-1 in the opening singles of the Davis Cup Challenge Round.

Ralston, slender, 21-year-old University of Southern California junior, pulled out of a tail-spin to overcome 19-year-old John Newcombe, a surprise starter, 6-4, 6-1, 3-6, 4-6, 7-5, in the opening match of the best-of-five series for the storied Cup, symbol of world tennis supremacy.

Ron Emerson, 27, the Australian champion, downed McKinley, 22, the Wimbledon king from Trinity University of Texas, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5, 7-5 to even the competition before a capacity crowd of 7,000 in the Memorial Drive Stadium.

The outcome probably will be decided by the doubles match Friday in which Emerson and 30-year-old Neale Fraser will take on Ralston and McKinley. On Saturday, Ralston, who has been playing superbly in Australia, will meet Emerson and McKinley will oppose Newcombe.

Before the opening singles, the Americans, making their first appearance in the Challenge Round since losing to Australia 3-2 at Forest Hills, N.Y., in 1959, were favored to end the Aussies' four-year hold on the Cup. The Australians followed their victory over the U.S. with triumphs over Italy in 1960 and 1961 and over Mexico in 1962.

Ralston blew three match points when he was leading 5-3 and 40-0 in the fifth set. Newcombe pulled up to 5-5 but his inexperience proved costly when, with Ralston leading 6-5, he double-faulted to give Ralston match point. This time Denny didn't fail.

Emerson made a tremendous comeback in the third set after dividing the first two with McKinley. The rangy Queenslander seemed to be on the way out after losing the second set and trailing 1-4 and 3-5 in the third set. But he steadied his nerves and his service, and then broke McKinley's service in the 10th and 12th games to win.

In the fourth set, Emerson sensing victory raced off to a 4-1 lead.,, He could do no wrong. Then his game faltered and McKinley came storming back to tie the set at 5-5. But that was the stock collegian's last gasp. Emerson once again settled down, held service and made the key service break for victory.

'Chance Of Lifetime,' Roger Says Of Bowl

DALLAS (AP) — "It is the chance of a lifetime," said Roger Staubach.

Staubach quarterbacked the Navy team that had a 9-1 season, was picked as No. 2 in the nation and given the opportunity of playing national champion Texas.

The tall, handsome Heisman Trophy winner and All-America on everybody's team, flew into Dallas Wednesday night. He was with the advance guard as the Middies assembled at the site of the Cotton Bowl game to start the final stage of their training.

"We are looking forward to this game with great anticipation," said Staubach. "I am sure Texas players feel the same way, that it is an opportunity that comes only once in a lifetime."

Roger was a trifle grim as he expressed confidence in Navy's ability to beat Texas and lay an unofficial claim to the national championship.

He said he saw Texas against Oklahoma, watched Texas on television when it beat Texas A&M to wind up a perfect season and also studied the Longhorns in game films.

Lynch said Navy had played every game well, even the one it lost 32-28 to Southern Methodist. "If we were 0-10 and I had to watch the bowl games on television, I'd still say we played as well as we could, that we played every game well," said Lynch.

Jim Maloney First Hurler To Gain MVP

CINCINNATI (AP)—Fast ball pitcher Jim Maloney of the Cincinnati Reds, who led the team's hurlers in just about everything during the 1963 season, has set a new precedent. He became today the first pitcher to be voted by the Cincinnati chapter of the Baseball Writers Association as the team's most valuable player.

In winning the award, Maloney broke a near strangle-hold on the trophy by outfielder Frank Robinson. Robinson won it in 1959, 1961 and 1962.

Maloney, of Fresno, Calif., had a 23-7 record in 1963. He led the pitchers in victories, winning percentage, strikeouts, innings pitched, shutouts and starts.

He had a one-hitter against the Chicago Cubs, a two-hitter against the San Francisco Giants and a three-hitter against the New York Mets. One of his outstanding achievements was in a game he didn't even finish.

That was against Milwaukee May 21. He struck out eight straight Braves to equal a modern major league record, and he fanned 16 in all before being relieved in the ninth.

His 265 strikeouts for the season far surpassed the club record of 233 by Noodles Hahn that had stood for 62 years.

Statistics Favor G-Men In Big One

By JOE DILL

CHICAGO (AP) — When the final whistle sounds at Wrigley Field Sunday afternoon, ending the championship struggle of National Football League powers New York and Chicago, the question of the irresistible force and the immovable object should be answered.

Until then, the question is: which will be the deciding factor, the Giants' irresistible force — Y. A. Tittle — or the Bears' immovable object—their defense?

The talking game has been played on practice fields and in locker rooms since the Bears won the Western Division and the Giants were triumphant in the Eastern Division. Coaches have moved their pawns in an effort to gain prestige and about $6,000 per man, (the winner's share) one attempting to solve the Bears' defense, the other figuring ways to halt Tittle's passing.

Statistics appear to favor the Giants. New York has outscored the Bears 448-301 over 14 regular season games. The Giants have two runners in Phil King and Joe Morrison, who have outgained any Bear by more than 100 yards.

Tittle was the league's leading passer this season, and outdid Bear quarterback Billy Wade in statistics. End Del Shofner of the Giants caught 64 passes.

But while the Bears lost only once, the Giants' took it on the nose three times.

Tittle will be faced with what some consider the best pass defense in professional football.

If the field is dry — and the Bears are using all sorts of connivances to assure that it will be—the battle between the 37-year-old Tittle and the Bear secondary could be a classic.

Four defensive halfbacks — Rich Petibon, Rosey Taylor, Dave Whitsell and Benny McRae—combined to steal 29 enemy passes during the NFL season.

Giant blowers are fanning hot air on the field and tons of hay have been spread on the ground to help footing. Tarpaulins cover the ground when the blowers are silent.

Gator Teams Own 2-Minute Offense

By F. T. MACFEELY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Picture this possibility in the Gator Bowl football game Saturday: North Carolina leading by two points with two minutes left to play.

None of the 50,000 spectators better leave his seat and head for the parking lot. Nor is it a good time for a television viewer to go to the kitchen for another beer.

Terry Isaacson is perfectly capable of driving the Air Force Falcons the length of the field in two minutes and change the whole perspective.

He did it this season against Washington, Nebraska and Colorado.

Suppose the situation were the other way around and Air Force leads by two points with two minutes to play.

Same conclusion.

Coach Jim Hickey of North Carolina teaches a special stop-the-clock offense for just such a situation.

"We call ours the two-minute offense, for obvious reasons," Hickey said. "We simulate there being but two minutes left to play, a long way to go and only one time out remaining."

After nearly a week of practice at McCoy Air Force Base in Orlando, Coach Ben Martin brings his Air Force Falcons to Jacksonville today for the final polishing.

Illini Off Top Form In Drills

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Big Ten football champion Illinois seems in no danger of leaving its Rose Bowl game on the practice field.

In fact, the Illini may be hard-pressed trying to find their conference championship form before the New Year's Day tangle with Washington's Huskies.

"We had lousy blocking, lousy hitting, bad ball-handling and were awfully slow," snorted Coach Pete Elliott after a Christmas Day scrimmage which marked the first Illini "live" work since Thanksgiving Day.

The Illini celebrated Christmas with a two-hour mid-afternoon drill highlighted by a 30-minute offensive scrimmage against deep reserves equipped with expected Washington defenses.

"We're not close to game sharpness by any means," said Elliott, whose Illini started drills here a week behind the Huskies.

Sixteen practice days are allowed for Rose Bowl preparations. Washington had two-a-day sessions at nearby Long Beach from Dec. 16 until last weekend.

A Country School That Rings the Bell

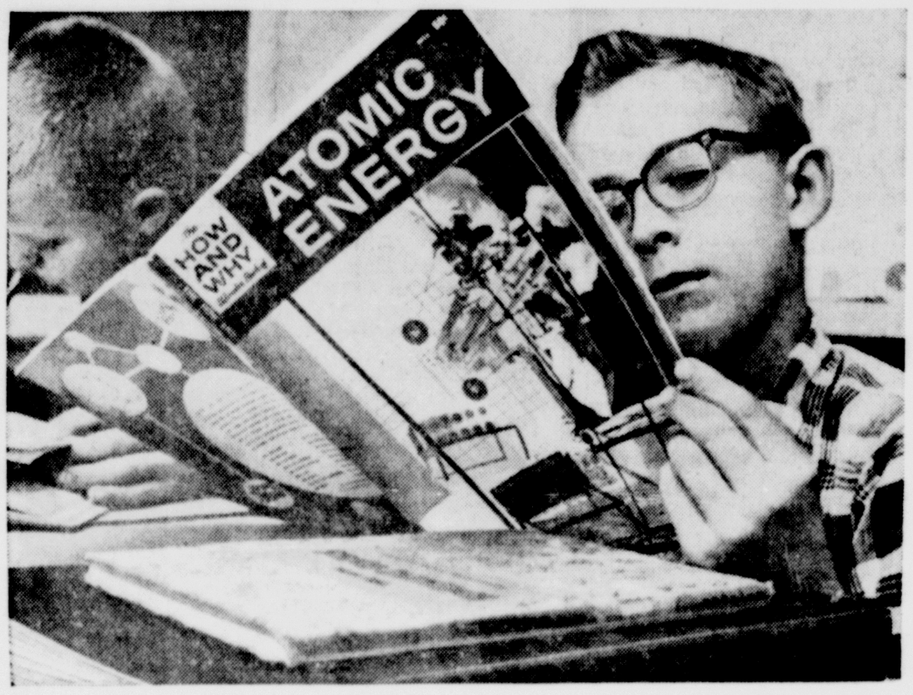
Modern Educational Theory in Full Use

BIG CITY educators who frequently look askance at country schools would be in for something of a surprise were they to drop in for a typical day in Duette School, deep in Florida's Manatee County. Within the walls of the white clapboard structure, 42 pupils in the first to eighth grades study in two classrooms in an atmosphere far more educationally advanced than some overcrowded city schools. Study is carried out on a non-graded approach so that a child may proceed ahead in his best subjects with higher-graded pupils or slip back to catch up on others he finds more difficult. On an average day, second-graders may move over to a third-graders' table and read aloud from third-year books; first-graders, working on coloring books in a free period, may subconsciously absorb a lesson on Roman numerals during a joint exercise held by second, third and fourth-graders. All the classes remain flexible during the school year. Time, it appears, has drawn the shades on the fabled "little red schoolhouse" of yesteryear.

Rural Duette School is 32 years old, yet it is living laboratory of new educational program of maintaining ungraded classes.



Pupils with special interests at Duette School are encouraged to bring books from home to class for study. This boy bones up on a very scientific subject.

A flexible class, comprising youngsters from various grades, studies during reading period. Principal Wilkens stresses reading as THE basic subject.

As youngsters walk across bridge near school, they pass scene of pastoral beauty. School is deep in Florida pine country.

★ ★ ★ 8 Major Tournaments Open Today ★ ★ ★

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It didn't make a real big splash back in the early 30s when the first holiday college basketball tournament was organized, but the idea did catch on.

It caught on so well, in fact, that the grand-daddy of them all, the All-College in Oklahoma City, is now over-shadowed by many of the nearly half a hundred tourneys that have sprung up across the country during the holiday season.

The 27th All-College is one of eight major tourneys that open play today as the vast tournament schedule hits full stride. A handful was completed last week. At least 13 others open Friday and another Saturday. Sitll others don't begin play until next week.

Probably the biggest one of them all this season is the Los Angeles Classic, which includes three of the nation's top-ranked teams — Michigan, UCLA and New York University — in its classy field of eight.

The other big ones include the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore., where defending champ and ninth-ranked Oregon State is the team to beat; the Big Eight at Kansas City, with tough Oklahoma State possibly the class; and the Holiday Festival in New York's Madison Square Garden, featuring Minnesota, Utah, Dayton and Villanova in a field of eight.

Wichita, a former champion and sporting a 6-2 record, is top-seeded in the old All-College, with Wyoming, Oklahoma City and Texas A&M the top challengers.

Defending champion UCLA and Michigan, touted as the class of the Big Ten, are the co-favorites in the Los Angeles Classic. Each is 6-0; Michigan No. 3 in the country and UCLA No. 4.

NYU, sporting such talent as All-America Barry Kramer and equally dangerous Happy Hairston, is ranked 10th in the country and must be considered a definite threat. The Violets, however, have had their troubles in the last three games, their record slipping to 4-2.

The luck of the draw, however, has Michigan matched with NYU in a first-round game and the winner going against UCLA, providing the Bruins are successful in their opener against Yale, 4-1. Semifinals are scheduled Friday, the finals Saturday.

In addition to Michigan-NYU and UCLA-Yale, the other first round games have West Virginia, 5-3, vs. Illinois, 3-2 and Pittsburgh, 3-2, vs. Southern California, 3-3.

Oregon State has won all of the previous seven Far West Classics and fully intends to do it again. The Beavers go into it with a 7-1 record, the No. 9 ranking in the country and 7-foot Mel Counts. Their biggest threat appears to be Seattle, unbeaten in six.

Utah and Dayton each are unbeaten and each bucking for a national ranking, but tough Minnesota, 5-2, may be the team to beat in the Holiday Festival in New York. Utah is 8-0, Dayton 7-0. Villanova, 6-1, tops the five Eastern representatives.

The first round, all today, has St. John's, N.Y., vs. Utah; Villanova vs. Dayton; Cornell vs. Minnesota and St. Joseph's, Pa., vs. Providence.

The Queen City and Gator Bowl both are four-team affairs. The Queen City offers Depaul vs. Canisius and Xavier, Ohio vs. Miami, Ohio, while the Gator has Air Force against Florida State and Manhattan against Florida.

Finley Eyes Cowpasture For Ballclub

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Charles O. Finley's man Friday says he is going hunting today for a cow pasture to convert into a baseball field for the Kansas City Athletics.

And said Pat Friday, general Manager for A's owner Finley, movers' vans will be moving the tangible assets of the baseball club out of Municipal Stadium and into a bank building.

These startling developments, if they occur, are an outgrowth of an impasse over rent between the controversial but never dull Finley and the city administration. The A's lease expires Dec. 31.

Mayor Ilus Davis and the city council have responded less spectacularly than Finley but they say it is only practical, if a new lease is not negotiated, that the club pay rent on this city property at the present rate.

The move out of the stadium, said Finley from his Chicago home, is to keep the city from getting him into a negotiation corner.

"I have been advised," said Finley, "that if we are in the stadium on Jan. 1 we will have committed ourselves to maybe another four-year lease or at least a one-year lease."

The principal bone of contention in the proposed lease is an escape clause that Finley insists on—that the A's could get the stadium for $1 a year—after he first four years — if the attendance doesn't go over 900,000. He says the city gave the Kansas City Chiefs American Football League club a comparable deal when they moved here from Dallas this season.

Alabama's Gridders Resume Drills Today

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's football players will lose any extra poundage put on by Christmas turkey today as they resume workouts for their Jan. 1 Sugar Bowl date with Mississippi.

Coach Paul Bryant has warned the clash could be the "greatest mismatch in bowl history" if team play doesn't improve.

Bryant said a lot of time will be spent on "learning how to block people," and other heavy contract work. This will knock out any kinks left in the Tiders from their four-day Christmas holiday break.

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The University of Oregon football team will fly today to El Paso to prepare for the Sun Bowl game against Southern Methodist Dec. 31.

U.S. Carrier Contaminated By Red Tests, Report Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radioactive fallout from Russia's 1961 nuclear tests in the atmosphere contaminated the giant U.S. aircraft carrier Enterprise, it was disclosed today.

The radiation persisted for about a month but did not endanger the health of those on the 86,000-ton nuclear-powered carrier.

The disclosure was made in a current publication of the Navy's Bureau of Medicine and surgery.

Written by Lt. Cmdr. Lewis H. Seaton, the article deals with radiation control aboard the Enterprise.

Seaton, a medical officer formerly stationed on the Enterprise, did not say just where or when the contamination occurred.

The Navy did not say immediately whether other ships were affected similarly.

As Seaton told it, rainstorms washed fallout from the sky to contaminate the carrier's outside areas "on the order of 10 to 20 times that allowable for the nuclear plant area."

This, he said, set in motion concerted efforts to prevent the fallout from entering the ship through the ventilation system or on the feet of the men. He added:

"There was no real danger to health, as levels of contamination were still within tolerable levels, averaged over a period of time."

It Fell All Right

BOYNTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A youth in the city recreation program fired an arrow into the air. It resulted in a claim for damages against the city and transfer of the program to a new park. The arrow, it seems, came to earth perforating an awning at the home of Arthur Hartwig.

President Well Up On College Fashions

He bought his daughter, Lynda Bird, 19, University of Texas sophomore, a red Marimekko dress from Finland for Christmas. The style is popular on American campuses.

Rice Instantly Aged

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A process providing "instant aging" for rice has been invented by a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist here. Compared with six to ten months for natural aging it takes only a few hours. The process is to seal it up for six hours at 200 degrees temperature.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Heloise: My 11-month-old daughter always knocked her food from the spoon at feeding time . . . but not any more since I found the answer.

I eliminated that trouble by giving her something to hold in each hand during process! For instance: spoons, large jar lids, or anything which is harmless. By having each hand filled with something, this holds her attention.

I also give her dry cereal on her high chair tray. She absolutely loves to eat it with her fingers; she will not eat the cereal from a spoon. So? The cereal is at least eaten by hand-process and followed with her milk.

MRS. W. R.

DEAR HELOISE: Here's a hint for a quick hairset which might help some mother who is rushed to keep an appointment and must look her best. Istead of dampening hair with water, dampen it with rubbing alcohol. This evaporates quickly and your hair dries in a short time.

READER.

DEAR FOLKS: I cannot knock this. I have held this letter for three months and have tried it. This is especially good for the back curls on your neck which get greasy and stringy from time to time.

I have also checked with one of the biggest companies of hair spray and it does contain alcohol! Naturally, if you are allergic to alcohol don't use this method. There are many in the world who are allergic to soap and they don't use soap, either. . .

I also found that by squirting alcohol on a washrag and rubbing this unruly curl that you remove some of the oil which has accumulated. Thus, making it more curl-a-ble.

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: I bought a blue-striped mattress cover with a zipper and covered my old fashioned coil bed spring. My husband helped me lift the spring, slip the mattress cover on and now it never gets dusty. Also, it looks like a box spring. Much neater than bare springs. Sure saves a hard dusting job.

DEAR HELOISE: Your tip on using damp cigarette ashes on a washcloth to clean and shine pewter was wonderful. I had an old pewter tea pot and never could get it to shine. Now it looks so good I have it on my buffet.

MRS. D. FAHANES.

DEAR HELOISE: I buy everything white that I possibly can. This means ALL the family underwear . . . most of their socks and pajamas are either white or light-colored . . . all towels, both kitchen and bath, all wash cloths, etc.

This means that every day I can easily make up an all-white load for my washing machine.

This way I can use real hot water, strong soap and bleach with no fear of fading and everything stays white.

One thing we housewives hate is a part load of some things too colored for a white load and not dark enough to go in the tub with jeans and black socks.

By buying most things white, most of my washday troubles were solved.

A READER.

DEAR HELOISE: I had a cotton lace tablecloth with old, old coffee and hot chocolate stains all over it.

I soaked it overnight in strong vinegar water and hung it in the sun. Then the next time I did my washing in the machine I put in the tablecloth and lo-and-behold . . . no more stains!

MRS. FRANK WEBSTER.

City firemen were kept busy over the holiday answering five minor alarms.

The first was Tuesday at 6:30 p. m. to the home of Eileen Collins, 1124 St. George St., when water leaking from a drain caused a short in a light fixture.

The home of Postmaster Samuel Brown, 2054 Lisbon St., filled with smoke Wednesday at 2:40 a. m. The motor on the furnace blower burned out, firemen said.

Firemen extinguished a fire in a car owned by Harry Grimes of Glenmoor at 3:20 a. m. on Dresden Ave. near Webber Way. The transmission overheated and set fire to grease and oil. The fire burned off all the wiring around the motor, firemen said.

A smoke investigation was made at the home of William McMasters, 1050 St. Clair Ave., at 3:44 a. m. Nothing was found, firemen said.

Fear Mars Berlin Yule

Brush-Moore Special Writer

BERLIN (By Airmail) — I was walking along a street in East Berlin, window shopping, when I got my first opportunity to talk with a resident of this gray ghetto. A tiny woman, very plainly dressed and carrying a small shopping bag, hesitated a moment and then spoke to me.

Smiles were rare in the East Berlin I saw. But she had one. It was in her bright blue eyes as she attempted to talk with me.

When she assured herself I was from "America," I could see the admiration in her eyes for the country whose uniform I was wearing.

I COULDN'T understand more than a word here and there but it made no difference. She simply had to talk with me.

Fearing her actions might get her in trouble with the East German government, I tried several times to terminate the conversation. But she kept right on talking.

Finally, I called the tour escort, who could interpret, and she said she was telling me of relatives in America and how, at this time each year, she used to exchange presents with them.

Then he was called up the street where a group of my blue-uniformed buddies was the center of a growing crowd of East Germans.

I SAID "Auf Wiedersehen" to the little woman, who, looking back over her shoulder and still smiling, went on up the street, and accompanied the tour escort, fearing some kind of incident.

My Air Force companions had been snapping pictures of a grocery window and were asking questions of a rather nicely dressed East German matron. Suddenly, a uniformed railway official (a member of the Communist party) appeared and began berating her.

But she was more than a match for him. She delivered a subtle thrust with a tongue-in-cheek question that sent him muttering into a nearby shop.

"Why shouldn't they take pictures?" she asked. "After all, they can SEE how much food we have."

FOOD THEY MAY have, but men — not enough.

We learned that Berlin, whose average citizen is 45 years old, has the highest suicide rate in the world, including a high percentage of women. The great imbalance of women to men is considered one of the significant causes of the self-inflicted deaths.

Both men's and women's fashions are modeled in fashion shows here in Berlin. And it's the mature, middle - aged or elderly men who always get the greatest applause as they stroll across the stage.

AFTER WE returned from our first tour of the Wall, we learned 30 shots had been fired on the east side of the Wall. We wondered why.

Today we know why at least one shot was fired. Eyewitnesses reported a young refugee had been captured as he was crossing the snow-covered "forbidden zone" toward the barbed wire along the Tetlow Canal.

He was led away from the Wall about 20 yards and shot down with a single bullet. His body was hauled away in a truck.

As we left our quarters to board our plane at Templehof Central Airport, headquarters of the only U. S. Air Force unit behind the Iron Curtain, I noticed the red-gold-and-black flag of the German Federal Republic was flying at half staff in memory of an American president.

I ALSO OBSERVED a sign beside the huge Christmas tree in the spacious airport grounds. It read, "Peace on Earth."

I share what must be the fervent prayer of millions of Berliners — that some day there will, indeed, be peace on earth — including this island called Berlin.

Hearing Set On River Bridge Clearance Data

The U. S. Army Engineers said a public hearing will be held at Cincinnati Jan. 26 to obtain factual information on vertical clearance requirements for bridges over the Ohio River in the interests of navigation.

As the modernization of the navigation system is under way, the new facilities will create longer pools at higher elevations, and the hearing will determine whether any changes might have to be made in the present determination of clearances, which include 63 feet above normal pool and 30 feet above extreme high water from Pittsburgh to the falls at Louisville, Ky.

The hearing will be open to all interested parties, particularly navigation interests. Army Engineers of the Pittsburgh, Huntington and Louisville Districts will preside. Those planning to attend have until Jan. 14 to notify engineers of their intentions.

9 Accept Nasser Call For Anti-Israel Talks

CAIRO (AP) — An Arab League spokesman says nine of the league's 13 members have accepted President Gamal Abdel Nasser's call for an anti-Israeli summit meeting in Cairo.

Nasser called for the meeting to consider the possibility of military action if Israel carries out its long-pending plan to divert waters of the Jordan River to irrigate the Negev Desert.

Nasser suggested the meeting be held Jan. 6, but a spokesman said the date had not been decided.

President's Christmas Is Gay And Busy Day

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) President Johnson's Texas Christmas was a gay and busy day that included inspecting his cattle, delivering poinsettias to his neighbors, entertaining kinfolk, eating a big turkey dinner and taking a speedboat spin on a nearby lake.

He did it all in relaxed fashion, dressed in sporty khaki range pants, green and brown checked sports jacket and orange cowboy boots.

He even had time to lease another 40 acres "more stomping ground" to add to the Johnson holdings of 400 acres adjoining the placid Pedernales River.

Johnson kept the family's turkey dinner waiting while he hobnobbed with the press, whom he invited to take holiday pictures of the family. And he conducted the crowd of some 50 reporters and photographers on a tour of the 12-room stone and frame ranch house where the Johnsons' Christmas presents waited under an eight-foot cedar tree in his comfortable ground-floor office.

The weather was in the balmy 70s, but a heated outdoor swimming pool, covered with blue pastic "to keep the leaves out," was not used.

Twenty-seven Johnson kinfolk gathered for Christmas dinner, with more of Mrs. Johnson's relatives due in time for New Year's. An added guest was 19-year-old Lynda Bird Johnson's elevated to the rank of Navy fiance, Bernard Rosenbach of nearby Comfort, Tex., newly lieutenant, junior grade. He's soon to be sent to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, Johnson revealed.

It was late afternoon before the Johnsons got to their presents and then sat down to the table to feast on roast turkey with corn bread stuffing and giblet gravy, sweet potato pie with marshmallow topping, string beans, salad and hot rolls. The desert was fruit cake, "traditional in my country," Mrs. Johnson said, plus a family favorite, ambrosia — oranges and pineapple topped with finely grated coconut.

The President, his wife and daughters have been dieting, but they forgot about it for the holiday and added eggnog to the evening gaiety.

After the family dinner ended at 4:30 p.m., the President called for his helicopter and took a 17-minute ride to visit Haywood Ranch, the 4,561-acre spread he owns in partnership with his friend and attorney, A. W. Moursund. Then he switched to a speedboat to ride around one of the highland lakes along the Pedernales River.

When Johnson announced he planned to get up at 6:30 a.m. today, his wife sighed, "I hope not."

Aliquippa Seen Favorite In Midland Cage Tourney

Quips To Meet Ohio Five; McKeesport, Midland In Second Tilt

Aliquippa has been installed as the pre-tourney favorite as the Midland Holiday attraction opens Friday night.

BONNIE SUE BUTTS

PAULA JEAN GREEN

Aliquippa, runnerup for the WPIAL title last year, has a 4-2 record going into the tourney. The Quips dropped contests to Penn Hills and McKeesport in early season games but have been coming on strong lately.

—:—

MCKEESPORT enters the tourney with a 4-1 mark with the only loss, a 72-65 decision to Uniontown.

Coach Neenie Campbell of McKeesport has been without the services of Dave Graham, a big center, who broke his foot in pre-season practice.

BILL REILLY another Tiger starter, broke his arm early in the Uniontown contest and is out for six weeks.

Martins Ferry, the only out-of-state invader, looms the darkhorse of the tourney. Winners of four straight, the Purple Riders in their latest victory downed Bellaire, 71-61. Coach George Milby's team has averaged 79 points a game.

An added attraction to the opening night events will be the selection of a tournament queen with eight teenage beauties sharing the spotlight Friday night.

Each participating school will have two representatives. The queen will receive gifts.

Midland's representatives will be Bonnie Sue Butts and Paula Jean Green.

Frozen Field Might Give Bills Edge In AFL Game

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—War Memorial Stadium, which today lies under a protective coating of chemical crystals and 50 tons of straw, will have its back massaged Saturday.

Still, you can't convince Boston's Mike Holovak or Buffalo's Lou Saban that modern science will prevent a frozen field for Saturday's Eastern Division title playoff in the American Football League.

The chemical crystals have been spread on the ground to promote melting. The straw provides heat to melt snow. And a tractor armed with high brushes will give the turf its massage.

Holovak and Saban, however, are making their plans on the assumption that the field will be frozen.

Holovak worked his Patriots out on a snowy practice field in Boston Wednesday and emphasized, "it will give us a preview of coming attractions. It might surprise us and turn out that the weather is less than frozen, but we're going on the assumption that we'll be playing on a frozen field."

Then he threw in some psychological warfare:

"A frozen field could put us behind the eight-ball. No question about it, a frozen field will help the Bills a lot more than it will help us. In fact, it's made to order for them."

Holovak based that fact on the different styles of Buffalo's Cookie Gilchrist and Boston's Larry Garron, the leading ground gainers for each team.

"A hard, frozen field," said Holovak, "would be better for Gilchrist's style than Garron's since Larry is a cutter and is best on a fast field. Gilchrist is a power runner—effective in any weather. And he should be particulary hard to stop on a frozen field."

Holovak said he also thought a frozen field would give the Bills an advantage to stress their passing.

Saban, however, wasn't about to concede the Bills would have all the advantages, but admitted Buffalo might have a surprise.

"I'm concerned about the weather," said Saban after sending his team through a workout in a Buffalo armory. "I think it will be a big factor. The footing concerns us most."

Choice Of Shoes For NFL Battle Is Up To Players

A number of Giants have said they would wear sneakers instead of the conventional cleats if frozen conditions prevail. The team will take along several dozen pairs of sneakers.

"I'm leaving that up to the players," Sherman said on Wednesday about the shoe problem. "Anyone who wants to wear sneakers may do it."

The condition of the field, of course, could help determine the outcome of the Giants' clash with the Bears. One expert sized it up this way:

"If it snows or rains, the odds undoubtedly will switch in favor of the Bears. If it is cold and the field is frozen, it will be in favor of the team with the best passing attack and that gives the Giants and Y. A. Tittle the edge. The passing team has the advantage because the receiver knows where he's going to go and can get that vital step on the defender. Of course, the Bears can pass, too."

Emerson Defeats American

Ralston Wins, McKinley Loses In Opening Round

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Unpredictable Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., won but American tennis ace Chuck McKinley of San Antonio, Tex., lost today as the United States and Australia's defenders tied 1-1 in the opening singles of the Davis Cup Challenge Round.

Ralston, slender, 21-year-old University of Southern California junior, pulled out of a tail-spin to overcome 19-year-old John Newcombe, a surprise starter, 6-4, 6-1, 3-6, 4-6, 7-5, in the opening match of the best-of-five series for the storied Cup, symbol of world tennis supremacy.

Ron Emerson, 27, the Australian champion, downed McKinley, 22, the Wimbledon king from Trinity University of Texas, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5, 7-5 to even the competition before a capacity crowd of 7,000 in the Memorial Drive Stadium.

The outcome probably will be decided by the doubles match Friday in which Emerson and 30-year-old Neale Fraser will take on Ralston and McKinley. On Saturday, Ralston, who has been playing superbly in Australia, will meet Emerson and McKinley will oppose Newcombe.

Before the opening singles, the Americans, making their first appearance in the Challenge Round since losing to Australia 3-2 at Forest Hills, N.Y., in 1959, were favored to end the Aussies' four-year hold on the Cup. The Australians followed their victory over the U.S. with triumphs over Italy in 1960 and 1961 and over Mexico in 1962.

Ralston blew three match points when he was leading 5-3 and 40-0 in the fifth set. Newcombe pulled up to 5-5 but his inexperience proved costly when, with Ralston leading 6-5, he double-faulted to give Ralston match point. This time Denny didn't fail.

Emerson made a tremendous comeback in the third set after dividing the first two with McKinley. The rangy Queenslander seemed to be on the way out after losing the second set and trailing 1-4 and 3-5 in the third set. But he steadied his nerves and his service, and then broke McKinley's service in the 10th and 12th games to win.

In the fourth set, Emerson sensing victory raced off to a 4-1 lead.,, He could do no wrong. Then his game faltered and McKinley came storming back to tie the set at 5-5. But that was the stock collegian's last gasp. Emerson once again settled down, held service and made the key service break for victory.

'Chance Of Lifetime,' Roger Says Of Bowl

DALLAS (AP) — "It is the chance of a lifetime," said Roger Staubach.

Staubach quarterbacked the Navy team that had a 9-1 season, was picked as No. 2 in the nation and given the opportunity of playing national champion Texas.

The tall, handsome Heisman Trophy winner and All-America on everybody's team, flew into Dallas Wednesday night. He was with the advance guard as the Middies assembled at the site of the Cotton Bowl game to start the final stage of their training.

"We are looking forward to this game with great anticipation," said Staubach. "I am sure Texas players feel the same way, that it is an opportunity that comes only once in a lifetime."

Roger was a trifle grim as he expressed confidence in Navy's ability to beat Texas and lay an unofficial claim to the national championship.

He said he saw Texas against Oklahoma, watched Texas on television when it beat Texas A&M to wind up a perfect season and also studied the Longhorns in game films.

Lynch said Navy had played every game well, even the one it lost 32-28 to Southern Methodist. "If we were 0-10 and I had to watch the bowl games on television, I'd still say we played as well as we could, that we played every game well," said Lynch.

Jim Maloney First Hurler To Gain MVP

CINCINNATI (AP)—Fast ball pitcher Jim Maloney of the Cincinnati Reds, who led the team's hurlers in just about everything during the 1963 season, has set a new precedent. He became today the first pitcher to be voted by the Cincinnati chapter of the Baseball Writers Association as the team's most valuable player.

In winning the award, Maloney broke a near strangle-hold on the trophy by outfielder Frank Robinson. Robinson won it in 1959, 1961 and 1962.

Maloney, of Fresno, Calif., had a 23-7 record in 1963. He led the pitchers in victories, winning percentage, strikeouts, innings pitched, shutouts and starts.

He had a one-hitter against the Chicago Cubs, a two-hitter against the San Francisco Giants and a three-hitter against the New York Mets. One of his outstanding achievements was in a game he didn't even finish.

That was against Milwaukee May 21. He struck out eight straight Braves to equal a modern major league record, and he fanned 16 in all before being relieved in the ninth.

His 265 strikeouts for the season far surpassed the club record of 233 by Noodles Hahn that had stood for 62 years.

Statistics Favor G-Men In Big One

By JOE DILL

CHICAGO (AP) — When the final whistle sounds at Wrigley Field Sunday afternoon, ending the championship struggle of National Football League powers New York and Chicago, the question of the irresistible force and the immovable object should be answered.

Until then, the question is: which will be the deciding factor, the Giants' irresistible force — Y. A. Tittle — or the Bears' immovable object—their defense?

The talking game has been played on practice fields and in locker rooms since the Bears won the Western Division and the Giants were triumphant in the Eastern Division. Coaches have moved their pawns in an effort to gain prestige and about $6,000 per man, (the winner's share) one attempting to solve the Bears' defense, the other figuring ways to halt Tittle's passing.

Statistics appear to favor the Giants. New York has outscored the Bears 448-301 over 14 regular season games. The Giants have two runners in Phil King and Joe Morrison, who have outgained any Bear by more than 100 yards.

Tittle was the league's leading passer this season, and outdid Bear quarterback Billy Wade in statistics. End Del Shofner of the Giants caught 64 passes.

But while the Bears lost only once, the Giants' took it on the nose three times.

Tittle will be faced with what some consider the best pass defense in professional football.

If the field is dry — and the Bears are using all sorts of connivances to assure that it will be—the battle between the 37-year-old Tittle and the Bear secondary could be a classic.

Four defensive halfbacks — Rich Petibon, Rosey Taylor, Dave Whitsell and Benny McRae—combined to steal 29 enemy passes during the NFL season.

Giant blowers are fanning hot air on the field and tons of hay have been spread on the ground to help footing. Tarpaulins cover the ground when the blowers are silent.

Illini Off Top Form In Drills

By JERRY LISKA
Associated Press Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Big Ten football champion Illinois seems in no danger of leaving its Rose Bowl game on the practice field.

In fact, the Illini may be hard-pressed trying to find their conference championship form before the New Year's Day tangle with Washington's Huskies.

"We had lousy blocking, lousy hitting, bad ball-handling and were awfully slow," snorted Coach Pete Elliott after a Christmas Day scrimmage which marked the first Illini "live" work since Thanksgiving Day.

The Illini celebrated Christmas with a two-hour mid-afternoon drill highlighted by a 30-minute offensive scrimmage against deep reserves equipped with expected Washington defenses.

"We're not close to game sharpness by any means," said Elliott, whose Illini started drills here a week behind the Huskies.

Sixteen practice days are allowed for Rose Bowl preparations. Washington had two-a-day sessions at nearby Long Beach from Dec. 16 until last weekend.

Gator Teams Own 2-Minute Offense

By F. T. MACFEELY

None of the 50,000 spectators better leave his seat and head for the parking lot. Nor is it a good time for a television viewer to go to the kitchen for another beer.

Terry Isaacson is perfectly capable of driving the Air Force Falcons the length of the field in two minutes and change the whole perspective.

He did it this season against Washington, Nebraska and Colorado.

Suppose the situation were the other way around and Air Force leads by two points with two minutes to play.

Same conclusion.

Coach Jim Hickey of North Carolina teaches a special stop-the-clock offense for just such a situation.

"We call ours the two-minute offense, for obvious reasons," Hickey said. "We simulate there being but two minutes left to play, a long way to go and only one time out remaining."

After nearly a week of practice at McCoy Air Force Base in Orlando, Coach Ben Martin brings his Air Force Falcons to Jacksonville today for the final polishing.

8 Major Tournaments Open Today

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

It didn't make a real big splash back in the early 30s when the first holiday college basketball tournament was organized, but the idea did catch on.

It caught on so well, in fact, that the grand-daddy of them all, the All-College in Oklahoma City, is now over-shadowed by many of the nearly half a hundred tourneys that have sprung up across the country during the holiday season.

The 27th All-College is one of eight major tourneys that open play today as the vast tournament schedule hits full stride. A handful was completed last week. At least 13 others open Friday and another Saturday. Sitll others don't begin play until next week.

Probably the biggest one of them all this season is the Los Angeles Classic, which includes three of the nation's top-ranked teams — Michigan, UCLA and New York University — in its classy field of eight.

The other big ones include the Far West Classic at Portland, Ore., where defending champ and ninth-ranked Oregon State is the team to beat; the Big Eight at Kansas City, with tough Oklahoma State possibly the class; and the Holiday Festival in New York's Madison Square Garden, featuring Minnesota, Utah, Dayton and Villanova in a field of eight.

Wichita, a former champion and sporting a 6-2 record, is top-seeded in the old All-College, with Wyoming, Oklahoma City and Texas A&M the top challengers.

Defending champion UCLA and Michigan, touted as the class of the Big Ten, are the co-favorites in the Los Angeles Classic. Each is 6-0; Michigan No. 3 in the country and UCLA No. 4.

NYU, sporting such talent as All-America Barry Kramer and equally dangerous Happy Hairston, is ranked 10th in the country and must be considered a definite threat. The Violets, however, have had their troubles in the last three games, their record slipping to 4-2.

The luck of the draw, however, has Michigan matched with NYU in a first-round game and the winner going against UCLA, providing the Bruins are successful in their opener against Yale, 4-1. Semifinals are scheduled Friday, the finals Saturday.

In addition to Michigan-NYU and UCLA-Yale, the other first round games have West Virginia, 5-3, vs. Illinois, 3-2 and Pittsburgh, 3-2, vs. Southern California, 3-3.

Oregon State has won all of the previous seven Far West Classics and fully intends to do it again. The Beavers go into it with a 7-1 record, the No. 9 ranking in the country and 7-foot Mel Counts. Their biggest threat appears to be Seattle, unbeaten in six.

Utah and Dayton each are unbeaten and each bucking for a national ranking, but tough Minnesota, 5-2, may be the team to beat in the Holiday Festival in New York. Utah is 8-0, Dayton 7-0. Villanova, 6-1, tops the five Eastern representatives.

The first round, all today, has St. John's, N.Y., vs. Utah; Villanova vs. Dayton; Cornell vs. Minnesota and St. Joseph's, Pa., vs. Providence.

The Queen City and Gator Bowl both are four-team affairs. The Queen City offers Depaul vs. Canisius and Xavier, Ohio vs. Miami, Ohio, while the Gator has Air Force against Florida State and Manhattan against Florida.

Finley Eyes Cowpasture For Ballclub

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Charles O. Finley's man Friday says he is going hunting today for a cow pasture to convert into a baseball field for the Kansas City Athletics.

And said Pat Friday, general Manager for A's owner Finley, movers' vans will be moving the tangible assets of the baseball club out of Municipal Stadium and into a bank building.

These startling developments, if they occur, are an outgrowth of an impasse over rent between the controversial but never dull Finley and the city administration. The A's lease expires Dec. 31.

Mayor Ilus Davis and the city council have responded less spectacularly than Finley but they say it is only practical, if a new lease is not negotiated, that the club pay rent on this city property at the present rate.

The move out of the stadium, said Finley from his Chicago home, is to keep the city from getting him into a negotiation corner.

"I have been advised," said Finley, "that if we are in the stadium on Jan. 1 we will have committed ourselves to maybe another four-year lease or at least a one-year lease."

The principal bone of contention in the proposed lease is an escape clause that Finley insists on—that the A's could get the stadium for $1 a year—after he first four years — if the attendance doesn't go over 900,000. He says the city gave the Kansas City Chiefs American Football League club a comparable deal when they moved here from Dallas this season.

U.S. Carrier Contaminated By Red Tests, Report Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radioactive fallout from Russia's 1961 nuclear tests in the atmosphere contaminated the giant U.S. aircraft carrier Enterprise, it was disclosed today.

The radiation persisted for about a month but did not endanger the health of those on the 86,000-ton nuclear-powered carrier.

The disclosure was made in a current publication of the Navy's Bureau of Medicine and surgery.

Written by Lt. Cmdr. Lewis H. Seaton, the article deals with radiation control aboard the Enterprise.

Seaton, a medical officer formerly stationed on the Enterprise, did not say just where or when the contamination occurred.

The Navy did not say immediately whether other ships were affected similarly.

As Seaton told it, rainstorms washed fallout from the sky to contaminate the carrier's outside areas "on the order of 10 to 20 times that allowable for the nuclear plant area."

This, he said, set in motion concerted efforts to prevent the fallout from entering the ship through the ventilation system or on the feet of the men. He added:

"There was no real danger to health, as levels of contamination were still within tolerable levels, averaged over a period of time."

President Well Up On College Fashions

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson proved he's well up on college fashions.

He bought his daughter, Lynda Bird, 19, University of Texas sophomore, a red Marimekko dress from Finland for Christmas. The style is popular on American campuses.

It Fell All Right

BOYNTON BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A youth in the city recreation program fired an arrow into the air. It resulted in a claim for damages against the city and transfer of the program to a new park. The arrow, it seems, came to earth perforating an awning at the home of Arthur Hartwig.

Rice Instantly Aged

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A process providing "instant aging" for rice has been invented by a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist here. Compared with six to ten months for natural aging it takes only a few hours. The process is to seal it up for six hours at 200 degrees temperature.

Alabama's Gridders Resume Drills Today

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's football players will lose any extra poundage put on by Christmas turkey today as they resume workouts for their Jan. 1 Sugar Bowl date with Mississippi.

Coach Paul Bryant has warned the clash could be the "greatest mismatch in bowl history" if team play doesn't improve.

Bryant said a lot of time will be spent on "learning how to block people," and other heavy contract work. This will knock out any kinks left in the Tiders from their four-day Christmas holiday break.

Flies To Bowl Site

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — The University of Oregon football team will fly today to El Paso to prepare for the Sun Bowl game against Southern Methodist Dec. 31.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Miss Elaine Mae Schock, 26, Shaker Heights, Ohio, was killed early today when an auto smashed into a underpass structure on Connecticut Avenue near Du-Pont Circle.

Injured were her sister, Mrs. Carol Furman, 25, of Washington with whom she had been visiting, her brother-in-law, Eric W. Furman, and David F. Childers, 28, Alexandria, Va., driver of the car.

Claimed At Age 93

Dr. Oberholser, 93, one of the first scientists to make detailed studies of migration habits and distribution of North American can birds, died Wednesday at Lakeside Hospital.

East End Mishap Damages 3 Cars

Seven crashes marred holiday traffic in East Liverpool, including an East End collision at 5 p. m. Wednesday that damaged three autos, police reported. No one was injured and only one driver was cited in the series.

The collision yesterday at Pennsylvania Ave. and Palissey St. involved a 1960 two - door sedan driven by Robert E. Exton, 60, of 2114 Ohio Ave., a 1961 four-door sedan operated by Francis Brogan, 52, of 642 Midland Ave., Midland, and a 1959 sedan driven by Mike Pakavich, 16, of 61-B, Midland Heights, Midland, officers said.

BROGAN SAID he halted on Pennsylvania Ave. to turn onto Palissey St. when the Pakavich car hit his auto from the rear and drove it into the front of the oncoming Exton auto. Pakavich told police his car skidded on slippery pavement.

Phillip Morgan, 32, of 1175 Erie St. was cited as an aftermath of a Pennsylvania Ave. collision Tuesday at 5:07 p.m.

His 1957 model four - door sedan was involved in a collission with a 1957 convertible operated by Charles H. Davis, 20, of 1143 Ohio Ave.

Morgan said he was turning off Pennsylvania Ave. into a service station when the oncoming Davis car hit his auto broadside. Davis told police Morgan made a turn in front of him.

MORGAN WAS cited on a charge of driving without an operator's permit.

Arraigned today before Acting Municipal Judge Paul Tobin, Morgan was fined $25 and costs, but both the fine and costs were suspended on condition he does not drive again without a license.

Two cars were damaged in a collision Tuesday at 5:43 p. m. at St. Clair Ave. and Broadway, police said.

The collision involved a 1955 sedan driven by William K. Price, 45, of 34d St. Ext., Chester, and a 1962 auto operated by Fred C. Jackson, 38, of Clearview Dr.

There was damage to the entire rear end of the Price auto and the front bumper of Jackson's car.

Earl Baughman, 39, of 925 May St. escaped unhurt Tuesday at 8:11 p. m. when his auto skidded into a utility pole on W. 8th St. 25 feet east of Edwards Ave., police said.

BAUGHMAN told police he was headed east about 25 miles an hour when his car went out of control, slid on ice and hit the pole. There was damage to the right front of the 1956 four-door sedan.

A parked car was damaged in a hit-skip collision Wednesday about 3 a. m. on Pennsylvania Ave., police said.

The owner's daughter said she heard a crash about 2:55 a. m.

A skid was blamed for a collision that damaged two autos Wednesday at 9:10 a. m. on E. 6th St. about 20 feet east of St. Clair Ave., police said.

THE MISHAP involved a 1955 four - door sedan driven by Samuel O. Okinbami, 21, of West Layfayette, Ind., and a parked 1952 club coupe owned by Gladys Bosel, 523½ Market St.

Okinbami, a student at Purdue University, told police he was turning east when his car slid on slush on the pavement and hit the parked car.

Another mishap was timed at 12:42 p. m. Tuesday at E. 5th and Walnut Sts.

It involved a 1956 two-door sedan driven by Carl N. Carnes, 25, of Marshallville, Ohio, and a 1962 model station wagon driven by James E. Hayes, 16, of 5th St., Chester, officers said.

Hearing Set On River Bridge Clearance Data

The U. S. Army Engineers said a public hearing will be held at Cincinnati Jan. 26 to obtain factual information on vertical clearance requirements for bridges over the Ohio River in the interests of navigation.

As the modernization of the navigation system is under way, the new facilities will create longer pools at higher elevations, and the hearing will determine whether any changes might have to be made in the present determination of clearances, which include 63 feet above normal pool and 30 feet above extreme high water from Pittsburgh to the falls at Louisville, Ky.

The hearing will be open to all interested parties, particularly navigation interests. Army Engineers of the Pittsburgh, Huntington and Louisville Districts will preside. Those planning to attend have until Jan. 14 to notify engineers of their intentions.

President's Christmas Is Gay And Busy Day

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) President Johnson's Texas Christmas was a gay and busy day that included inspecting his cattle, delivering poinsettias to his neighbors, entertaining kinfolk, eating a big turkey dinner and taking a speedboat spin on a nearby lake.

He even had time to lease another 40 acres "more stomping ground" to add to the Johnson holdings of 400 acres adjoining the placid Pedernales River.

Johnson kept the family's turkey dinner waiting while he hobnobbed with the press, whom he invited to take holiday pictures of the family. And he conducted the crowd of some 50 reporters and photographers on a tour of the 12-room stone and frame ranch house where the Johnsons' Christmas presents waited under an eight-foot cedar tree in his comfortable ground-floor office.

Twenty-seven Johnson kinfolk gathered for Christmas dinner, with more of Mrs. Johnson's relatives due in time for New Year's. An added guest was 19-year-old Lynda Bird Johnson's elevated to the rank of Navy fiance, Bernard Rosenbach of nearby Comfort, Tex., newly lieutenant, junior grade. He's soon to be sent to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, Johnson revealed.

It was late afternoon before the Johnsons got to their presents and then sat down to the table to feast on roast turkey with corn bread stuffing and giblet gravy, sweet potato pie with marshmallow topping, string beans, salad and hot rolls. The desert was fruit cake, "traditional in my country," Mrs. Johnson said, plus a family favorite, ambrosia — oranges and pineapple topped with finely grated coconut.

After the family dinner ended at 4:30 p.m., the President called for his helicopter and took a 17-minute ride to visit Haywood Ranch, the 4,561-acre spread he owns in partnership with his friend and attorney, A. W. Moursund. Then he switched to a speedboat to ride around one of the highland lakes along the Pedernales River.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Daughter Appreciates Mother's Special Gift

Sharing is the very heart of this column, and this is the perfect season for sharing. The greatest gift a mother could give her daughter is peace of mind. This is the precious gift received by an appreciative daughter, who writes:

Ida Jean Kain

"I am so proud of my mother who is soon to be 77 years of age. For 50 years she has been overweight, going from a slim 117 to 250 pounds during this time.

"TWO YEARS AGO she started counting calories and following your column, with the result that she is now down to 191 pounds and still losing a little every week. She is only 5' 5½" tall, so this has been a terrific burden to carry. She has lost this on her own, with no pills and no special diet.

"Don't you think she deserves to be written up to help other older women, who feel as discouraged as she did just two short years ago, to get a firm grip on 'lighter' days ahead?"

The daughter signed her name, of course, and then joyously added after it, "a happy daughter." She's a proud daughter, too, sharing her pride and joy in her mother with others. So, in a sense, the mother's gift also becomes a gift to others — this time from the daughter — a gift of inspiration and assurance, so much a part of this Christmastide.

I OFTEN wonder how many daughters become concerned with the advancing weight as well as the advancing years of their parents? Then when a letter such as this comes along, expressing the deep gratitude this one daughter felt for the quiet courage and determination of her mother exhibited in losing 59 pounds, it becomes the source of great inspiration to all who should trim down weight and add years to full and wonderful lives. By losing so many excess pounds, with the promise of a full return to healthy weight, this mother removed also a load from her daughter's mind and gave her the gift of peace of mind. Truly, this is a gift of the Magi.

Visitor Gets Airsick

Russian Woman Fearful Of Friday's Trip Home

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—Mrs. Nina Pozdneev is spending her last full day in the United States today, a little fearful of Friday's trip that will take her home to Moscow.

But her fears have nothing to do with politics or economics or any of the "ics" or "isms" that separate two nations.

It's just that Mrs. Pozdneev gets airsick, and, as she says, Moscow is "a long way, a very long way" from Portsmouth.

Mrs. Pozdneev, a plump and shyly pleasant teacher, her husband, Victor, and their two children have been spending the Christmas holidays as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James McKenzie and the city of Portsmouth. Their trip was sponsored by the Portsmouth Junior Chamber of Commerce as a project they call "Operation Peace on Earth."

It will be the celebration of the New Year, much in the same way Americans carry out the non - religious aspects of Christmas.

"On the first of January we have a free day," Mrs. Pozdneev explained. "It is a holiday for us. We have Father Frost with a large sack with presents for the children.

Mrs. Pozdneev, who teaches classes in English, explained that Father Frost is the Russian version of Santa Claus and the children believe he goes from house to house on New Year's Eve and leaves presents under the fir tree for good little boys and girls.

But this year, the Pozdneev children, especially 6-year-old Olga, also were paid a visit from Santa Claus. He came and gave candy canes to the children Christmas Eve. Beneath the large Christmas tree in the McKenzies' living room Christmas morning, Olga found three dolls, doll clothes and two pairs of shoes.

For 16-year-old Anatoly there was an American football and a miniature auto racing set. Pozdneev, an automotive engineer in Moscow, received shirts and ties. Presents for Mrs. Pozdneev included shoes, a coat and sweater.

When the Pozdneevs return to Moscow they will also bring American-made gifts for friends and relatives, New Year's gifts Mrs. Pozdneev has purchased on several shopping trips in Portsmouth.

Mrs. McKenzie and her friend, Mrs. Ronald McCowen, chided the Russian woman as a tireless shopper. "We were just exhausted," they complained good-naturedly, "but she had the energy to keep on going."

The pace in Portsmouth has been stiff for the family. Included in today's schedule were trips to local courts and banks, the fire station and some industries.

The family has been trying to keep up with the activities. Mrs. Pozdneev says she will rest when she gets home in time for the two-week New Year's vacation from school.

Expressing her joy for the trip and how grateful she was for the friendliness of the people of Portsmouth, Mrs. Pozdneev also indicated a bit of homesickness.

"We Russians have a saying," she said, "to be guests, good to go home, better."

2 Perish, 7 Hurt In Conneaut Fire

CONNEAUT, Ohio (AP) — Christmas turned to tragedy for the Finlaw family — brothers, sisters, uncles and aunts—when fire broke out at their two-family home. Two persons died. Seven others were injured.

Phillip Finlaw, 31, who was bobbled by a cast on his leg from a previous injury, saved his four small children by throwing them 20 feet from a second-story window into two feet of snow. The children suffered only bruises and cuts.

Phillip Finlaw, however, rebroke his leg as he jumped from the top floor. His wife had died recently of cancer. The children are Carrie Lynn, 8, Rebecca, 6, Marty, 5, and Matthew, 3.

Still Unconscious

ELGIN, Scotland (AP)—For the fifth straight Christmas, Maj. Reginald Bristow lay unconscious on a hospital bed Wednesday. He was injured in a road accident on March 20, 1959. His wife and two children visited him this Christmas Day.

Up to 6,000 scientists, most of them from the United States, are expected to register for the five - day meeting which will feature more than 1,500 reports and other presentations embracing all branches of science from astronomy to zoology.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Good Reader Has Trouble With Spelling

More often than not a child who is a very good reader is a good speller. But such does not always happen. From Ontario, Canada, a mother writes: "Our little daughter, 7, in grade two is a wonderful reader. She reads morning, noon and night with books under her pillow to pick up as soon as she opens her eyes.

Dr. Garry Meyers

When she opens a book, I mean any book, for I have every kind you can think of for a child to read, she seems so happy she reminds me of a person being set free; she sighs and seems so relaxed.

"Now for my problem: When it comes to writing her exams at school she can't seem to write what she wants. She cannot spell them and she fails in all her tests except reading and arithmetic.

IN SCIENCE AND social studies she tries to answer the questions but the words she thinks of she can't spell; so she tries to write something that will sound like the word but has no meaning to anyone else.

"I would like to know if there is anything I could or I should do to help her or should I just leave her alone? I'm confused —the teacher tells me she's a wonderful little student, never any other complaint but this."

Here I am violating a personal rule not to print any letter not answered first by me personally. It reports a problem facing many other parents, and warrants the following discussion.

It's wonderful that this child reads so well and derives so much enjoyment from reading and is also good in arithmetic. With her phenomenal reading success, she probably will eventually find ways to be a good speller, too. However, it is obvious that she suffers severly from her inability to spell when she writes.

We may infer that she has more than average intelligence. Therefore, she might easily see why she should learn to spell and be ready to cooperate with you to this end.

CONTINUE TO show satisfaction over her excellence in reading and arithmetic. Have her each evening help you pick out four or five short, easy-to-spell words from a book she is reading. Copy them plainly, each word on a separate slip of paper. If you have a typewriter she might like to type them with your help.

Ask her to look carefully at one word of this list, to pronounce it, being sure she knows its meaning; then to say aloud the letters in this word from left to right as she carefully looks at them before her.

Instead, win her to pronounce and then to spell this same word while looking at it carefully right before her again and again, at least four or five times, before trying to spell it from memory.

Then as you pronounce it again for her, have her write it carefully. Don't hurry. Be very calm and serene. Make your slogan, "Accuracy — never a mistake."

ONCE SHE ACQUIRES the pattern of careful, accurate study of the spelling of a few words, she might well attack a few more words each evening.

If she can bring home from school any of her written work, you could help her in the foregoing ways to master the spelling of some of the words.

Also she may have some trouble at handwriting. I'm enclosing my bulletins, "Home Help in Handwriting" and "Home Help in Spelling", which any one else may receive by sending a self - addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

Rotarians Hear Director

High School Bands Face Busy Period Of Winter

The end of football season signals the beginning of work on concert music and tests for the "Twin Bands" of East Liverpool High School, Vincent L. Maola told the Rotary Club Tuesday in the Travelers Hotel.

Activities of the twin bands are many during the winter months, Maola said, and include concerts at assemblies, and performances by four or five small groups organized to provide entertainment and at the same time sharpen the ability of the musicians.

Seventy - eight musicians made up one marching band in the fall, and there were 62 in the other.

These groups were organized into two concert bands in the winter, one for the top musicians, and one for those of lesser ability at the moment, the director of instrumental music told the club.

The musicians will continue to undergo the Watkins - Farnum Achievement Series tests when school resumes after the holidays. The objective is to achieve as high a score as possible in the national tests. The results aid Maola in determining seating arrangements for concerts.

"Music on the lighter side after the grid season includes performances by two 16-member stage bands, the Potters Five novelty group, and three new groups — Girls Dixieland Band, sophomore dance band, and basketball band," Maola said. In addition, there are a number of quartets and other groups working together, he added.

He asserted the transition to concert music from the marching music of the football season is difficult for some musicians, in particular the percussionists.

Maola joined Rick Fisher, Hall Ball and Amos Hamilton in a clarinet quartet that performed two selections, "Suite for Four Equal Clarniets" and "Interlude for a Clarinet Quartet."

Maola said 35 musicians will graduate this spring. He has been director of instrumental music for four years, and a teacher in the city system for eight years.

He concluded the program by reading a satire in "The Night Before Christmas."

Ralph A. Finley, president, presented Christmas gifts to Mrs. Nova Dell Anderson, pianist, and Miss Eva Wasbutzky, who assists Harold B. Barth, secretary.

George Hargraves presented a gift to Ted Waters, recipient of the Rotary scholarship from the Citizens Scholarship Foundation. He is a freshman at Ohio State University.

Thousands Pay Silent Homage To President

96 Million In Japan

TOKYO, (AP)—Japan's population stood at 96,160,000 as of Oct. 1, making Japan the seventh most populated nation in the world, the government's statistics office reported Wednesday. This was an increase of 978,000 persons over the previous year.

When a recipe directs you to "punch down" yeast dough, all you have to do is to plunge your fist into the center and then pull the edges of the dough from the sides of the bowl toward the center.

Bishop Views Last Year As Encouraging

CLEVELAND (AP) — Auxiliary Bishop John F. Whealon of the Cleveland Catholic Diocese, preaching a sermon at Christmas Mass, said he believed that from the viewpoint of religion the last year had been encouraging.

Archbishop Edward F. Hoban was celebrant of the Mass in St. John Cathedral, where about 2,000 persons from all parts of the diocese had gathered.

"In spite of sorrowful happenings and continuing irreligion," said Bishop Whealon, "there has been in 1963 some progress toward a wiser and better understanding of Christ and of Christianity. Perhaps the momentous events of the last year leave us wiser and better persons."

A Better Filing System Is Needed

Television can justifiably brag (and it does) as a recorder of history-making events as they happen. But the medium is woefully inept at keeping files of what it has recorded.

Hal Humphrey

Mel Stuart found this out while putting together film for the 90-minute documentary which scriptwriter Theodore H. White has based on his Pulitzer Prize book, "The Making of the President—1960," to be televised Sunday night on ABC-TV.

"I found that lots of TV tapes from the 1960 presidential campaign already have been erased, and this made it very difficult to include the kind of personal and behind-the scenes stuff we needed," Stuart says.

He couldn't believe, for example, that neither TV nor the newsreel companies had any record of Democratic nominee John F. Kennedy's return to Boston the day before the election. Such was the case, however.

To show the Kennedy family at the makeshift election-night headquarters set up in the Hyannis Port home, Stuart had to rely on the still-photo shots of Jacques Lowe. If TV and newsreels were on the scene (and I seem to recall they were), no film or tape is in existence to prove it.

STUART DID manage to unearth a few intimate and behind-the-scenes views of candidates Kennedy and Nixon. An especially interesting one showed the two of them getting prepared and being briefed just prior to their first network TV debate from Chicago.

Whenever Stuart had such material and included it in this 90-minute study of the 1960 campaign, his film took on new life. Unfortunately, he couldn't find enough so that much of what the TV viewers will see are scenes most of them already saw at the time the events occurred.

As it was, Stuart and author White scanned one million feet of film and tape in the last 15 months. From this they picked 100,000 feet or 40 to 50 hours of viewing, which had to be trimmed to the final 2,800 feet you will see.

Logistics such as these provide the one alibi which TV stations and newsreel companies have for not having complete records. Where, they can ask, would they store all these rolls of film and tape?

OBVIOUSLY, at the rate history is traveling and TV is recording it, there wouldn't be space enough even on the moon. What should be done, however, is a more discriminating job of tape and film which is stored.

Producer Stuart had no problem finding countless reels showing the candidates in ticker-tape parades, making speeches and shaking hands. These were kept while scenes of crucial caucuses and whispered conferences aboard campaign trains and planes were erased or tossed out as unimportant historical data.

Television needs to hire trained men who can set up libraries containing the best and most vital of the documentary scenes it is constantly recording.

The necessity of this is demonstrated in "The Making of the President—1060." Author White did not change a line in his script subsequent to President Kennedy's assassination, but the ghost of the assassin hangs like an extra bright searchlight over each line and each picture.

This film - documentary should impress TV executives as nothing else has of the importance for preserving those scenes which ultimately will make the best visual record of history for future generations.

Some say that such a film shouldn't be shown so closely in the wake of the emotional shock wave left by the assassination. Like many things in our history, this turns out to be a case of expedience taking precedence over other judgments.

The sponsor postponed showing of a "Bay of Pigs" documentary on another network, due to President Kennedy's assassination but for budgetary and tax purposes needed something to replace it before the end of the calendar year.

EAST PALESTINE — Bids will be opened by the Board of Control Jan. 3 for a new two-ton street department dump truck, to cost an estimated $4,300. Previous bids were rejected because they exceeded the estimate of $4,000, and Council subsequently appropriated $300 more.

Mackey Selected Administrator In 2nd Pension Plan

Donald Mackey, 606 Fisher Ave., one of the owners of the Francis P. White Agency on W. 6th St., has been named administrator of the pension plan set up a year ago by chinaware manufacturers and the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

Mackey was selected jointly by union and management representatives. He already had been serving as administrator and secretary of another pension plan created a year ago by agreement between the IBOP and U. S. Potters Association member firms.

The Pittsburgh National Bank will handle investment of funds in the chinaware pension plan. In both pension plans, management and union have five representatives each on the Board of Trustees.

Both plans are financed by employer contributions for each hour worked by covered employes. In the case of the chinaware industry, the contribution is 3 cents hourly in the first year; rising to 5 cents in the second year and 8 cents in the third.

2 Get $100 Fines In Booth Cutting At Restaurant

Two East Liverpool youths were fined $100 and costs Tuesday in Municipal Court when Acting Judge Paul Tobin convicted them on charges of malicious destruction of property by slashing the upholstery in a booth in the New York Restaurant Dec. 15.

Francis Fetty of Sophia St. and Joseph Howell of Princeton Ave. were named in affidavits signed by C. J. Curtis, one of the proprietors of the restaurant. His charges alleged that the upholstery was "cut and slashed" with a "knife or other sharp object."

Curtis testified the damage totaled $55 to $60. He said it was discovered moments after the pair left the restaurant. The proprietor also testified a third youth was involved, but did not name him.

The acting judge told the two defendants he will show leniency in remitting the fine if they make arrangements to pay for the damage. The two were taken into custody on warrants at 12:25 a. m. Tuesday. Both pleaded not guilty.

Three Inmates Pick Lock To Escape Jail

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP)— Three inmates of the Ross County jail escaped today after picking a lock, officials reported.

They were identified as Roland Wallace Jr., 35, and Wayne Smith, 36, both of Pike County, Ky., and James L. Shaw, 24, of Chillicothe.

No other details were available.

Southeastern Areas Nipped By Cold Air

By The Associated Press

Freezing weather was reported in sections of Florida, southern Georgia and southeast Alabama. In Florida, the mercury dropped to 25 above in Cross City, with a reading of 28 in Tallahassee, 30 in Gainesville and 36 in Daytona Beach. Miami's low was 46.

But Weather Bureau officials forecast warmer weather in the Southeast and a little cooler in the North-Central region. Little change was indicated in other areas.

Temperatures dropped to near zero in parts of Maine and Idaho but no severe cold or heavy snow was reported across the country. Light snow or flurries fell across the Northern tier of states while light rain dampened areas in Oregon and western Washington.

A warming trend in the Central and Southern Plains Wednesday sent temperatures far above normal in many areas. The 63 mark in Norfolk, Neb., was a record high for Dec. 25.

Car Hit Twice At Wellsville

A car driven by Claude Weekley, 609 15th St., was struck twice. The first accident was at the intersection of Riverside Ave. and Cherry Alley at 11:10 a. m. when another car driven by William Gitschier of Russell Heights slid into him.

Then at 12:23 p. m., Weekley was stopped for a traffic light on 15th St. when he was hit in the rear by another sliding car operated by Charles Gray of Carrollton R. D. 1.

An Ohio Power Co. truck driven by Milford Gitschier, 213 8th St., Wellsville, was hit in the rear at 2:05 p. m. at 15th and Main Sts. by a car driven by William Mull of Washington, Pa.

A car driven by Frank Cuffaro, 1307 Commerce St., Wellsville, was hit in the rear by another driven by William Smith, 1819 Chester Ave., Wellsville, at 4:15 p. m. at Main and 11th Sts. Cuffaro was stopped for a traffic light, police said.

A car driven by James Mellott, 1003 Main St., Wellsville, slid off Henry Ave. into the yard of a home at 6:40 p. m.

No citations were issued, police said.

Two persons were killed on Christmas Eve in a two-car collision on U.S. 21 near Charleston. They were Ira Ranson, 42, of Charleston, and Vernon Halstead, 34, of South Charleston.

Rodney Underwood, 24, of Sylvester, died Christmas Day after his car hit a bridge on W.Va. 3 near Whitesville, Boone County.

$17 Increase Over Last Year

Cost To Educate Child This Year Set At $352

By G. K. HODENFIELD
A.P. Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average cost of educating a child in the public schools this school year is $352, an increase of $17 or 5 per cent over last year, the magazine School Management reported today.

The magazine said only $7 of the increase will be spent for better education, with the other $10 being used simply to offset the effects of inflation.

The survey broke the increase of per-pupil expenditures into regions, showing the change from 1962-63 to 1963-1964 and the per cent of the change.

In the Midwest region, which includes Ohio, the magazine said per pupil expenditures increased from $345 to $376, or 9 per cent.

Furno estimates that public schools across the country will spend $20.3 billion this school year, including the costs of school transportation, building and equipping new schools, and paying off old school debts.

The average cost per student for bus transportation is $16, and Furno said the school districts will spend $47 per student for new school construction this school year. These costs are in addition to the $352 per-pupil expenditure.

School debts, mostly long-term bonds for school construction, totaled $388 per student in the average school district as of last Sept. 1. Almost 10 per cent of the country's school districts were in debt $1000 for each pupil enrolled.

The magazine said only 10 per cent of the nation's school districts have salary scales which make it possible for classroom teachers to earn more than $9,500 a year.

The average teacher will earn $5,837 this school year, school management said. The average starting salary was listed as $4,600 and the average maximum salary, $7,307.

Hancock Prisoners' Restrictions Lifted

Ida Jean Kain

Sharing is the very heart of this column, and this is the perfect season for sharing. The greatest gift a mother could give her daughter is peace of mind. This is the precious gift received by an appreciative daughter who writes:

"I wish to share this bit of happiness with you and all the other readers of your column.

"I am so proud of my mother who is soon to be 77 years of age. For 50 years she has been overweight, going from a slim 117 to 250 pounds during this time.

"TWO YEARS AGO she started counting calories and following your column, with the result that she is now down to 191 pounds and still losing a little every week. She is only 5' 5½" tall, so this has been a terrific burden to carry. She has lost this on her own, with no pills and no special diet.

"Don't you think she deserves to be written up to help other older women, who feel as discouraged as she did just two short years ago, to get a firm grip on 'lighter' days ahead?"

The daughter signed her name, of course, and then joyously added after it, "a happy daughter." She's a proud daughter, too, sharing her pride and joy in her mother with others. So, in a sense, the mother's gift also becomes a gift to others — this time from the daughter — a gift of inspiration and assurance, so much a part of this Christmastide.

I OFTEN wonder how many daughters become concerned with the advancing weight as well as the advancing years of their parents? Then when a letter such as this comes along, expressing the deep gratitude this one daughter felt for the quiet courage and determination of her mother exhibited in losing 59 pounds, it becomes the source of great inspiration to all who should trim down weight and add years to full and wonderful lives. By losing so many excess pounds, with the promise of a full return to healthy weight, this mother removed also a load from her daughter's mind and gave her the gift of peace of mind. Truly, this is a gift of the Magi.

Visitor Gets Airsick

Russian Woman Fearful Of Friday's Trip Home

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—Mrs. Nina Pozdneev is spending her last full day in the United States today, a little fearful of Friday's trip that will take her home to Moscow.

But her fears have nothing to do with politics or economics or any of the "ics" or "isms" that separate two nations.

It's just that Mrs. Pozdneev gets airsick, and, as she says, Moscow is "a long way, a very long way" from Portsmouth.

Mrs. Pozdneev, a plump and shyly pleasant teacher, her husband, Victor, and their two children have been spending the Christmas holidays as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James McKenzie and the city of Portsmouth. Their trip was sponsored by the Portsmouth Junior Chamber of Commerce as a project they call "Operation Peace on Earth."

Awaiting the Pozdneevs at their return home are days of wrapping packages, setting up and decorating a fir tree, visiting friends and celebrating a time of good cheer.

It will be the celebration of the New Year, much in the same way Americans carry out the non - religious aspects of Christmas.

"On the first of January we have a free day," Mrs. Pozdneev explained. "It is a holiday for us. We have Father Frost with a large sack with presents for the children.

Mrs. Pozdneev, who teaches classes in English, explained that Father Frost is the Russian version of Santa Claus and the children believe he goes from house to house on New Year's Eve and leaves presents under the fir tree for good little boys and girls.

But this year, the Pozdneev children, especially 6-year-old Olga, also were paid a visit from Santa Claus. He came and gave candy canes to the children Christmas Eve. Beneath the large Christmas tree in the McKenzies' living room Christmas morning, Olga found three dolls, doll clothes and two pairs of shoes.

For 16-year-old Anatoly there was an American football and a miniature auto racing set. Pozdneev, an automotive engineer in Moscow, received shirts and ties. Presents for Mrs. Pozdneev included shoes, a coat and sweater.

For the McKenzie family there were records, caviar, books and toys.

When the Pozdneevs return to Moscow they will also bring American-made gifts for friends and relatives, New Year's gifts Mrs. Pozdneev has purchased on several shopping trips in Portsmouth.

Mrs. McKenzie and her friend, Mrs. Ronald McCowen, chided the Russian woman as a tireless shopper. "We were just exhausted," they complained good-naturedly, "but she had the energy to keep on going."

The pace in Portsmouth has been stiff for the family. Included in today's schedule were trips to local courts and banks, the fire station and some industries.

The family has been trying to keep up with the activities. Mrs. Pozdneev says she will rest when she gets home in time for the two-week New Year's vacation from school.

Expressing her joy for the trip and how grateful she was for the friendliness of the people of Portsmouth, Mrs. Pozdneev also indicated a bit of homesickness.

"We Russians have a saying," she said, "to be guests, good; to go home, better."

2 Perish, 7 Hurt In Conneaut Fire

CONNEAUT, Ohio (AP) — Christmas turned to tragedy for the Finlaw family — brothers, sisters, uncles and aunts—when fire broke out at their two-family home. Two persons died. Seven others were injured.

The fire started after a gas heater on the first floor exploded. That is where the adults were sleeping.

Killed in the flames early Wednesday were Ralph Finlaw, 33, and his uncle, Wilbur Finlaw, 63, of nearby Colebrook.

Phillip Finlaw, 31, who was hobbled by a cast on his leg from a previous injury, saved his four small children by throwing them 20 feet from a second-story window into two feet of snow. The children suffered only bruises and cuts.

Phillip Finlaw, however, reinjured his leg as he jumped from the top floor. His wife had died recently of cancer. The children are Carrie, Lynn, 8, Rebecca, 6, Marty, 5, and Matthew, 3.

Others injured in the fire were Marilyn Finlaw, 31, wife of Ralph, and Joseph Finlaw, 50, a brother of Wilbur.

Still Unconscious

ELGIN, Scotland (AP)—For the fifth straight Christmas, Maj. Reginald Bristow lay unconscious on a hospital bed Wednesday. He was injured in a road accident on March 20, 1959. His wife and two children visited him this Christmas Day.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Good Reader Has Trouble With Spelling

Dr. Garry Meyers

More often than not a child who is a very good reader is a good speller. But such does not always happen. From Ontario, Canada, a mother writes: "Our little daughter, 7, in grade two is a wonderful reader. She reads morning, noon and night with books under her pillow to pick up as soon as she opens her eyes.

When she opens a book, I mean any book, for I have every kind you can think of for a child to read, she seems so happy she reminds me of a person being set free; she sighs and seems so relaxed.

"Now for my problem: When it comes to writing her exams at school she can't seem to write what she wants. She cannot spell them and she fails in all her tests except reading and arithmetic.

IN SCIENCE AND social studies she tries to answer the questions but the words she thinks of she can't spell, so she tries to write something that will sound like the word but has no meaning to anyone else.

"I would like to know if there is anything I could or I should do to help her or should I just leave her alone? I'm confused —the teacher tells me she's a wonderful little student, never any other complaint but this."

Here I am violating a personal rule not to print any letter not answered first by me personally. It reports a problem facing many other parents, and warrants the following discussion.

It's wonderful that this child reads so well and derives so much enjoyment from reading and is also good in arithmetic. With her phenomenal reading success, she probably will eventually find ways to be a good speller, too. However, it is obvious that she suffers severly from her inability to spell when she writes.

We may infer that she has more than average intelligence. Therefore, she might easily see why she should learn to spell and be ready to cooperate with you to this end.

CONTINUE TO show satisfaction over her excellence in reading and arithmetic. Have her each evening help you pick out four or five short, easy-to-spell words from a book she is reading. Copy them plainly, each word on a separate slip of paper. If you have a typewriter she might like to type them with your help.

Ask her to look carefully at one word of this list, to pronounce it, being sure she knows its meaning; then to say aloud the letters in this word from left to right as she carefully looks at them before her.

Instead, win her to pronounce and then to spell this same word while looking at it carefully right before her again and again, at least four or five times, before trying to spell it from memory.

Then as you pronounce it again for her, have her write it carefully. Don't hurry. Be very calm and serene. Make your slogan, "Accuracy — never a mistake."

ONCE SHE ACQUIRES the pattern of careful, accurate study of the spelling of a few words, she might well attack a few more words each evening.

If she can bring home from school any of her written work, you could help her in the foregoing ways to master the spelling of some of the words.

Also she may have some trouble at handwriting. I'm enclosing my bulletins, "Home Help in Handwriting" and "Home Help in Spelling", which any one else may receive by sending a self - addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

Rotarians Hear Director

High School Bands Face Busy Period Of Winter

The end of football season signals the beginning of work on concert music and tests for the "Twin Bands" of East Liverpool High School, Vincent L. Maola told the Rotary Club Tuesday in the Travelers Hotel.

Activities of the twin bands are many during the winter months, Maola said, and include concerts at assemblies, and performances by four or five small groups organized to provide entertainment and at the same time sharpen the ability of the musicians.

Seventy - eight musicians made up one marching band in the fall, and there were 62 in the other.

These groups were organized into two concert bands in the winter, one for the top musicians, and one for those of lesser ability at the moment, the director of instrumental music told the club.

The musicians will continue to undergo the Watkins - Farnum Achievement Series tests when school resumes after the holidays. The objective is to achieve as high a score as possible in the national tests. The results aid Maola in determining seating arrangements for concerts.

"Music on the lighter side after the grid season includes performances by two 16-member stage bands, the Potters Five novelty group, and three new groups — Girls Dixieland Band, sophomore dance band, and basketball band," Maola said. In addition, there are a number of quartets and other groups working together, he added.

He asserted the transition to concert music from the marching music of the football season is difficult for some musicians, in particular the percussionists.

Maola joined Rick Fisher, Hall Ball and Amos Hamilton in a clarinet quartet that performed two selections, "Suite for Four Equal Clarniets" and "Interlude for a Clarinet Quartet."

Maola said 35 musicians will graduate this spring. He has been director of instrumental music for four years, and a teacher in the city system for eight years.

He concluded the program by reading a satire in "The Night Before Christmas."

Ralph A. Finley, president, presented Christmas gifts to Mrs. Nova Dell Anderson, pianist, and Miss Eva Wasbutzky, who assists Harold B. Barth, secretary.

George Hargraves presented a gift to Ted Waters, recipient of the Rotary scholarship from the Citizens Scholarship Foundation. He is a freshman at Ohio State University.

96 Million In Japan

TOKYO, (AP)—Japan's population stood at 96,160,000 as of Oct. 1, making Japan the seventh most populated nation in the world, the government's statistics office reported Wednesday. This was an increase of 978,000 persons over the previous year.

Bishop Views Last Year As Encouraging

CLEVELAND (AP) — Auxiliary Bishop John F. Whealon of the Cleveland Catholic Diocese, preaching a sermon at Christmas Mass, said he believed that from the viewpoint of religion the last year had been encouraging.

Archbishop Edward F. Hoban was celebrant of the Mass in St. John Cathedral, where about 2,000 persons from all parts of the diocese had gathered.

"In spite of sorrowful happenings and continuing irreligion," said Bishop Whealon, "there has been in 1963 some progress toward a wiser and better understanding of Christ and of Christianity. Perhaps the momentous events of the last year leave us wiser and better persons."

By HAL HUMPHREY

A Better Filing System Is Needed

Television can justifiably brag (and it does) as a recorder of history-making events as they happen. But the medium is woefully inept at keeping files of what it has recorded.

Hal Humphrey

Mel Stuart found this out while putting together film for the 90-minute documentary which scriptwriter Theodore H. White has based on his Pulitzer Prize book, "The Making of the President—1960," to be televised Sunday night on ABC-TV.

"I found that lots of TV tapes from the 1960 presidential campaign already have been erased, and this made it very difficult to include the kind of personal and behind-the scenes stuff we needed," Stuart says.

He couldn't believe, for example, that neither TV nor the newsreel companies had any record of Democratic nominee John F. Kennedy's return to Boston the day before the election. Such was the case, however.

To show the Kennedy family at the makeshift election-night headquarters set up in the Hyannis Port home, Stuart had to rely on the still-photo shots of Jacques Lowe. If TV and newsreels were on the scene (and I seem to recall they were), no film or tape is in existence to prove it.

STUART DID manage to unearth a few intimate and behind-the-scenes views of candidates Kennedy and Nixon. An especially interesting one showed the two of them getting prepared and being briefed just prior to their first network TV debate from Chicago.

Whenever Stuart had such material and included it in this 90-minute study of the 1960 campaign, his film took on new life. Unfortunately, he couldn't find enough so that much of what the TV viewers will see are scenes most of them already saw at the time the events occurred.

As it was, Stuart and author White scanned one million feet of film and tape in the last 15 months. From this they picked 100,000 feet or 40 to 50 hours of viewing, which had to be trimmed to the final 2,800 feet you will see.

Logistics such as these provide the one alibi which TV stations and newsreel companies have for not having complete records. Where, they can ask, would they store all these rolls of film and tape?

OBVIOUSLY, at the rate history is traveling and TV is recording it, there wouldn't be space enough even on the moon. What should be done, however, is a more discriminating job of tape and film which is stored.

Producer Stuart had no problem finding countless reels showing the candidates in ticker-tape parades, making speeches and shaking hands. These were kept while scenes of crucial caucuses and whispered conferences aboard campaign trains and planes were erased or tossed out as unimportant historical data.

Television needs to hire trained men who can set up libraries containing the best and most vital of the documentary scenes it is constantly recording.

The necessity of this is demonstrated in "The Making of the President—1060." Author White did not change a line in his script subsequent to President Kennedy's assassination, but the ghost of the assassin hangs like an extra bright searchlight over each line and each picture.

This film - documentary should impress TV executives as nothing else has of the importance for preserving those scenes which ultimately will make the best visual record of history for future generations.

Considering what they had to work with in the way of tape and film, Stuart and White have done a commendable job.

Some say that such a film shouldn't be shown so closely in the wake of the emotional shock wave left by the assassination. Like many things in our history, this turns out to be a case of expedience taking precedence over other judgments.

The sponsor postponed showing of a "Bay of Pigs" documentary on another network, due to President Kennedy's assassination but for budgetary and tax purposes needed something to replace it before the end of the calendar year.

Truck Bids Slated

EAST PALESTINE — Bids will be opened by the Board of Control Jan. 3 for a new two-ton street department dump truck, to cost an estimated $4,300. Previous bids were rejected because they exceeded the estimate of $4,000, and Council subsequently appropriated $300 more.

The Erie Canal, completed in 1825, was the earliest canal of any importance constructed in the United States.

$17 Increase Over Last Year

Cost To Educate Child This Year Set At $352

By G. K. HODENFIELD
A.P. Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The average cost of educating a child in the public schools this school year is $352, an increase of $17 or 5 per cent over last year, the magazine School Management reported today.

The magazine said only $7 of the increase will be spent for better education, with the other $10 being used simply to offset the effects of inflation.

The magazine's annual survey is directed by Dr. Orlando F. Furno, director of research for Baltimore city schools.

The survey broke the increase of per-pupil expenditures into regions, showing the change from 1962-63 to 1963-1964 and the per cent of the change.

In the Midwest region, which includes Ohio, the magazine said per pupil expenditures increased from $345 to $376, or 9 per cent.

Furno estimates that public schools across the country will spend $20.3 billion this school year, including the costs of school transportation, building and equipping new schools, and paying off old school debts.

The average cost per student for bus transportation is $16, and Furno said the school districts will spend $47 per student for new school construction this school year. These costs are in addition to the $352 per-pupil expenditure.

School debts, mostly long-term bonds for school construction, totaled $388 per student in the average school district as of last Sept. 1. Almost 10 per cent of the country's school districts were in debt $1000 for each pupil enrolled.

The magazine said only 10 per cent of the nation's school districts have salary scales which make it possible for classroom teachers to earn more than $9,500 a year.

The average teacher will earn $5,837 this school year, school management said. The average starting salary was listed as $4,600 and the average maximum salary, $7,307.

Donald Mackey, 606 Fisher Ave., one of the owners of the Francis P. White Agency on W. 6th St., has been named administrator of the pension plan set up a year ago by chinaware manufacturers and the International Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

Mackey was selected jointly by union and management representatives. He already had been serving as administrator and secretary of another pension plan created a year ago by agreement between the IBOP and U. S. Potters Association member firms.

The Pittsburgh National Bank will handle investment of funds in the chinaware pension plan. In both pension plans, management and union have five representatives each on the Board of Trustees.

2 Get $100 Fines In Booth Cutting At Restaurant

Two East Liverpool youths were fined $100 and costs Tuesday in Municipal Court when Acting Judge Paul Tobin convicted them on charges of malicious destruction of property by slashing the upholstery in a booth in the New York Restaurant Dec. 15.

Francis Fetty of Sophia St. and Joseph Howell of Princeton Ave. were named in affidavits signed by C. J. Curtis, one of the proprietors of the restaurant. His charges alleged that the upholstery was "cut and slashed" with a "knife or other sharp object."

Curtis testified the damage totaled $55 to $60. He said it was discovered moments after the pair left the restaurant. The proprietor also testified a third youth was involved, but did not name him.

The acting judge told the two defendants he will show leniency in remitting the fine if they make arrangements to pay for the damage. The two were taken into custody on warrants at 12:25 a. m. Tuesday. Both pleaded not guilty.

By The Associated Press

Cold air nipped areas in the Southeast today but generally seasonal temperatures and mostly fair weather prevailed in the major part of the nation.

Freezing weather was reported in sections of Florida, southern Georgia and southeast Alabama. In Florida, the mercury dropped to 25 above in Cross City, with a reading of 28 in Tallahassee, 30 in Gainesville and 36 in Daytona Beach. Miami's low was 46.

ONIONS

QUESTION: Why do we cry when we cut onions?

ANSWER: Nothing unpleasant has happened to Jane in our picture; she was simply helping her mother get dinner by peeling some onions. The onion, while being a delicious vegetable, has a strong taste and smell. The plants contain an oil which can vaporize, or mix with the air, when one cuts or peels onions. In the nose, there are nerves connected with the eyes. The vapor effects these nerves which in turn agitate the tear glands, causing tears to flow. Such tears are one of nature's protective devices which work whether or not we ask them to.

Tears are very useful to clean and lubricate the eyeball; actually, each time we blink, a little tear fluid is sucked out from the tear glands behind the eyelids, and passes over the eye. Tears keep the strong onion vapor from irritating the eye. Real crying is caused by strong emotions tightening muscles around the tear glands, causing tears to be squeezed out.

FOR YOU TO DO: Check on how often you blink; you will probably find it happens every few seconds. Then think how wonderful it is to have such faithful little eye washers, who keep your vision clear all the time without your having to do anything about it!

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

Pilgrimage: More than 15,000 Americans visited the grave of President John F. Kennedy on Christmas Day.

Neutrality: The United States is consulting its allies on the possibility of an East-West neutrality declaration on Cambodia.

State Department authorities say the danger in a conference is that it would lead to bitter recriminations and name - calling over conditions in the Southeast Asian kingdom.

Police: Directors of the Chamber of Commerce have affirmed that chamber policy against collective bargaining between unions and government agencies extends to teachers organizations and public school board.

In a mail ballot the board members endorsed a statement that "determination of public school policies should be the responsibility solely of local public boards of education as authorized by state and local laws."

North Carolina's Gov. Terry Sanford, who made education the foundation of his administration, has started in the Tar Heel State a $14-million attempt to break what he calls this "cycle of poverty."

By PHIL CORNER

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — To thousands of children in North Carolina, first grade is a foreign world of strange, bewildering things like books and crayons and gaily colored pictures.

They come from homes mired in poverty where education is neither understood nor respected. They cannot cope with a course of study designed for their more fortunate classmates.

"The children find everything at school so alien," Gov. Terry Sanford said, "they never quite catch on, and within the next few years they become the dropouts. In time, they become the parents of poverty again."

Through Sanford's efforts state and local governments and the Ford Foundation have teamed up in a $14-million attempt to break this "cycle of poverty."

A new agency, the North Carolina Fund, has been set up to administer a five-year program which will include 10 community projects and a statewide endeavor to improve the teaching of reading, writing and arithmetic in the first three grades.

Sanford said the community projects would be "essentially an attempt to locate the people in the rural, mountain and city areas who have problems, take them by the hand and show them how the state, county and local agencies can help them and put them on their own two feet."

Officials have warned against expecting dramatic developments. It is, they have said, a long-range attack on an ancient, stubborn foe.

Only one-half the youngsters who entered school in 1950 were graduated in June 1962. More than one-fourth the adults over 25 were listed in the 1960 census as functionally illiterate.

The statewide program for the primary grades has received a $4-million grant from the fund. The other $10 million will go into projects in 10 communities to be selected early next year.

Specifics in the program are lacking. Fund officials have offered some suggestions to local governments, but they feel vagueness is one of the greatest strengths of the effort.

The reading, writing and arithmetic program is to begin in January in 20 elementary schools and grow, during the next four years, to include 400.

It will experiment with the idea of grouping the first three grades into a single unit, separating the children not by age but by achievement level.

Fifty - five of the 72 highest mountain peaks in the U. S. are in Colorado, with the remaining 17 divided among California, Washington and Alaska.

Junior Editors Quiz on ONIONS

QUESTION: Why do we cry when we cut onions?

ANSWER: Nothing unpleasant has happened to Jane in our picture; she was simply helping her mother get dinner by peeling some onions. The onion, while being a delicious vegetable, has a strong taste and smell. The plants contain an oil which can vaporize, or mix with the air, when one cuts or peels onions. In the nose, there are nerves connected with the eyes. The vapor effects these nerves which in turn agitate the tear glands, causing tears to flow. Such tears are one of nature's protective devices which work whether or not we ask them to.

Tears are very useful to clean and lubricate the eyeball; actually, each time we blink, a little tear fluid is sucked out from the tear glands behind the eyelids, and passes over the eye. Tears keep the strong onion vapor from irritating the eye. Real crying is caused by strong emotions tightening muscles around the tear glands, causing tears to be squeezed out.

FOR YOU TO DO: Check on how often you blink; you will probably find it happens every few seconds. Then think how wonderful it is to have such faithful little eye washers, who keep your vision clear all the time without your having to do anything about it!

Leah Kae Weyerts of Manhattan, Kan., wins today's grand prize of a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review and you too may win a set.

15,000 Visit President's Grave

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

Pilgrimage: More than 15,000 Americans visited the grave of President John F. Kennedy on Christmas Day.

The procession began early in the day and ended when nightfall came to Arlington National Cemetery.

Neutrality: The United States is consulting its allies on the possibility of an East-West neutrality declaration on Cambodia.

This would be an alternative to the proposed Cambodian neutrality conference favored by the Cambodian head of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

State Department authorities say the danger in a conference is that it would lead to bitter recriminations and name - calling over conditions in the Southeast Asian kingdom.

Police: Directors of the Chamber of Commerce have affirmed that chamber policy against collective bargaining between unions and government agencies extends to teachers organizations and public school board.

In a mail ballot the board members endorsed a statement that "determination of public school policies should be the responsibility solely of local public boards of education as authorized by state and local laws."

North Carolina's Gov. Terry Sanford, who made education the foundation of his administration, has started in the Tar Heel State a $14-million attempt to break what he calls this "cycle of poverty."

By PHIL CORNER

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — To thousands of children in North Carolina, first grade is a foreign world of strange, bewildering things like books and crayons and gaily colored pictures.

They come from homes mired in poverty where education is neither understood nor respected. They cannot cope with a course of study designed for their more fortunate classmates.

"The children find everything at school so alien," Gov. Terry Sanford said, "they never quite catch on, and within the next few years they become the dropouts. In time, they become the parents of poverty again."

Through Sanford's efforts state and local governments and the Ford Foundation have teamed up in a $14-million attempt to break this "cycle of poverty."

A new agency, the North Carolina Fund, has been set up to administer a five-year program which will include 10 community projects and a statewide endeavor to improve the teaching of reading, writing and arithmetic in the first three grades.

Sanford said the community projects would be "essentially an attempt to locate the people in the rural, mountain and city areas who have problems, take them by the hand and show them how the state, county and local agencies can help them and put them on their own two feet."

Officials have warned against expecting dramatic developments. It is, they have said, a long-range attack on an ancient, stubborn foe.

Only one-half the youngsters who entered school in 1950 were graduated in June 1962. More than one-fourth the adults over 25 were listed in the 1960 census as functionally illiterate.

The statewide program for the primary grades has received a $4-million grant from the fund. The other $10 million will go into projects in 10 communities to be selected early next year.

Specifics in the program are lacking. Fund officials have offered some suggestions to local governments, but they feel vagueness is one of the greatest strengths of the effort.

The reading, writing and arithmetic program is to begin in January in 20 elementary schools and grow, during the next four years, to include 400.

It will experiment with the idea of grouping the first three grades into a single unit, separating the children not by age but by achievement level.

Fifty - five of the 72 highest mountain peaks in the U. S. are in Colorado, with the remaining 17 divided among California, Washington and Alaska.
